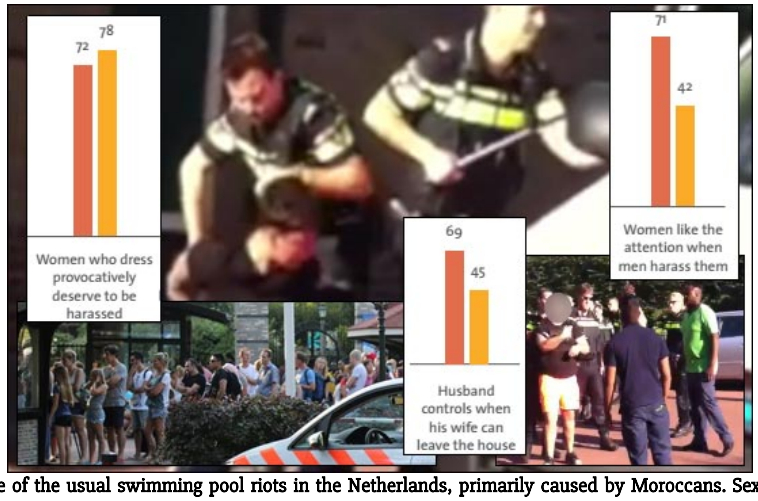
THE EU'S AGE-OLD "MUSLIM RAPE CRISIS": VIOLENT MUSLIM YOUTHS PROUDLY GANG MOLESTING WHITE "WHORES" AT DUTCH SWIMMING POOLS SINCE LATE 1980S; SWEDEN, NORWAY, BELGIUM, FRANCE, UK, GERMANY ALSO DISCUSSED

By: Joel v.d. Reijden | Date: Sep. 4, 2017 | Late update: Dec. 20, 2025 | CENTER FOR RESPONSIBLE IMMIGRATION



One of the usual swimming pool riots in the Netherlands, primarily caused by Moroccans. Sexual assaults on women here have been an epidemic since the early 1990s and most certainly are not a recent phenomenon. The statistics are from Morocco in 2016, red for men, yellow for women. It appears Muslim women are very jealous.

"'[Moroccans] are hurling insults at your head as 'fuckface Hollander.'' ...

"[A mother's] fear began when she walked past a group of 40 [Moroccan] men with her 10-year-old daughter. 'They yelled: 'Kid, kid, you want to make 50 euros? Just come and lick me.' After she had said something about it, a boy went to stand in front of her window and dropped his pants.

"If you then call the police, they will start harassing you. Ding-dong ditch. Pee against your front door. They call you "cancer whore"'. Her husband with a baby on his arm: 'If we say anything back, then [they say] we have no respect for them.'

"The local authorities don't take action [but] the stories of residents pretty much are all the same. Who has talked about the terror, has paid a high price. ... People are scared to be seen with [a reporter] by 'the enemy' [the Moroccans]."

"I was there [at Tropicana swimming paradise] once in the 90s with my school class and even then it was nothing but trouble. I remember that girls in my class were crying, because they had been held and molested by Moroccan boys in their twenties. Even back then there already was a Moroccan problem in swimming pools. However, it was limited to swimming pools in the big cities. And look how it is today [it's everywhere]."

"Today was a great day to go swim... so I thought, let's go to the Tongelreep... I walk to the "yellow" water slide and five minutes later I have finally arrived at the top and to my amazement I see a Turk just physically molesting a Dutch girl. She was waiting for the light to turn green and he put his finger just about in her ass, so she became angry and went down fast. I thought, let's keep my mouth shut, because there are four more Turks right besides him."

> Another one of more than 100 ordinary accounts listed in this article.

"As has been said above already 80,000x, it is true that (primarily) due to Moroccan youths this [Tropicana] swimming paradise has gone down the drain. I've also been there a lot as young kid. Where it was a real (swimming) paradise in the beginning, more and more it was taken over by the multicultural youth which kept the "normal" people away.

"And those horror stories are accurate, by the way. I myself experienced Moroccan boys breaking a glass bottle and subsequently throwing the fragments in the pool. Or that a parent of a sexually molested girl couldn't get an employee to act and most certainly didn't want to call the police."

Intro: elite-backed Third World immigration plot

As described in various other immigration-related articles on this website, liberal elites surrounding Bilderberg have been pushing Third World immigration into the West at all costs to "solve" the problem of dwindling birth rates in the West. These numbers stand between 1.4 and 1.9 in Europe while the United States is about to drop below 2. In order to keep pensions and health care affordable, and make it possible for banks and multinationals to continue to grow the West's economy, they basically opened the floodgates to the Third World. Considering the European Union's statistical office calculated in 2008 that an additional 56 million immigrants would be needed until 2050 [1], one wonders to what extent the "immigration crisis", with Africans and Arabs spilling into Europe by the millions, is allowed to happen by design.

July 2014: The usual. Dutch girl surrounded by "thirty to forty" horny Moroccan boys, cursed out, beaten up and robbed of her phone. Apparently not molested this time. Earlier these Moroccans had made a recreational area unsafe - also the usual.

The problem is that bringing Third World immigrants into a First World society is little more than a quick fix that creates as many problems as that it solves - possibly more. People from the Third World have vastly higher crime numbers than whites, are much more religiously fanatic, as is the case with the Muslims, who traditionally also despise Western traditions; do not share cultural values with whites, and often generally band together with little desire to integrate. The result is native white families fleeing western Europe's major cities, slowly but surely turning them into foreign enclaves with so much crime and general anti-social behavior (as blasting loud music or racism against whites) that the police is permanently overwhelmed.

Then there's the issue of genetic IQ, providing us evidence that the knowledge economy that made the West the dominant power on the planet, is also being lowered in particular with millions of Sub-Saharan Africans pouring into Europe.

THE REAL QUESTION

"Muslim rape crisis" really born in 2015-2016?

The so-called "Muslim rape crisis" which first gained international attention on New Year's Eve 2015-2016 when in German cities as Cologne 1,049 native persons, mostly females, were harassed, robbed and raped by groups of "North African" men - among them Algerians. [2] Of course, politicians and major media outlets largely tried to cover up these facts. The Independent took it so far as to publish an article on February 13, 2016 with the title Cologne sex assaults: Muslim rape myths fit a neo-Nazi agenda that read:

> "This allowed conspiracy theorists to outline their most starkly racist fantasies, painting a picture of demonic brown-skinned Muslims fleeing war zones to defile white European womanhood. No need for court cases: marauding savages had planned everything on the Internet and were all guilty without trial."

When one looks at the author of this irrational hit piece against all of white Europe, there's the name Nabila Ramdani, a super-establishment journalist of Algerian descent who has worked for George Soros' Open Society Institute, the German Marshall Fund and other elite think tanks. [3] Could there be any bigger conflict of interest? This is absolutely scandalous journalism. In this context, why not cite from a decades-old report of the Swedish National Council for Crime Prevention (BRA):

> "0.2 percent of Swedes, excluding immigrant children, were reasonably suspected of rape in 1985-1989. This will be our default value from which we measure overrepresentation: ...
> - 23-fold overrepresentation for ... Algeria, Morocco, Tunisia or Libya...
> - 20-fold overrepresentation for ... Iraq...
> - 18-fold overrepresentation for ... Bulgaria or Romania...
> - 16.5-fold overrepresentation for the Africa category excluding North Africa and Uganda...
> - 10-fold overrepresentation for ... Iran as well as ... Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador..." [4]

The only oddity in this report is the relatively low numbers of rape for Sub-Saharan Africa. Today, in South Africa, for example, 28% of the population openly admits to having raped at least one woman in his life. [5] It appears the rise in these crimes, at least in South Africa, has at least something to do with the end of white colonial occupation - as politically incorrect such an opinion might be.

Also, the above Swedish report talks about all forms of rape. As already mentioned, when gang rape or gang molestation is discussed, the numbers skyrocket even more on the side of Arabs and Africans. A similarly revealing article was published in the Netherlands in December 2001, months before the Pim Fortuyn that never materialized due to his bizarre assassination.

> "White participants in gang rapes are extremely rare [but] the vast majority of victims are white girls. ...
> Antillean, Surinam and Cape Verdean [blacks] see gang rape as something macho. ... [Arab] Moroccans still are very clearly overrepresented in swimming pool incidents."[6]

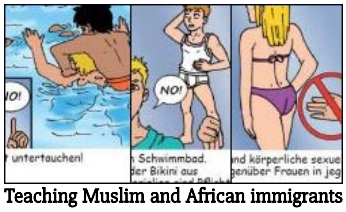
We'll get back to the Moroccans, but it should be clear that what happened on New Year's Eve 2015-2016 can not have been unexpected. In fact, they appear to be symptoms of what is to come down the line - unless heavy-duty police state tactics are employed - as the number of Arab and African immigrants continues to grow. Sure, freshly-arrived illegal immigrants who have come here due to the removal of Gaddafi in Libya and the rise of ISIS in Syria, will cause even greater problems than documented, accepted immigrants, but the gang rape and gang molestation problem essentially remains the same.



Teaching Muslim and African immigrants proper behavior in swimming pools. The German government was so proud of itself after making these brochures - and, of course, didn't mention this situation has existed for decades, certainly in a country as the Netherlands.

In response to the "Muslim rape crisis", the governments of Germany and Switzerland "took action": They did little to nothing to curb the immigration waves from the Third World, but were kind enough to distribute cartoon instructions among immigrants that informed them of proper behavior. Switzerland explained to its asylum seekers that it is frowned upon to hit your wives and children in public. Germany then produced cartoon instructions explaining to asylum seekers how they should and shouldn't behave in public swimming pools: don't wear underwear, don't try to drown people, respect girls in bikinis and swimsuits, don't grope women in swimsuits, and don't jump onto or next to women that are swimming.

Of course, asylum seekers know all this. They just don't care, in the same fashion that more established immigrants and their second and third generation Muslim offspring far too often don't care about women's rights either - especially not those of western women. The same goes for many African and Caribbean blacks. As mentioned, problems with Muslim youths in particular at Europe's swimming pools go back to the 1980s. It really is nothing new. The idea that these new immigrants need to receive a little schooling and then everything is fine, is a total lie. Evidence shows that their children will continue to cause these type of widespread incidents.

DECADES-LONG sex assaults at Dutch swimming pools by (the HATED) Moroccans

Tikibad

In the previous section we cited a December 2001 article that read, "[Arab] Moroccans still are very clearly overrepresented in swimming pool incidents." Let's dig a little deeper into these swimming pool "incidents".

Tikibad.

The most recent swimming pool incident that comes to mind occurred on a warm Saturday evening, August 27, 2016 at Duinrell's Tikibad, a nationally known Dutch swimming pool popular for its fast water slides. It was reported that 15 "youths" tried to skip the long waiting line here, in the process ganging up on a lone white person who tried to say something about it. Guards of the swimming pool - only necessary in this day and age of Third World immigration - rushed to the aid of the besieged individual, but instead of the youths leaving, they put up a fight and injured several of the guards - who undoubtedly were forced to restrain themselves to prevent getting arrested and jailed. It wasn't until three dozen police officers arrived at the scene that the group quickly dispersed into different directions. In the end only four perpetrators were arrested.

As usual, not a single Dutch mainstream and hardly any (semi-)alternative media outlet provided any hint as to the nationalities of the youths. The people knew better, of course. Whether they dare to admit it or not, everybody knows that natives don't cause these type of extreme incidents. To illustrate, below the reader can find replies to an article about this incident on a prominent Dutch news site, Fok.nl, which is mainly visited by Dutch youths. A lot of the comments are going to be hard to translate for non-native Dutch speakers, but of the 50 on page one, at least 31 are taking snides at immigration policy and Muslim immigrants, a lot of them specifically singling out Moroccans. A translation of some of these comments reads:

> Comment 1: "Less! Less! [immigrants]"
> Comment 2: "God, what do I hate this fucking religion and its followers."
> Comment 3: "Who released the monkeys from the zoo?"
> Comment 4: "Let me guess, Turks or Moroccans were involved?"

Comment 5: "[Before you judge] first you need to wait which of the two it was. [sarcastic: Moroccans or Turks]"

Comment 6: "A group of 15 looking for a fight with 1 person. Only one population group fits that description. [Moroccans]"

Comment 7: "At home I also immediately said: 15 guys against 1. Guess who does that? [Moroccans] ... On to the elections!"

Comment 8: "Moroccans?"

Comment 9: "Probably Moroccans."

Comment 10: "You and your prejudices! There's only 99% chance that you're right."

Comment 11: "When in the late 80s I worked at the Tikibad it was always trouble when Moroccans were present. You could set your clock to it that girls would be at the counter who had been sexually assaulted by this filth. It hasn't gotten any better these past 26 years. But let's all keep looking away."

Comment 12: "Tikibad? More like Turkishbad or Islamabad."

Comment 13: "Goddamned, how many swimming pools have already been closed because of this filth. Anybody knows?"

Comment 14: "If you include Tropicana, certainly 42."

Comment 15: "Tropicana was already destroyed by these same type of "guests" [meaning "guest workers"]. It's now the same with Tikibad. [suggestion that they should all be drowned] ... Went to the beach with my two little girls in Zeeland, where at the moment 0 of these guys are walking around. ... But for how long?" [7]

Keep in mind: the article to which these comments were made didn't reveal a single detail about the ethnic background of the perpetrators. So are these posters a bunch psychotics? Raving lunatics? Racists? Nazis? Well, I spend some time trying to figure out the nationalities of the perpetrators. After visiting about a dozen sites, I ran across an obscure patriotic news site that had posted a video of the last stage of the incident. Guess what... Moroccans were to blame. Below a few screenshots can be seen of the normal native Dutch public waiting in line and the arrested Moroccans with a number of bystanders, seemingly Surinams.

Arrests of Moroccans after the August 27, 2016 Tikibad incident.

This Tikibad incident, of course, did not involve sexual molestation, but the reader can probably guess what this group would have been doing once they had made it inside. Tikibad has quite a long history of these type of incidents. In June 1999 Tikibad actually put the clock 50 years back by implementing segregated swimming for boys and girls for the last few weeks of the school season, this because a 14-year-old kid raped a 16-year-old girl in the restroom while elsewhere at the same time 13 young girls on a school trip were sexually molested and stripped of their swimsuits by his friends. [8] One week after the segregation was lifted in early July 1999, another incident happened in which three girls of 13 and 14 years old were sexually molested by three boys. The directors of Tikibad explained to be "completely desperate" and remarked:

> "We [now] have observers in uniform and in civilian clothes walking around, we have camera security, and still it happens." [9]

What is absolutely bizarre about these cases of the summer of 1999 is that not one newspaper even hinted to the ethnic background of the perpetrators. There's just nothing. Total silence. It might well be that Tikibad itself is responsible for that, as many subsequent incidents at this pool also fail to identify the ethnicities of the perpetrators. As the (innocent) reader will realize more and more throughout this article, chances of ALL perpetrators here having been immigrant youths are close to one hundred percent. Native Dutch people might be creepers on occasion or say inappropriate things, but they simply don't sexually assault girls in groups in very public places. The shame alone it would bring to friends and family would be enough to deter the overwhelming number of white kids from these type of practices. You are going to be a total outcast. On the other hand, with Moroccans it is perfectly acceptable behavior among friends and seemingly also within many households, because white infidel "whores" are "asking for it" with their lack "proper" clothing.

One wonders how many incidents even make the news, as the following 2007 comment to a news article about the latest swimming pool incident alone indicates:

> "It is nothing new. When I went on a school trip in group 8 more than ten years ago [early 1990s] to Duinrell and the Tikibad, my [female] schoolmates were already sexually molested by that [Moroccan] folk. Anyhow, it is nowhere to be found in the news, but most here know exactly what the situation is [with the foreigners]..." [10]

One latter-day Tikibad incident that did leak out dates to July 21, 2013, when eight "persons" were arrested for beating up two pool attendants who had tried to remove them from the whirlpool - a favorite place for sexual assault as the bubbles obstruct above-water and underwater cameras - for "misconduct". Initially they weren't even arrested; that only happened when the group continued to fight the attendants and police outside, extremely dysfunctional behavior that is only typical in the Netherlands of Moroccans. [11]

It appears many sexual assault reports aren't filed at Tikibad, because perpetrators are ignored while victims are being escorted out the door. This came to a head in September 2016, when Algemeen Dagblad newspaper featured a Facebook post of a certain Melanie, a teenage girl, was complaining that she had been removed by guards from Tikibad after raising her voice to a man in his 30s or 40s who was sexually harassing her, her female friend, and a number of other girls at the whirlpool, along with a friend. The guards didn't appear to be the slightest bit concerned with the harassment; only in quietly escorting out any complainers. [12] On Facebook, friends of Melanie replied:

> Female poster 1: "This is also the reason why I am not going to that stench pool!! For years perverts have been walking around there; you hear nothing else."
> Female poster 2: "I had the same thing two years ago. A couple of dirty guys who couldn't keep their hands to themselves. Pool attendants already had given them several warnings because they were waiting for girls at the dark cave part in that weird tunnel where you go in with tires. After the pool attendants did nothing, my ex decided to take measures into his own hands. A fight, of course. We were taken to the police station where we could file a complaint. Sat there from 16:00 to 23:00 and never heard anything again about it. So Tikibad security and the staff is 3x useless and they really don't give a fuck as long as they get their money." [13]

Still no details on ethnicity, although the last account leaves little doubt. Apart from the fact that girls usually are little bit more politically correct, through their Facebook it is clear these girls also have tons of immigrant friends, automatically meaning they feel restricted as to what they can and cannot say. Most Dutch people are in a similar situation, something the government obviously loves. The Algemeen Dagblad article itself also featured a good number of replies, among them:

> Poster 1: "Three weeks ago I was surrounded at the slide in Tikibad by four non-Dutch [immigrant] guys who couldn't keep their hands to themselves. Grabbing me and strange suggestions... Reported it and went home! They won't see me there anymore and I hope more girls are going to do that!"
> Poster 2: "Clearly nothing has changed at Duinrell in terms of security. When I was working there security was also useless since most were ex-convicts and were still operating in the criminal circuit."
> Poster 3: "No tolerance policy is what Tikibad labels it when no report is made to the police to arrest such individuals. ... We already filed an earlier complaint about a similar situation, although then they were a group of youths. ... Eventually it was also suggested that it would be better if the girls would leave and get themselves escorted back home." [14]

In another Facebook thread about the incident, two more visitors of Tikibad talk about experiences of sexual molestation by young foreigners. There are several more (not all listed here), but these are, once again, doing us a disservice by not mentioning ethnicities:

> Poster 1: "Ethnic profiling at the entrance of the swimming pool really is necessary here [at Tikibad]. And I say that as the father of a young daughter. I must have been a hundred times in all wildwater rivers and water slides with my daughter and on several occasions I had to warn a number of [non-white] young boys on their accidental bump-ins and gropes."
> Poster 2: "When we were there trouble also emerged with groping boys of which we shall not name their ethnicity..... We left early with the kids before things would get out of hand."
> Poster 3: "Yeah, sad. They have no control there whatsoever. Was there last week. Screaming boys and lots of perverts."
> Poster 3: "Tikibad is notorious for this. When younger, I wasn't allowed to swim there because of these type of people..." [15]

This is about it when it comes to Tikibad. Despite the endless national "rumors" and good amount of complaints of immigrant molestations at this pool that never made the news, there's not much to be found in terms of data in the national newspapers. This appears to be the result of a cover up by the government, the police and the leadership of the swimming pool itself. Most swimming pools don't appear to appreciate this type of negative media attention, but in case of Tikibad's leadership there might be a bit more cooperation with the government than usual: the surrounding Duinrell bungalow park - all part of the same amusement park complex - is regularly used to house Third World asylum seekers. [16] Only recently one of them made the news for exposing himself to an 18-year-old female jogger. [17]

But no matter, there are plenty of other swimming pools in the Netherlands to study when it comes to immigrant gang molestations.

Tropicana

Tropicana in its glory days of the late 1980s and early 1990s.

Among the earlier-listed translated Fok.nl comments on the Tikibad incident the reader could find several references to tropical swimming paradise Tropicana in Rotterdam, in which the same situation arose, almost right from the start. Founded in 1988, I went there multiple times with my family when young and had a blast. It was a large swimming pool right next to the Maas river with an amazing view on the city. It had indoor and outdoor pools, a large wave pool, two decent water slides, warm water and cold water rapids, isolated whirlpools, heated walls, rocky hills and tropical fauna everywhere. The only thing missing were multiple, large, fast water slides, which is what Tikibad came to specialize in.

However, in August 2010 Tropicana closed its doors. To a lot of people, including myself, this was a pretty big shock. It really was the only pool of its kind in the region, and arguably the Netherlands, and it was located right in the center of a city with 600,000 inhabitants and millions more immediately surrounding it. How is it possible that such a beautiful and unique pool was not able to survive here?

Well, two things: terrible maintenance and major problems with immigrant youths. Although tropical swimming paradises are notoriously expensive to operate (in colder climates), many people seem to think that these maintenance and immigration issues were not entirely unrelated. Already in the early 1990s Tropicana started to get a bad wrap for girls being harassed, molested and even raped by immigrant youths. In a September 1, 1992 article we read:

> "Two 18-year-old girls ... have stated to the police that they have been raped [at Tropicana during an evening party]. Two other girls, a 21-year-old from Amsterdam and a 16-year-old from Diemen, have declared to have been sexually molested.
> "The police ... assumes that also people who belonged to the group of youths [of the alleged perpetrators], must have seen what happened in the water. But no one intervened." [18]

While at least some of the girls were Dutch, newspapers were completely silent about the ethnic background of the perpetrators. The only hint to the ethnic background that is to be found is a comment on Dutch-Moroccan forum Maroc.nl that "one of the perpetrators today is a successful rapper who regularly appears on television." [19] Alleged perpetrator that is, because the two suspected gang rapists were never convicted. [20]

At roughly the same time of this incident, a girl was sexually molested and possibly raped at Tropicana while surrounded by 10 to 15 boys of unknown ethnicity. [21] At least, at the time no ethnicity was mentioned. In a much later 2001 article we read that a Rotterdam judge first heard the term "plowing" at a case at Tropicana in the early 1990s where "a girl was sexually molested by a group of Moroccan boys." [22] It could well be that this is a reference to the same incident. If not, the former still has written "Arab" and "Moroccan" all over it.

In June 1998 Tropicana director Frank Blom acknowledged that every week 3 to 5 youths were banned from the pool and that "in 98 percent of these cases it involves immigrant youths", mainly of Turkish and Moroccan descent. Blom did not go into detail as to what these youths exactly were doing, but said that their behavior towards women was a major issue, including the fact that "scantly clad women are quickly seen as whores." The article also reported various serious incidents with immigrant youths at other Rotterdam swimming pools, including Groenoord and De Wilgenring. [23]

This is just where things started and already back then both government and swimming pools management were downplaying the problem. Overall, not much has been written about Arab terrorism of swimming pools, certainly not in the pre-Pim Fortuyn era that began and ended in 2002. But the Dutch people know exactly what has been going on at swimming pools since the 1980s. I looked around the internet, primarily at comment sections and forum topics on Tropicana, to provide a good sense of what the average Dutch citizen thinks about the situation. A lot of the comments reflect my own experiences, including little details such as banging your head and scraping your back in one of the water slides in Tikibad, or getting sucked under at the end of Tropicana's wildwater rapids. As a young boy and teenager who stopped going to Tropicana by the mid 1990s, I don't have many experiences with gangs of Arab youths here. But obviously I heard plenty of stories from friends over the years who slowly but surely refused to go anymore. While the media prefers to stay silent about it, this immigration problem is also what we find all over internet comment sections and forums. A sample can be found below.

Bokt.nl, Holland's biggest horse-riding forum, February 2012-2013 comments:

> Female 1: "[A pool as Tropicana] that is filthy you can clean up. I do remember a lot of harassment from immigrant youths at the time, but that was pretty much the same in other swimming pools."
> Female 2: "Tikibad is a much better plan. I also really like Tropicana, but you'll go completely crazy there as a girl because of [immigrant] guys who don't care you're with your boyfriend or an adult. They'll still harass you. ... Well, anyway, that was my experience."
> Female 3: "Tropicana, that's where you should go if you want to get sexually assaulted (heard about it just last week again from a friend who was there with her kids)"
> Female 4: "I went to Tropicana years ago, a beautiful swimming pool. Plenty to do (I was only 10-years-old then and we also had some trouble with [immigrant] "staring" men; at one point a man even approached us.)"
> Female 5: "Hmm, I've been to both often [Tikibad and Tropicana], but I have less good experiences at the Tikibad. At Tropicana there's good supervision, and [harassment by immigrants] is not too bad. Tikibad is pretty much known as a place to get sexually molested."
> Female 6: "At the time I had a lot of trouble with boys/men [harassing me at Tropicana]. There was also a lot of stealing going on." [24]

Forum of Viva.nl, a female lifestyle magazine, May 29, 2008 and April 20, 2017:

> Female 7: "[At Tropicana] I almost drowned in the rapids, and was also harassed by "new Dutch" youths [slang for "immigrants"], so they'll never see me back there."
> Female 8: "That is - maybe was - a known problem there. :-(My boyfriend comes from Rotterdam, and in the 90s he went to go swim there sometimes, but after girls from his group were sexually molested there [by immigrants], they haven't gone there anymore. A real shame."

Female 9: "Same experiences here [with dirtiness and immigrant harassment]. When we now want to have a good time swimming, we go to Duinrell [Tikibad]."

Female 10: "That was the case already 20 years ago in Tropicana, there also "new Dutchmen with a migrant background" were waiting in the rapids until girls passed by they could feel up underwater."

Female 11: "In my first post ever on this forum (+/- 15 years ago) I was completely skinned because I posed that that kind of filth (young, large group, certain [ethnic] background] often doesn't go to the swimming pool to swim. Well, that was like cursing in the church. But that simply is the case. Those guys come to riot, provoke and molest. And nobody is doing anything about it."

Female 12: "It is scandalous that the government has allowed this to happen for all these years and that such a swimming pool is trying to keep everything under wraps. I find your reaction really strange [note: this person turns out to have an Indonesian mother], because why is it spreading negativity when real problems are mentioned? As if those problems don't exist or simply disappear if you keep your mouth shut about them."[25]

Forum.viva.nl continued, March 12, 2010:

Female 13: "Brrrr... Just the word "Tropicana" gives me the shivers. I've been there 20 years ago and even then, as a 10-year-old, I was harassed. Once and never again."

Female 14: "It has been years now since I've been there, I thought it was all run down. Many immigrant youths who harass young girls."

Male (unless it's a female Ferrari fan): "That's also what I remember from Tropicana: North-Africans who fight, molest and rape."

Female 15: "My parents already stopped going with us to Tropicana 20 years ago because only riff-raff went there. I don't believe much has changed."

Female 16: "I never think swimming pools are clean, but carefree swimming in Tropicana is impossible. As already said above: lots of immigrant boys who harass girls and women. That used to be the case and unfortunately it still is. I think that in the Tikibad it's not too bad with that riff-raff. That's a better option for you."

> Female 17: "I say: don't go [to Tropicana]! Bleh, dirty swimming pool and indeed [problems] with the [immigrant] riff-raff!" [26]

Dumpert.nl is a Dutch site that caters more to young guys, who generally are more outspoken than girls over controversial issues. The following replies are to an article on Tropicana entitled Rotterdams zwemparadijs Tropicana anno 2015 (Rotterdam swimming paradise anno 2015). The article consists of drone footage of the run-down, abandoned swimming "paradise":

> 171 likes (the most): "The girls were never safe from the many, many Turkish and Moroccan fuckboys who strutted around and couldn't keep their filthy little claws to themselves."

> 74 likes (second most): "Nobody went there anymore because those immigrant babies fancied themselves in a state of impunity and spoiled the swimming pleasure of the fellow-visitors. ... The film clip is a prelude to what is waiting us in the Netherlands. In 10 years you can drone-film a hollowed out and deserted Netherlands."

> 59 likes: "All the fault of the foreigners. Of course I don't mean all of them. Just the Turks, Moroccans, Antilleans, you know it yourself..."

> 58 likes: "It's very tough to look away from the fact... that this place of entertainment had its neck snapped by immigrants. You can jump high or low, but it were the immigrants who were looking for fights, the immigrants who stole everything loose and fixed, and the immigrants who sexually assaulted your daughter."

> 58 likes: "Yeah, you do not want to know the horror stories that made the rounds about Tropicana. As a kid from a village under Rotterdam you never dared to go there. Rapings, thieving..."

> 41 likes: "I was there once in the 90s with my school class and even then it was nothing but trouble. I remember that girls in my class were crying, because they had been grabbed and sexually molested by Moroccan boys in their twenties. Even back then there already was a Moroccan problem in swimming pools. However, it was limited to swimming pools in the big cities. And look how it is today."

28 likes: *"Tropicana was fun until those awesome immigrants discovered it. The ladies weren't safe anymore so everything was closed down. Also fighting and harassment by our pearls of opportunity. 26 likes: "Tropicana? O, you mean Rape Central?"

23 likes: "The deterioration of Tropicana runs so perfectly in line with the deterioration of the Netherlands you'd almost become emotional from it..."

16 likes: "Was there one time. ... What a great day! Apparently a group of farmers was present to teach a lesson to the immigrants, who apparently were raping/molesting our Dutch girls there on a weekly basis. Before I knew it, 6 or 7 bloodied up immigrants were thrown out off Tropicana and for the rest of the day we didn't see a single Mocro/Turk. Perfect!"

7 likes: "As has been said above already 80,000x, it is true that (primarily) due to Moroccan youths this swimming paradise has gone down the drain. I've also been there a lot as young kid. Where it was a real (swimming) paradise in the beginning, more and more it was taken over by the multicultural youth which kept the "normal" people away.

"And those horror stories are accurate, by the way. I myself experienced Moroccan boys breaking a glass bottle and subsequently throwing the fragments in the pool. Or that a parent of a sexually molested girl couldn't get an employee to act and most certainly didn't want to call the police. ... Despite the fact that was a beautiful complex, I do not have really great memories about it."

5 likes: "Indeed, so this is the result of the foreigners in our country. I say, close the borders and let them screw up the vibe in their own country."

24 downvotes (the most and among the very few comments of this type in general): "There have been problems on occasion with immigrants. But what is claimed above here, is highly exaggerated. Was a decent little swimming paradise."

Forum.fok.nl, possibly the largest Dutch youth forum, 2002, 2006, 2009-2010:

Male 1: "I happened to experience something like this (1st year of high school) that a girl was sexually molested, her keys gone, locker emptied... Was in Tropicana, Rotterdam, about 11 years ago [1991] and the perpetrators indeed were Moroccans..."

Female 1: "You should have gone to Tropicana... The to-be-expected type of [immigrant] boys. Always wanted to touch you... Very unpleasant. It happens much more often than parents think."

Female 2: "[To female 1:] I know what you mean. I myself am from Rotterdam. It was known throughout the city that Moroccans and Turks (already in the [late] 1980s) had ruined Tropicana."

Male 2: "I was there on a school trip, about 15 years ago, and even back then there were certain [immigrant] groups of people who were declaring that they "were going to drown everyone with blue eyes!""

Male 3: "Believe I last went there in 2004 or 2005 and even then it sucked. Water slides closed, Moroccans..."

Male 4: "It used to be fun to go to Tropicana, but the last couple of years it mainly was lost glory filled with Moroccans."

Male 5: "It was no more than past glory anyway ... where fellow-natives [slang for "immigrants"] are going to molest Dutch girls now."

Male 6: "You can really have some fun for a number of hours after Tikibad; at the police station, to file a complaint for molestation of your girlfriend by Moroccans."

Male 7: *"Indeed.... I would keep an eye on your girlfriend. Been there about 4 or 5 times and every time again there's that k*n*e* [cancerous] filth."*

Male 8: "I was being drowned by a negro. He flew out of that > [water slide] and then found out he couldn't swim and clamped himself to me. And screaming in English."

> Male 9: "Mind you, I have no racist thoughts and will only start to think differently about people when they start to behave as such. But the Moroccan youths there... Within 20 seconds [of us leaving our girlfriends behind]... a number of Moroccan youths came to them (next to them in the whirlpool). Started to talk to them immediately. ... Reacted neutrally to them every time, but when they continued my girlfriend said she wasn't interested. Immediately the boys took on an aggressive stance. "WHAT?! YOU ARE GOING TO INSULT ME?!" Enfin, the ladies left the whirlpool." [27]

Granted, not every visitor of Tropicana or Tikibad noticed the Moroccan problem. It really depends on the time of day one visited, how often, in what time period, and how many parents and male friends are present. Certainly Friday evenings and school vacations have been timeframes where many incidents have happened. The problem at Tropicana were getting worse and worse as exponentially more immigrants moved to Rotterdam, with native white families fleeing to the suburbs and generally staying away from inner-city swimming pools. Greatly increased security and vandalism costs most likely also contributed to the demise of Tropicana.

How the Tongelreep became the "Tongelrape" by the mid 1990s

Tikibad and Tropicana were/are far from the only places where immigrant youths, and Moroccans in particular, have been causing mayhem for a very long time. Let's translate a number of Dutch articles on the issue without too much summarizing, so that people can read news stories in their full context.

Tongelreep.

Already in the mid 1990s, and similar to Rotterdam swimming pools, the Tongelreep tropical swimming "paradise" in Eindhoven became known as the "Tongelrape", this because it had become a favorite hang-out of immigrant youths, mainly Moroccans, to molest native white girls. In 1997 the Tongelreep began taking elaborate security measures by working with the police, denying entry to troublemakers and installing 17 cameras throughout the complex. According to the Tongelreep management, the number of molestations dropped from 12 to 7 incidents a year. [28] Based on all the stories making the rounds, this seems like an absurdly low number, even this early during the immigration process in a somewhat faraway city as Eindhoven. Many pools have been accused of covering up the true extent of sexual molestations of young girls and the Tongelreep may not have been an exception. Then again, if there are 12 incidents a year, half or two-thirds don't get reported (or lead to arrests, whatever the criteria might be), and every incident of actual molestation is accompanied by a modest 20 incidents involving a threatening or highly uncomfortable atmosphere, the pool would have experienced these incidents daily.

Let's look at some of the experiences of visitors to the Tongelreep and a number of other pools. On July 16, 2003, years after the Tongelreep had proudly implemented its elaborate security measures, a visitor opened a thread on Fok.nl entitled Zwembad de TongelRAPE (Swimming pool the TongelRape):

> Female topic starter: "Today was a great day to go swim... so I thought, let's go to the Tongelreep... [So] I walk to the "yellow" water slide and five minutes later I have finally arrived at the top and to my amazement I see a Turk just physically molesting a Dutch girl. She was waiting for the light to turn green and he put his finger just about in her ass, so she became angry and went down fast. I thought, let's keep my mouth shut, because there are four more Turks right besides him.
> "Fifteen minutes later I walk to the whirlpool and a small boy comes running to the lifeguard crying and starts to point to a boy who would have beaten him (he clearly had a red stripe on his face)... again a Turk/Moroccan. I thought coincidence, so I go on swimming.
> "After an hour it became time to eat. So I stand in the row at the snack bar, all of sudden the bar keeper starts to curse against a boy (Arabic looking) who thought he could skip the line in front of some old people and that in a very physical manner, just push them to the side. ... When we were standing at the snack bar, [also] a group of negro girls were talking to each other at full volume in some kind of African language...
> The fun was really gone [and] I just automatically developed a hatred for Turks/Moroccans."
> Poster 1: "Well, the usual story these days, right? :-|"
> Poster 2: "[So now] they go check those people (Turks/Moroccans) better at the entrance to see if they have/not have an entry denial, more than white people, and then you get "racism!! racism!!" I am absolutely not racist, but also this week in Gulpen I saw a brawl after a tinted fellow-citizen [slang for "immigrant"] tried to conquer the girlfriend of another through physical intimidation."

Poster 3: "Mwah, I had it here at the swimming pool last Sunday. Deep pool was for grown ups to swim, shallow pool for kids or parents with small kids. So Muslim kids jump into the [deep] water... They're removed to the other pool, but start to be belligerent and their dads ... joined the discussions...

"After a whole ruckus those kids back to the other pool... I'm swimming peacefully, all of a sudden one [Muslim] kid jumps into the water right in front of me. He startles me to death and I say: "Do you wanna watch out? You're not supposed to swim here at all, which you were just told." What do I get to hear? "Yeah, what? I do whatever I please. You're not my father." So I say to that father, "Can you please pay attention to your kid? He's not supposed to swim here. You too have just been told that." (I'm polite). So I get cursed at in Arabic and angry looks and those boys laughing. ... Luckily they were removed.

"So, yeah, there also was a white kid that jumped into the water. I said it to him as well. He just gets out immediately and I get a thank you from his grandmother who had come along."

Poster 4: "On the one hand we are open to other cultures ... on the other hand, in my opinion, we tolerate too much violence, criminality, etc."

Poster 5: "I also experienced something like this. We were swimming with a group. All of a sudden a female friend of mine was molested by a Turk/Moroccan (never see the difference). So after a lot of verbal exchanges they were thrown out. Swimming is not a lot of fun anymore after this, so we left. When we were with the exit it turned out they had 50 people or so (I do not exaggerate). Well, I'm not coming out. So called the police... Then they were gone in no time.... They arrested someone, but I don't know for how long."

At this point the thread got hijacked by what appears to have been a government troll who spent all day making the (irrational) case that Dutch posters shouldn't be so "prejudiced". In fact, various (highly-educated) moderators of the Fok.nl forum, which is also infiltrated by employees of national skeptics groups, just happen to be extreme apologists for Third World immigration.

There exist a number of other forum threads on the "Tongelrape" though, many of them filled with Dutch people who experienced similar problems with immigrant youths. Such as the following one from 2005 where Eindhoven citizens were involved in a discussion:

> Poster 1: "a) Half of the people I know and were there [at the Tongelreep] come back with bad stories about the swimming pool/staff itself.... b) a too large portion of them have had trouble with a certain population group [reference to immigrants]... my then-girlfriend has just about been molested there."
> Poster 2: "A while ago (a half year ago or so) I was called by a female friend of mine who asked me to rescue her and a female friend [at the Tongelreep] from a group of Marocs (those guys were 14-15-years-old and that friend of mine is 18). No, great place." [29]

Or comments from 2006:

> Poster 1: "Fucked up swimming pool, way too expensive, dirty, shitbag Moroccans."
> Poster 2: "It has really gone downhill I have to say, but I believe that these days they do go after those horrible Moroccans who ruin everything. ... but I've not been there for years. There always was a fight somewhere and when you looked someone [read: Moroccans] in the eyes for just a little too long, you got cursed at. I don't know if it is so smart to go there."
> Poster 3: "I used to go there with pleasure and we also went every week, but now I refuse to go there. And yes, that is because of those dirtbags [Moroccans] who hang around there nowadays..."
> Poster 4: "Tongelreep sucks. Only fun for underaged girls. It is infested with horny Moroccans by the way who like to grope little girls and who love to beat people a bloody nose because it looks so extreme in a moist environment. But that was already mentioned."
> Poster 5: "Swimming pools are only fun when you are 12 years or younger, or Moroccan. Same goes for fun fairs."
> Poster 6: "Also there [in the Ottenbad] you can find Moroccans and such who can't keep their hands to themselves. Not too long ago I was laying there in the whirlpool and a Moroccan wanted to grab the tits of my girlfriend. Kicked him in the head over it. Swimming pools in Eindhoven: great! Moroccans: bleh! :-(." [30]

Another visitor of the Tongelreep, a mother, replied to a news article in 2006 amidst countless other comments about Moroccans:

> "In the Tongelreep in Eindhoven it has also been problematic for years. Very sad. No oversight. Having a nice swim on a Sunday is something of times past. Already 10 years ago little boys were playing with knives [a clear reference to Moroccan practices] in the whirlpool." [31]

According to a number of regular visitors, the situation had improved drastically by the late 2000s. A key reason for that, apart from cameras and a central blacklist, probably is the fact that the entry fee had risen to 10 euros per person, too much for immigrant teenagers, but at the same same time too much for many native white families as well. Many regular visitors stopped coming as a result and the pool was forced to close down in 2016.

De Meerkamp

De Meerkamp swimming pool.

In 1994 tropical swimming "paradise" De Meerkamp was opened in Amstelveen, a town close to Amsterdam. In no-time the pool was plagued with theft, vandalism and sexual molestation. By the summer of 1997, 77 individuals had been added to a blacklist, "the majority [of] Moroccan descent." [32]

Holland's 100 Sportfondsen swimming pools

A 1998 article about the problems at De Meerkamp also featured Andre Timmerman, deputy director of Sportfondsen Nederland, an organization that operates roughly 100 swimming pools in the Netherlands. He confirmed the same thing has been going on in many other swimming pools, with Moroccans primarily to blame: "[Their own] women are shielded [and] they have no respect for Western women."

Incidents were reported in which 12 and 13-year-old girls were beaten up outside the pool by groups of Turks or Moroccans after the girls had been molested inside and complained about it to pool attendants. Even pool attendants themselves were regularly threatened, with groups of Arabs waiting for them at the parking lot to take revenge for having evicted one of their friends. As usual, no (Dutch) outsiders ever intervened, not even when young girls were beaten up.

To remedy some of these problems, a number of elementary schools dominated by foreign children permanently scrapped all school trips to swimming pools, as too many incidents were happening during these trips. In another move that only masks the symptoms, swimming pools began hiring youth surveillance teams consisting of Moroccans. In various cases these teams were caught stealing equipment and money from the pools who hired them. [33]

Stappegoor

Stappegoor.

In 1995 swimming pool Stappegoor was opened in Tilburg in a neighborhood with a lot of immigrants. Almost immediately the pool became notorious for "physical abuse, molestation, rape in the outdoor pool (dropped for lack of judicial proof), brawls and threats" and 150 visitors were blacklisted within three years. Even with 7 pool attendants overseeing no more than 300 visitors, daily problems could not be prevented. [34]

Countless additional incidents continued to happen over the years. A July 2004 incident involved a 30-year-old asylum seeker "with unknown residency" sexually assaulting a 12-year-old girl. [35] In January 2006 a 14-year-old girl was dragged into a cabin by a 17-year-old of unknown ethnicity and raped. The 17-year-old was quickly released again for lack of evidence. [36] In June 2006 four girls were sexually molested. The accused proclaimed their innocence and the swimming pool decided not to contact the police. A parent disagreed and did call the police, because her daughter had been "held" and "seriously" sexually molested. It didn't matter; the perpetrators were never convicted; their alleged ethnicity never revealed. Suspicions were widespread though. On youth site Fok.nl, for example:

> Poster 1: "Moroccans... unfortunately again."
> Poster 2: "Also with us in Zoetermeer it is usually groups of Moroccans of about 16 who are ruining the great vibe at the swimming pool."
> Poster 3: "Sexual molestations in swimming pools by boys? Here in Rotterdam they are Moroccans or negros 10 out of 10 times. ... since the 1980s. At a certain point we didn't even go to the pool anymore, because Muslim mother send their kids to the pool to wash themselves because they were so dirty. And you don't want to swim in that water."
> Poster 4: "Amazing, this multicultural society! I'm enjoying it every day!"
> Poster 5: "Who isn't? It's just so incredible that we can taste from that temperamentful, open culture."
> Poster 6 (Turkish, the only one making (minor) excuses and (indirectly) fingering trailer park whites): "I myself also hardly come there anymore [at Stappegoor]. It is primarily underaged trailer park boys or obnoxious immigrants (FYI: I myself am Turkish) who walk around there. ... At the wildwater slide it happens the most that these girls are harassed. You often see those dirty guys who grab an ass right when the girls try to slide down. Most don't say anything of it (or even seem to like it) but these girls apparently didn't like it so much."

Poster 7 (female): "It is always the same in that damn pool [Stappegoor]. The worst part is that it is just about the only [fun] pool in Tilburg... Years ago there were boys for some time who were waiting outside on people with baseball bats, etc. There were always fights and you were continually sexually harassed... I was afraid of just about anyone who walked around there. ... It is just so insane that you can't go for a relaxed swim anymore in the Netherlands." [37]

The last replier cited here unfortunately doesn't mention any ethnicities. Based on her other posts, she is quite the swimming pool fanatic. On another occasion she complained about Moroccans at the Tongelreep, but generally she just seems to refer to foreigner molesters as "scum".

Just days before the above June 2006 incident, at the same Stappegoor swimming pool, four boys between the ages of 15 to 17-years-old were arrested here for sexually molesting two girls of 12 and 13-years-old. [38] The only reason this information came out is because of the prominence of the later incident. In all likelihood, plenty of other incidents have taken place at the pool that we have never heard about, as the last two repliers above make plenty clear.

Groenoord and Zwembad Charlois in Rotterdam

Zwembad Charlois: font personal memories.

Earlier the situation at Tropicana was discussed. Other pools in Rotterdam developed the same problems with Moroccans in particular at the same time in the late 1980s and early 1990s. Among them have been Sportfondsenbad Zuid, now renamed Zwembad Charlois, and Groenoord swimming pool in Schiedam immediately to the north-west of Rotterdam.

Zwembad Charlois is where I myself learned to swim for school in the late 1980s and early 1990s and also where I went recreationally on several occasions. This was still several years before the whole neighborhood, and soon the swimming pool, was taken over by immigrants. The following newspaper report is from June 1998, when this change was in full effect:

"[Another] incident happened in the public swimming pool in Charlois (Rotterdam-South) - two girls, of eleven and thirteen years, were harassed by a group of immigrant boys. The girls complained to the pool attendant, who in response removed the boys from the pool. Outside the group of boys waited for the two girls to come out and subsequently beat them to a pulp [with a bike pump]. ...

"Groenoord was a popular open air swimming pool that in some years drew 450,000 visitors. ... Director Van Vugt: "Until recently we had problems with large groups of youths, primarily foreigners, who came from Rotterdam on Friday evenings to Groenoord. They [all] used a municipal discount card to swim for free. ... We sometimes had police in the swimming pool. Because the police had to come too often, we hired security people. ... At the reception we have pictures of the worst trespassers who we don't allow into the pool."

"At the large and popular swimming pool De Wilgenring in the Rotterdam district Schiebroek they have similar experiences. In October 1996 the swimming pool got the first problems with groups of [immigrant] youths. ...

"Van Bersouw of Sara [sexual abuse support network] thinks "intercultural problems" shouldn't be exaggerated." [39]

Groenoord swimming pool.

The "until recently" comment of the director of Groenoord wasn't entirely accurate. In September 2002 four "Rotterdam" guys between the age of 14 and 16 sexually molested a girl at Groenoord. Most likely the kids would have gotten away with that, were it not that when a female staff member tried to intervene, she was hit in the face by them. When a male staffer tried to do the same, he was kicked in the balls. Eventually the police took the kids out. The Algemeen Dagblad quoted the pool manager as saying that "a large part was of Moroccan descent". [40] The Telegraaf added that Turkish kids were also arrested, while the swimming pool in general was being terrorized for some time by a large out-of-control group of youths. [41] Some of the initial reports about this incident, refused to mention the ethnicity of the perpetrators, leading to tons of anger, "speculation", "user experiences" and actual confirmations among readers. A few examples of the several hundred comments on the incident:

Poster 1: "This has nothing to do with generalizing. By now the whole of the Netherlands is sick of those shitbag Moroccans."

Poster 2: "Yep, it were the Moroccans again, my brother was swimming there that day too."

Poster 3 (female): "I myself (unfortunately) was dumb enough to go swim there. ... saw the "boys" myself.. With me too they tried a few things [sexually]... Didn't work. ... So then [they went to] a younger girl.... So they really were not Dutchmen!!! You couldn't even understand them!!! ... I am never going to swim in that swimming pool again, so unfortunate!"

Poster 4: "Completely agree [they must be Moroccans], I know a girl of 14 who was sexually molested in a pool. Guess by what type of people [Moroccans]."

Poster 5: "Moroccans.... 95% certainty. It has happened before, and each time you see:

- they are in a group.
- about 18 years or younger.
- react aggressively to grown-ups.
- think they are always right.

Why? Because Dutch women are whores and you need to fuck those. Isn't it working, then you take one with 6 guys, then you certainly win. Can't remember that a similar group of Dutchmen ever did this... Or does someone know a link to a news report?" [42]

Additional incidents of group molestations happened at Groenoord. In July 2007, six 11 to 14-year-old kids were arrested here for "grabbing butts, breasts and vagina's of girls." The kids were sent to the juvenile court. Ironically, the two youngest perpetrators were forced to participate in a judicial project called "Grab Your Chance". Nationalities weren't mentioned, but the suspicions were as usual. And not just suspicions. Quite a few readers of an article about this case were familiar with the Groenoord pool and its decline due to Muslim immigration. Below some of these repliers are listed, including a number with experiences at other pools:

Poster 1: "Yep, they were foreigners by definition. Most likely Moroccans. Just look at what type of typhus filth always walks over there from the tram station. Only that type of filth."

Poster 2: "I know that pool, and indeed it always are the foreigners who are ruining it..."

Poster 3: "Yes, Groenoord, you could swim there very relaxed just 10 years ago. Now it is infested with foreigners."

Poster 4: "I always swam there with my children, but not anymore the last couple of years. It became increasingly bizarre there with taking mobile phone pictures underneath the doors of the changing cabins [and with] fights. They can't keep their hands to themselves [sexually] and if something is said about it by the pool attendants then they start to intimidate, etc., etc. And I don't have to explain to anyone here which ethnic group is doing this [Moroccans]."

Poster 5: "I have lived for 16 years in Groenoord. Eventually I left because of increasing problems in the neighborhood... I believe there are even more Somalians than Moroccans there. The neighborhood consists of more than 70% non-Dutch."

Poster 6: "It is nothing new. When I went on a school trip in group 8 more than ten years ago to Duinrell and the Tikibad, my [female] schoolmates were already sexually molested by that [Moroccan] folk. Anyhow, it is nowhere to be found in the news, but most here know exactly what the situation is [with the foreigners]..."

Poster 7: "Whenever there are problems at "my" swimming pool (the Mirandabad in A'dam), they are ALWAYS caused by North-Africans. I haven't seen yet an exception to this rule. Typical, isn't it?"

Poster 8: "Of course they don't say they were Moroccans. That's not allowed, then you discriminate... Walked with my girlfriend through the pool one time. And sure enough, within 3 seconds a gang of Moroccans started to whistle, yell, etc. Bunch of uneducated wild monkeys."

Poster 9: "Grab Your Chance, a really nice one for those North African Monkeys."

Poster 13: "Well yeah, that type of behavior has now been going on for 10 years or so in swimming pools. Some people think that when a girl walk in a bikini, that you can do anything with them. It's a Mocro thing by the way. ...

"Until the late 190s it was always fun in swimming pools, then the molestations came and all of sudden there was this atmosphere you now also have at the fun fair, that wannabe tough ghetto behavior. "

Poster 14: "Of course it is those typhus Moroccans again. Typhus folk."

Poster 15: "Even better: a ban on Moroccans in the Netherlands. Believe me, you can't imagine how much better this country would be if we throw out the Morocs. It saves 100s of millions in tax money to sustain this garbage."

Poster 16: "There is a reason why so many "normal" Dutchmen don't go to the swimming pool anymore. Very personally, but if they set up a swimming pool "only for whites" I'll take a annual subscription! And then I'm not talking about skin color, but certainly about culture..."

Poster 17: "When I was here in Rotterdam in elementary school near the end I already didn't go to the swimming pool anymore, because the Muslim parents [sent] their kids to the swimming pool here to wash themselves." [43]

Countless Moroccan swimming pool incidents 2000-2003

In September 2000 Amsterdam swimming pool Sloterparkbad was closed down for more than a year for reconstruction to prevent a group of several dozen Moroccans "to get in without paying, breaking open lockers and intimidate the public and staff." Not a word about sexual molestation, but that pretty much speaks for itself. [44]

Around the same time a 13-year-old impaired Amsterdam girl was threatened and gang-raped by 14 Moroccan boys between the age of 9 and 16. Authorities kept the case quiet to "prevent unrest" and decided to give all group 7 and 8 girls in the neighborhood so-called "resistance-training". [45]

On August 6, 2001 a 14-year-old girl was grabbed at the parking lot of swimming pool Het Zwet in Wormer and raped by three "tinted" guys of about 20-years-old who "spoke an unknown language." [46]

In February 2002 Moroccan and Turkish kids between the ages of 12 to 14 managed to prematurely close down swimming pool Valleibad in Veenendaal in Central-Holland after terrorizing staff and other visitors:

"On Sunday a pool observer grabbed a Moroccan kid by his neck who provokingly emptied a bag of chips on the edge of the pool. His friends immediately alarmed acquaintances and family members. The panicked staff members were forced to seek refuge in dressing rooms and shower cabins.

> "[The] swimming pool staff is desperate... A staff member of the Valleibad is livid [at the mayor]. "I'm not a racist. But, excuse me, those foreign thugs are ruining our swimming pool. Both the police and local town council need to take drastic measures. If not, soon all pool observers will be on sick leave."
> "The situation is so threatening that the police is permanently surveying the complex." [47]

The police came down, "had a good talk" with the underaged boys and let them go again because no "criminal offenses" had taken place. Their parents were informed that they wouldn't be welcome again "for at least six months".

Ede, which neighbors Veenendaal and its troubled swimming pool, also has a huge Moroccan problem since the 1990s. Security cameras had to be installed all over town, residents were advised to avoid the town square on Friday and Saturday evenings unless they wanted to get beat up, and police officers received threatening phone calls from the Moroccan "community". Ede even made the international news when images surfaced of Moroccans prominently celebrating the attack on the Twin Towers. [48]

In August 2002 a group of Moroccan teenagers started a riot at the Floraparkbad swimming pool in North-Amsterdam after staff members tried to address their behavior. One staffer was thrown into the pool and others were peppered with rocks and bottles. Eventually a riot control unit of the police closed down the pool and put an end to disturbances. Floraparkbad explained to be working on an elaborate security system similar to other pools, and really only to keep the Moroccans in check. [49]

In November 2002, there was the following news report about a coalition of dozens of swimming pools in the west of the Netherlands, who experienced enormous problems with immigrant youths:

> "Groups of youths still regularly spoil the pleasure of swimming pool visitors. They implicate themselves in sexual intimidation, verbal and physical violence and vandalism. Of the total number blacklisted, it turns out that more than three-fourth are immigrant youths [who only make up a relatively small number of total visitors], mainly of Moroccan descent. ...
> "To manage the trouble, two years ago the 21 swimming pools in the The Hague region set up uniform house rules. ... Also regions in Leiden, Gouda and Amsterdam participate. "If someone with an entry denial shows up in another pool, he implicates himself in unlawful entry."" [50]

In July 2003 four "Belgian" kids between 13 to 22 were arrested for following three girls into a steam cabin of a Dutch swimming pool in the south of the Netherlands and sexually molesting them until one managed to escape. All four perpetrators were immigrants. [51]

In August 2003 in a swimming pool in North-Amsterdam eight girls reported to staff members that "their breasts, butts and genitalia were fondled" by four boys. Some of the girls were reported to be greatly upset. The subsequent police report doesn't mention the nationalities of the perpetrators, which is only betrayed by the detail that one of the boys kept asking questions to his friends in "Turkish" despite having been told to be quiet by the staff. The boy and his parents actually filed a complaint that this boy had been "grabbed by the chin" in a "rough" and "painful" manner by a police officers, after which the boy "had to cry". The complaint was dismissed. [52]

In August 2003 swimming pool De Fluit in Leidschendam in the west of the Netherlands banned youths below the age of 18 of ALL nationalities - including Dutch - from swimming at the pool before 14:00, this because Moroccan youths had made the pool "unsafe" for other visitors. [53] Some of the comments on the article included:

> Poster 1: "People, I regularly came in that swimming pool, but you don't feel at ease. I was swimming and accidentally hit such a little Moroccan and immediately he came at me with his big brother and his friends. I've also been threatened that a kid would get his big brother and would put a 10mm to my head if I would leave the swimming pool. And a number of girls have been raped and molested in that pool. Yes, by Moroccans...
> "So don't come talking that Dutch people also sometimes do things in that pool, because that is irrelevant in this situation. They are all Moroccans who come in that pool, not just a specific group. They usually come from the Schilderswijk, because they don't have such a nice pool over there or they have all been closed by... make a guess..."
> Poster 2 (certainly female): "It is true, really. I live there and often WENT (and now never again) to de Fluit. It is really horrific how they terrorize you there. Even when you would go swim fully dressed, they would still find a way to sexually molest you. And in any case they keep yelling really nasty things. Even women in a bathing suit are whores.... Those people who say, "Yeah, the Moroccans are always named" ... It really is the Moroccans!!"

Poster 3: "I coincidentally live there. This happens every year. I remember there was a stabbing there a few years ago. And they are always the same type of people [Moroccans].."

Poster 4: "Just ask around: swimming pools in Gouda, Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague all have issues with this kind of terror. At least, that terror is always aimed at girls of Dutch ethnicity..."

Poster 5: "Why are it always Moroccans who cause problems in the swimming pool? It is a reason these days why I evade public pools in larger cities and move to the smaller places."

Poster 6: "I already don't come anymore at most public pools. Those [Moroccan] guys are continually provoking fights. It has all been ruined. The most cowardly aspect I find is that they are never able to resolve their own fights, that they always need 50 'friends' for that."

Poster 7: "Is this news?"

Poster 8: "I believe I have less and less problems with discrimination."

Poster 9: "I think that as a society we are in a permanent downward spiral. If you say "Moroccan community" than it is "generalizing". Say they cause a lot of problems and it is "generalization" and "discrimination". You still want measures to be taken? The 40,000 investigations are set up and again nothing happens..."

Poster 10: "Ridiculous that they refuse all youths, only to avoid the "racism" label. It is very clear in the whole of the Netherlands that groups of Moroccans have been terrorizing swimming pools for quite some time now."

Poster 11: "Gee, how strange... Moroccans in the news every day."

Poster 12: "It is really beginning to look like a real plague..."

Poster 13: "So lately the police is literally standing at the edge of the pool in Leidschendam!! A while ago they were doing ticket checks at the trams with which these guys came to the pool. Because these guys NEVER PAY for tickets, they didn't even reach the pool (De Fluit)!!"

Poster 14: "Ah, it has been trouble at the De Fluit for the past ten/fifteen years. And when it isn't there, then it's the case in Zoetermeer, Duinrell or De Waterman."

> Poster 15: "I live in Lemmer, Friesland and also there since a short time an asylum center can be found. Well, I don't have anything against foreigners ... but also here the same thing is happening: ... profiteering and causing mayhem..."
> Poster 16: "Recently I had a fight with a Moroccan, because he was harassing a female friend of mine. I had no desire to fight - I never do that - but when I said he needed to leave her alone, he all of a sudden tried to punch me in the face!"
> Poster 17: "I say we should arm all pool attendants with tranquilizer guns. Then they can be loaded in and thrown into the North Sea with concrete shoes. They will never be people who contribute to society." [54]

As the listed posts above already indicate, incidents at De Fluit continued. In late September 2007, for example, in an incident of serious pedophilia, three boys/men of 17, 18 and 23-years-old were arrested for sexually molesting an 11-year-old girl while she tried to use the water slide. Unfortunately, the ethnicity of the suspects was kept hidden. [55]

Amsterdam's Mirandabad

Amsterdam's Mirandabad has experienced continuous problems with a large group of Moroccan youths, certainly since 2003. [56] In 2006 a group of Moroccans attacked an ambulance, its paramedics crew and a coincidentally present doctor on the parking lot of this swimming pool, after misbehaving in the pool itself all day. They were not satisfied enough with the aid one of their friends was getting. Attacks on paramedics by Moroccans have happened on other occasions. [57] Earlier we already listed a 2007 comment made by a person to an article about a sexual molestation case by Moroccans at Groenoord swimming pool in Rotterdam:

> "Whenever there are problems at "my" swimming pool (the Mirandabad in A'dam), they are ALWAYS caused by North-Africans. I haven't seen yet an exception to this rule. Typical, isn't it?"

In June 2010 four girls were molested in the whirlpool of the Mirandabad by a group involving "several dozen boys". [58] Nationalities were hidden, but suspicions were widespread. As one westernized Arab female replied:

> "Such nonsense to put this in the newspapers now. That has been happening for at least 20 years in all swimming pools in the whole of the Netherlands. And then primarily by a certain population group [Moroccans]. As a girl in Gouda [known for > its large and very criminal Moroccan group] you only have to stand in front of a stoplight in your summer clothes and you will have your breasts fondled from behind. When you go to the Reeuwijks Lakes as a family for a nice day at the water, you are, as a mother, stared at in the most disgusting ways by hordes of fully-covered beard-monkeys." [59]

Only from later reports can we conclude with near 100 percent certainty that this group at Amsterdam's Mirandabad must have mainly consisted of Moroccans. The situation here continued to escalate until 2013, when an elaborate ID system was implemented:

> "The continued problems forces swimming pools to implement absurd and extreme measures.
> "The De Mirandabad in Amsterdam had enough of it in 2013. For years dozens of mainly Moroccan youths were in charge of the pool. "Girls were being molested in the water slide by large groups of guys from [Amsterdam] New-West. The police had to come in to remove groups of 40 men from the swimming pool. But the next day they would just be back again."
> "These are the words of Paul Slettenhaar (VVD), at the time city district chair in Amsterdam. He spoke with parents, swimming pool managers and police. Underwater cameras were installed. Youth teams from the [ethnic] group, who had to keep the troublemakers in line, were brought in. Nothing worked...
> "This is also confirmed by Petra Haan, who among other places worked at De Mirandabad. "If you as pool attendant took action against those types of pearls, you were cursed at. Because they don't listen to a woman. And when you say that women aren't there to be fondled, they say: 'Why not? They are wearing a bikini. They are whores.'"
> At the swimming pool near de Amstel a special ID was introduced, with photo and name. Since then, without such an ID you are not getting in anymore. .... "The system with the IDs works [for the most part]. The scene in De Mirandabad looked like the situations now described in The Hague['s Zuiderparkbad]. ... I don't understand why such a pass isn't introduced everywhere." [60]

It makes one wonder: if Moroccan mothers and fathers look at western women as "whores", do they allow their children to sexually molest them at swimming pools? It appears this explains part of the problem we have in the Netherlands. The Dutch government, of course, has not carried out any decent studies along these lines.

De Fakkel in Ridderkerk

Interestingly, it's relatively tough to find good articles on Muslim swimming pool terrorism in the Netherlands of the 2004-2016 period. They certainly don't exist to the extent of the 2000-2003 period, or even the 1998-2003 period. There are a few reported incidents, quite a few very serious, but they are not reported as consistently. It's as if the majority of reporting on these type of incidents disappeared with the assassination of Pim Fortuyn in 2002 and the subsequent disintegration of his List Pim Fortuyn (LPF) party over the following year. It's not until after the rise of ISIS, the eruption of the so-called "Muslim Rape Crisis" on New Year's Eve 2015-2016, and the controversy surrounding the election of Donald Trump that newspapers have somewhat regularly given attention again to the issue of sexual molestations at swimming pools by Moroccans and now newer waves of Muslim immigrants. Apparently it became a "hot" issue again.

De Fakkel.

One prominent incident in this underreported 2004-2016 period took place at De Fakkel in Ridderkerk, a town just outside Rotterdam and a swimming pool I myself went to many years ago. In July 2009 "Nineteen girls between twelve and thirteen were [sexually] molested" here in two separate incidents by a total of 10 boys "from Rotterdam". "From Rotterdam"? Really? That's the only description we get from the most prominent article on the subject, located on the Belgian Nieuwsblad.be? Well, Nieuwsblad also includes the following quote from an employee or manager of De Fakkel: "This happens regularly in busy periods, but not to this extent. Apparently kids socialize differently with each other than twenty years ago." Talk about playing it politically correct. The same goes for the implemented measure of De Fakkel: "every contact between swimmers [now] is strictly prohibited." That must have made playing a lot more fun for the kids. [61] See the picture on the right: the girl pushing the boy into the water? Now forbidden!

A little bit of looking around immediately confirms that De Fakkel incident involved 10 Moroccan boys between the ages of 12 to 16. Considering the article in question is one of many not available anymore online at the newspaper's website, let's quote part of it here:

> "In a week time the police has arrested a total of 10 Moroccan youths for sexual molestation in a swimming pool in Ridderkerk. The youngest of them is a 12-years-old boy, the oldest 16. ... Even when police officers were busy taking > statements, another [Moroccan] boy groped someone of the other sex." [62]

The article was, once again, discussed on the Fok.nl forum, but soon descended into useless bickering due to a number of ardent "anti-racism" posters. And as is so often the case, these reports about De Fakkel were followed by a total and complete cover-up article in a major publication. This time HP/De Tijd magazine sent a reporter - a female one - to De Fakkel to report how "idyllic" the pool looks and to compare overexcited white children jumping on an air cushion to Moroccans "pinching girl's butts" underwater. In fact, there may not have been any "sexual molestation" at all, just a little "bothering". When the female pool observer sometimes is treated to invitations as, "Hey sweetie, you also getting into the whirlpool?", the HP/De Tijd reporter forgets to ask if this involves Moroccan kids, as this is only typical - and very much so - for this migrant group. When the pool observer later is banned from talking to the reporter, this apparently is nothing to worry about. A "Mediterranean-looking" and a Turkish man are "charmers" when they go after the reporter while a "white beanpole" dares to spit into the pool. Also, it's totally normal that someone yells in the dressing room, "If you want a real dick, you have to come over here", even more so because a girl "jokingly" replies "I already have that", after which "the whole room is filled with laughter." No remarks on the type of "youngsters" involved, their backgrounds, or who exactly was laughing (swimming pools in general are known for their problematic youths). The tone of the article is just so recognizable and so disgusting. Because of the somewhat schizophrenic approach, one wonders how much of the article the editors changed in the final edition. The article itself even is titled Inside the Safe Fakkel. Just crazy. It even got some of the basic facts about the initial incidents wrong. But move along, people! Nothing to be seen here! [63]

Just how disingenuous this HP/De Tijd article is, can be gleaned from an article in Trouw newspaper in 2017 [64], eight years after the arrests in question at De Fakkel. In it, the manager of De Fakkel acknowledges to have had massive problems with Moroccan and Turkish boys in that time period:

> "It doesn't surprise De Fakkel manager Kuiper that with the problems in The Hague it primarily involves Turks and Moroccans. ... Because in De Fakkel they had similar problems, certainly ten years ago [2007]. At the worst point, some female pool attendants didn't dare to work anymore on Sundays. Especially blond women were unable to do anything about the behavior of the troublemakers, largely of Moroccan descent. These [Moroccans] just completely ignored them. The management decided to only use male staff on Sundays. ...

> "De Fakkel decided to make a pact with the police. ... Cameras recorded what happened... Also biometric entry gates were placed. ... Whoever wanted to enter the pool, had to leave a fingerprint. It was a success. When it became safer, the gates were put in storage."

In other words, the usual counter-terrorism measures were implemented, as was becoming the norm in countless other pools across the country. And only because of one primary reason: Third World immigration, especially from Morocco. Also, despite the later removal of the biometric entry gates (which actually happened in August 2005, with De Fakkel being the first Dutch swimming pool to do so), the problems were far from over.

> "Boundaries are [still] being tested and crossed. Sometimes groups of boys block the wildwater ride, and feel up girls who pass by. Pool attendant Trudy van Brenkelen often sees how a group of boys in the whirlpool goes to sit too closely to girls. ... "Sometimes the girls are quiet, and you see from their expression that they don't like it.""

Even though the article doesn't specify it, this sounds A LOT like Moroccans are still regularly involved in sexual assault at the pool. It's simply not even the slightest bit acceptable in western circles for kids to ambush and gang up girls in order to "feel them up". It's considered sick, depraved and extremely uncool behavior.

When we read on in this article, it appears as if De Fakkel pool attendant Trudy van Brenkelen, when discussing the situation as it gets warm, is describing a scene of The Walking Dead:

> "In the summer months, sometimes an army is walking to the swimming pool from Rotterdam-South. ... Especially that first day, often in June, that it is really warm, it is all men aboard. ... Values and restraints evaporate. Youths are trying to dig underneath the fences or scale over it. Some even walk over the roof to get to the outdoor pool. "They all are in a hurry, they are aggressive. There is no respect for the pool attendant."

While some white youths will undoubtedly try to get in for free by scaling a fence if it is not made too hard, most of what is described here sounds too extreme for white kids. Walking over the roof? Aggressive? No respect? Those aren't whites for the most part, because if their parents are called over 95 percent would be in a world of trouble. Also, whites generally do not walk great distances or in large groups. They are pretty much always on a bicycle. No, walking long distances in large groups - even more so when it involves youths from Rotterdam - is something rather specific to Third World immigrants who so often appear not to be able to afford even the cheapest bicycle.

You see similarly vague Walking Dead episodes in the article:

> "[There has] been a changing mentality among many of the swimming pool visitors. Because no one was allowed in the pool anymore, many people remained on the field in front of the entrance. When the doors of the outdoor pool briefly opened to allow the ambulance in [to help save a young boy], dozens of visitors ran [through the gate and] into the pool. ...
> "Some parents think that they don't have to watch their children anymore when they are in the pool. Verweij: "Then you hear: "Isn't that your job?""

Here are yet more cryptic words, this time from of a 22-year De Fakkel employee:

> "[He] saw society change. Mobile phones undermined security, people were more assertive, and the personnel had to follow more elaborate anti-aggression courses. ...
> "Sometimes grown men walk up to Kuiper. They tell him that he used to throw them out. Then they shake hands... Kuiper: "If you dealt with them respectfully back then, then they now have respect for you.""

Does he mean Turks and Moroccans are in the habit of making pictures of girls in the changing cabins from underneath the doors? As has been reported in other pools? With "people are more assertive", does he mean "Moroccans are way more aggressive"? Is that why he needed extra anti-aggression courses? Because his job requires him to be humiliated by these Moroccan youths on a regular basis, considering he is not allowed to remove them or call the police until they have crossed the line of acceptable behavior by 10 miles?

And what are the ethnic identities of these grown ups approaching him? Why would he have needed to deal respectfully with them, if they weren't? The fact that they were kids means nothing. They didn't deserve respect that that point. And even more important: isn't it the norm that the children of now grown-up Moroccans cause the exact same problems as their parents did? All of it sounds like submissive, corporate whitewash that is coming from this employee's mouth.

In the same article, a 25-year employee of De Fakkel is also interviewed. Without mentioning foreign "elements", she is very candid about the (lack of) safety of the swimming pool these days, maybe a little too candid to her bosses' liking:

> ""I pick out the troublemakers in an instant." When a couple of hours later she hears on her phone, "Sjanie, call the police", she already knows who it involves. ...
> "In the past her daughters would swim at De Fakkel. But if she would have had granddaughters instead of grandsons, they would "never-ever" be allowed to go the the outside pool unsupervised. "Way too dangerous. Or I would have to be with them all the time.""

Let's paraphrase: "Your daughters aren't safe at the pool I'm working at, despite the greatly increased security." It's really amazing that pool attendants aren't allowed to remove troublemakers the second they spot them. It appears they literally can't do anything until a girl has been sexually assaulted (and possibly traumatized), someone has been beaten up, or the verbal abuse simply becomes too extreme. It's a really sad state of affairs. Similarly sad is the fact that young girls can't remain at a swimming pool anymore. What changed? A great increase in predatory white pedophiles? Or something else? A great increase in Third Worlders maybe.

Well, near the end of the article, the communication employee of De Fakkel indirectly explains the latter "theory" to be the real cause:

> "When the people of Ridderkerk say that are too many Rotterdammers in De Fakkel, then they really mean that there are too many foreigners."

Isn't it interesting that until a few months before this ISGP article was written, the situation at De Fakkel, apart from one large 2009 incident, was a closely-guarded secret not discussed anywhere in the media? The only reason the situation at De Fakkel got any media attention is because journalists of Trouw newspaper were doing a study on how to keep a swimming pool safe in this "challenging" era of multiculturalism, this after widely reported problems with Moroccans in The Hague's Zuiderparkbad, a situation that still needs to be discussed. There's every indication that once all swimming pools are locked down with high tech security and an army of security personnel who prevent the worst excesses, the media will go to sleep again.

Luckily, the average visitor rates the pool an 8 and generally finds it safe these days. However, that rating is the result of greatly increased security in terms of technology and on-site security. Structurally nothing has changed with the Moroccan community in the Netherlands. And as the reader can see above, your daughter or granddaughter isn't safe at the pool, certainly not without male company, because of these Moroccans. Of course, Trouw newspaper preferred to walk around that core issue.

De Bercken

In July 2015 the following report appeared about De Bercken, a swimming pool in Reuver, in the east of the Netherlands, a location many Dutch people probably assume is still somewhat free of immigrant molestations:

> "On Saturday in Reuver swimming pool De Bercken has been closed prematurely by the police after a threatening situation emerged. A group of immigrant youths, among other things, would have beaten up and spit on a life guard, and harassed young girls.
> "That's what a life guard at De Bercken, who prefers to keep his name behind for fear of retaliation, says. According to the life guard, the problems began early in the afternoon. "The group first caused the closure of the water slide. Later, for security reasons, we also had to close the diving boards." Subsequently the group kept terrorizing the other guests. A number of underaged girls would have been abused in that.
> "A threatening situation emerged when fathers of the girls decided to take measures into their own hands. That's when the police was called. ... According to bystanders, three persons were later arrested at the parking lot for disturbing the peace." [65]

So many elements of this story are all to recognizable: groups of Moroccan kids are able to act with impunity. Pool attendants aren't able to throw them out for some reason. And the police only arrives when physical violence starts to break out, in this case by white fathers desperately trying to protect their own daughters.

De Octopus

In January 2016 five young girls of 11 to 13-years-old were found crying in swimming pool The Octopus in Leusden, located in Central-Holland. The girls explained to the police that they had been surrounded by a group of older kids who sexually molested them, with one showing them his penis. From the very first second, the swimming pool attempted to cover up the situation:

> "Owner Gerard Onink was unreachable Saturday. Employees of the Leusden pool have been ordered to shut their mouths about the incident. They are only allowed to point to an email address of the spokesperson of building owner SRO. That person is not responding to questions." [66]

Three months later we read:

> "The police [concludes] that no "criminal offence(s)" has/have taken place, also no complaint has been filed [note:

> seemingly discouraged for "lack of evidence", as usual]. This makes it clear that no criminal offence(s) has/have taken place. The police has closed its investigation with this." [67]

Unfortunately, not a word was said anywhere about the ethnicity of the "alleged" perpetrators. The same goes for two similar incidents at the Octopus, one in 2007, and one in 2009. In 2007 "two youths were thrown out of the pool for feeling up young girls underwater." [68] In 2009 an 11-year-old girl recognized members of a group of eight boys who earlier had sexually molested a friend of hers in another pool in nearby Amersfoort. The police came in, but "couldn't determine who of the boys was responsible for the molestation and therefore did not arrest anyone." [69]

Despite the fact that the ethnicities weren't mentioned, the cases are still listed here, because we're talking about a cover up that would probably reveal that swimmers at The Octopus have also been affected by immigrant youths.

De Waterwyck

In February 2016 a 16-year-old "refugee" present in the Netherlands for less than three months sexually molested a 12-year-old Dutch girl in swimming pool De Waterwyck in Steenwijk. [70] Much of the media never reported that this incident involved an immigrant. The usual (generally sarcastic) replies of Dutch people to this news report include the following. These are 8 of about 250:

> Poster 1: "I wonder if this boy maybe hasn't had a [civic integration] course, otherwise this wouldn't be possible."
> Poster 2: "It's the fault of the girl."
> Poster 3: "It really is ridiculous that women in this country are still allowed to go to the swimming pool."

Ottenbad

In mid 2016 alone Eindhoven's Ottenbad blacklisted 10 of a group of about 30 Moroccans who repeatedly caused problems at the swimming pool, including intimidation, harassment, "attempted" sexual molestation of young girls, beating up a life guard and pushing another into the water. The removals only lasted from three months to two years, so one wonders how long it will take for problems to return. The police did not get involved. Instead, a private security company "handled" the problems. [72]

The situation was discussed in the local Eindhoven's Dagblad without the mentioning of ethnicities. Clearly people in Eindhoven weren't as familiar yet with Moroccans as those in various other major cities, looking at the amount of repliers still drinking the government kool-aid that we should be "unbiased" in cases ethnicity isn't mentioned. Still, the comments revealed that problems with Moroccans existed for some time at the Ottenbad, making native Dutch swimmers wonder if they should continue to go the pool:

Female 1: "Seriously, "temporary?? Permanent [ban] I would say. I've seen it before. I always used to love going to the Ottenbad, but now I find my inflatable pool in the garden a better option."

Male 1: "Well, that was about time there [that something is done about it]..."

Male 2: "Saw myself about which type of guys it goes [immigrants]... Starting to get a bit of a societal problem."

Male 3: "Well, I sit there a lot and those really aren't white Dutchmen."

Male 4: "Also mention their ethnicity ED..."

Male 5: "Very bad that no charges are filed. Violence. Sexual molestation. Those really are criminal offenses."

Male 6: "Why temporary? Just ban for life." [73]

The Ottenbad hasn't been discussed much online. It has always been considered a small, boring pool. But also one that wasn't as plagued by Moroccans as the much more popular Tongelreep/Tongelrape, similarly located in Eindhoven. For example, in mid 2003 a girl wrote on a forum:

> "That's why I prefer to go to the Ottenbad [instead of the Tongelreep]. There you don't hear, "Yo girl, you and me going to make out in the whirlpool?" I know it should be "het" whirlpool [instead of "de", a common mistake of Turks and Moroccans - but in English it is always "the"]." [74]

The situation with the Ottenbad apparently began to change over the years due to continued immigration and many problematic Moroccans being banned from the Tongelreep. In 2006 a person wrote on a forum:

> "So there [in the Ottenbad] you can find Moroccans and such who can't keep their hands to themselves. Not too long ago I was laying there in the whirlpool and a Moroccan wanted to grab the tits of my girlfriend. Kicked him in the head over it. Swimming pools in Eindhoven: great! Moroccans: bleh! :-(." [75]

In 2014 a minor riot erupted at the Ottenbad when a pool attendant pointed out to a Muslim woman that from now on she will have to appear in a swimsuit if she wants to keep watch over her children at the pool. It appears the Ottenbad introduced this rule, because Dutch visitors were getting uncomfortable with the number of Muslim women keeping their clothes on at the pool. [76] The fact is that this practice of not allowing ordinary clothes in an inside pool area beyond the locker rooms (not an outside pool surrounded by grass and such) has always been perfectly normal in the Netherlands.

There may not be much information available about the Ottenbad, but it most certainly appears as if the situation at the pool has slowly been deteriorating from about 2005 and got really bad around 2014-2015.

De Kwakel

In August 2016 a father made the news who, at Utrecht's De Kwakel swimming pool, spotted three Moroccans of about 15-years-old surround a 12-year-old girl and "asked" if they could touch her breasts. A little while later he heard a girl of about 10-years-old yell to a roughly 14-year-old Moroccan with similar intent, "Don't! I don't want that!" This father was actually very politically correct, warned that these kids might become "radicalized" if they are not "corrected", and claimed to have even participated in demonstrations against racism. The picture he painted of the pool is very familiar:

> "I saw about thirty adolescent [Moroccan] boys who dominated the large recreational bath and the outside area. Furthermore there were many small children and very few parents who protect their children against these little thugs. Take your responsibility and help conduct the social control. Those kids need to be opposed."

Obviously, as all other swimming pools, anti-discrimination laws prevented De Kwakel from taking truly effective measures. So the board had discussions with the father "to see what other measures could be taken to address "deviant behavior"". They came up with the "wonderful" idea of scrapping the age-old rule of not allowing anyone into the pool area who isn't wearing swimming clothes [77], with that opening the doors to Moroccan mothers to "brighten up" the pool with their head scarfs and thick, black overcoats to come watch their kids they fail to raise at home.

In a subsequent news report on May 8 we learn that the father's cry for action received "a lot of support [from] both Dutch and Moroccan fathers" and also that a total of 17 previous incidents took place this year at De Kwakel, mainly with Moroccan kids. [78] In reality, just by going from the father's description of the atmosphere at the pool and the two incidents he personally witnessed in such a short time span, there must have been tons of additional incidents that went unreported.

The Hague's Zuiderparkbad anno 2017

In April 2017 personnel of the The Hague-based Zuiderparkbad sent an anonymous emergency letter to local newspapers that the situation at their swimming pool had gotten completely out of hand:

> "Young women are molested "weekly"; employees are "bombarded with stones". Every month "thousands of euros" worth of material is wrecked and visitors who say something about it are "heavily abused physically". ...
> According to the senders, the situation in the pool is untenable: groups of boys, mainly of Turkish or Moroccan descent, would cause enormous problems. The anonymous employees feel they're operating in a "war zone". ...
> "[In another example:] Last year in the Ottenbad in Eindhoven a life guard was hit in the face by a group of boys, and a second one was thrown into the water. ... And the May vacation before that [thus 2014] it went wrong in the Mirandabad in Amsterdam: brawls and cursing at the personnel. ...
> "For insulting the personnel someone, for example, can receive a swimming pool ban for a maximum of fourteen days, but the police is not called in that case. With discrimination the police has to be brought in..." [79]

The last paragraph has been added because it immediately reveals how these type of incidents continue to happen. Once the immigrant kids figure out the maximum penalty is a two weeks ban, they are going to taunt and insult attendants and life guards until they either quit or commit suicide. When thrown out - finally - these kids only get "status" among their peers and will be back by the third week to taunt and insult pool staff and other guests. It's a total joke and certainly a privately-owned pool should have the ability to ban trespassers indefinitely. I personally never received a serious warning from any pool attendant (apart from "don't climb there" or "don't sit there") and I don't know anybody who really has. If I would ignore an observer, stick out my middle finger and tell him to fuck off, I would expect to be banned for at least a year; probably two or three. But what these immigrant kids are doing is far worse - and for some reason they aren't banned for more than two weeks. Yet, when one person in that pool states the obvious by using a curse word followed by a nationality or cultural group, the police has to be brought it. These immigrants will also exploit something like this to high heaven. It's really bizarre.

PowNed! reporter at the Zuiderparkbad in April 2017, before being kicked out. Looks less appealing than the swimming pool crowds pictured in previous sections.

From other news reports we learn that more than a few white girls have been molested in this pool, with observers actually not doing anything about it, not even when girls walk up to them with bloody noses. [80] When PowNed, a type of new, somewhat anti-establishment media, went to do an interview with a director of this pool, this individual didn't want to comment at all. Eventually, after a large amount of pressure by the somewhat sarcastic reporter - "Girls are being molested here. I have never heard that girls are molested in a swimming pool."- the director stated that "he couldn't find himself" in the various accusations of sexual assault. Subsequently the reporter walks into the pool, filled to the brim with Moroccan boys only, but is thrown out by a group attendants. A representative of the pool he is supposed to talk to refuses to show up. [81] Nobody wants to talk to the reporter while the mainstream media refuses to do any interviews altogether. What does this tell us? It tells us there's a top-down conspiracy of silence in place to prevent any damage to the Third World immigration plans the superclass and government have put in place.

The student-oriented Dutch news website Geenstijl also reported on the situation in The Hague's Zuiderparkbad. The article featured 292 replies, all but three posters or so exhibiting an extreme dislike of raping Moroccans and government policy. I selected 45 for translation, which, together, provide us with many different elements of what the average person thinks of Moroccans, government policy, and what they would like to do with both of them.

Poster 1: "I do regret saying this [but] I haven't gone swimming for years at this point due to this problem. My experience in the local pool: grown men (Turks, Moroccans, etc.) who are sitting on the edge of the swimming pool, don't even go into the water, and are staring at the half-naked girls and women. Or they come stand right besides you in the shower, scanning your body.

"They are even getting themselves off on girls of twelve, thirteen years old. The staff did nothing about it. [And there was] anti-social behavior in the pool. All rules were ignored."

Poster 2: "In [my] swimming pool it always were the non-Western immigrant men who were obnoxious. Also in the streets, apart from the occasional exception. In my own neighborhood I have had lots of trouble with Moroccan boys: groping at intimate places, for example when you are walking out of the supermarket with your hands full of groceries. Boys of sometimes just 10-years-old, encouraged (or in learning) by their older brothers and cousins who are watching from a distance."

Poster 3: "The cesspit will open; the authorities have kept everything covered up; the politically correct clique really has to be deeply, deeply ashamed and in my opinion really has to be prosecuted for suppressing these problems. Tons of people who just wanted to go for a swim have suffered [psychological] damage because of this. The whole of society is being damaged long-term by this filth, not the least through the Stork Pass [Ooievaarspas, which allows low-income families to swim for virtually free]."

Poster 4: "Not only in swimming pools there are excesses. Also in Plopsa Land Hasselt this Easter Vacation I was confronted with immigrant scoundrels... [goes on to explain how 8 and 9-year-old Moroccan kids were skipping lines and pushing elders who complained] ... Something like that, of course, is being facilitated and financed [by the government through special passes for low income families]. I, on the other hand, had to pay for my daughter and partner 60 euros to get in. [And] we are all "super-racist" because we don't allow them to skip the line and because they are "foreigner""

Poster 5: "What is going on at the Zuiderpark swimming pool literally is going on in all swimming pools in the large cities. Many swimming pools have been closed due to this misconduct and in other pools simply no native white swimmers come anymore."

Poster 6: "I myself have four flowering daughters, so I am well read-in on their princely behavior. Swimming pools are a big no-no except the Zuiderbad before 9 o'clock in the morning. And everything outside the city ring.

Poster 7: "Islama-Bad."

Poster 8: "These people are similar to the eight plague. Good night, Holland."

Poster 9: "Has been going on for years. Nobody who does anything about it. The native population hasn't been visiting for years."

Poster 10: "Dirty, filthy sewer people is what they are."

Poster 11: "Nice story, but what is being done about it????? In the past you were just arrested, but then many prisons would have to be reopened."

Poster 12: "But simply asking if you want more or less Moroccans [like Geert Wilders did] and you're standing in front of the judge."

Poster 13: "Why would you go swim in a pool where men's backs release more hairs than Chewbacca's chin."

Poster 14: "This is what happens when you import ignorance. The majority of the Dutch people still are behind this choice. Less rational politicians also. Those think this is a very complex problem, with very tough solutions."

Poster 15: "I'm not even going to react to it anymore.... This is what the Dutch want, judging by the latest elections."

Poster 16: "There will probably be a professor from Tilburg who can explain this. Namely that it is the fault of the staff, the non-immigrant citizens of The Hague and, after all, everyone who doesn't misbehave in swimming pools."

Poster 17: "Meanwhile in Putten a young girl is dragged off her bicycle by a lightly-tinted idiot, but is just able to flee. And in Kampen a girl is dragged off her bicycle by a Sudanese from an asylum center who beats, rapes and tries to strangle her and eventually holds her underwater until he thinks she is dead, but luckily she is still alive. Only white infidels, because their only people they leave alone."

Poster 18: "Entirely correct. I know the the Mirandabad from the past. Has been going on for decennia and no one does anything about it. ... Too bizarre for words."

Poster 19: "Fake news, because our fellow-citizens [slang for

"immigrants"] don't do these kinds of things. And there's nothing at Joop.nl [an extreme-left publication of the Dutch government] I will gladly walk around that pool hand-in-hand with my gay friend."

Poster 20: "Those guys are laughing themselves silly about those weak-ass leftist Dutch politicians and the police..."

Poster 21: "Nonsense. Muslims can't swim."

Poster 22: "I read nothing that surprises me. That's how it goes everywhere. We let those damn people in and we should be violently showing it the door now.."

Poster 23: "I want to moan about this... or post the umpteenth "gee" ... but I'm not in the mood for that anymore... We are doomed..."

Poster 24: "We should have seen this coming 30 years ago and still people do not want to see or acknowledged this... tired."

Poster 25: "When for God's sake are we allowed to be our own boss again in this country? This has been going on for 17 years. ... But now, weak-ass talk and negotiating and slowly giving away your country to the first and the best barfing hyenas."

Poster 26: "For immigrant youths with a big mouth the sky is the limit. For a native Dutch a justified remark about this is, is to be damned to the racist corner."

Poster 27: "Women are nags. Two-third of Green-Left voters were middle and highly-educated women who voted for Jesse Klaver. So now they shouldn't complain that they can't go safely anymore to the swimming pool."

Poster 28: "And it really is just so simple: a complete ban for Muslims from movie theaters, events and swimming pools. They only have to thank themselves for it."

Poster 29: "We have gone completely nuts here in the Netherlands. After a game show with Klaas the Hobbit and a super-cheerful little film about carnival of Marketing Rutte [reference to the reelected prime minister Mark Rutte] a large part again votes for the VVD without any shame. I am going to state here without disclaimer that we have become a weak, evasive, conformist-to-the-bone shit folk. We willingly are passionless slaves who are happy as long as SBS6 [entertainment station] runs on all cylinders and when we get enough likes for our fake digital lives. We are dead in the water, and I'm fine with it. I have no desire anymore to defend this hopeless garbage dump anymore."

Poster 30: "They just have to ban Muslims or separate Muslims and non-Muslims. Then they can molest their own people."

Poster 31: "Signs have to be erected in this country that read "Prohibited for Muslims". There are more than enough reasons for it."

Poster 32: "The Netherlands is addicted to pain-free conformism."

Poster 33: "Someone here ever went with the train from Amsterdam to [beach town] Bloemendaal on a nice summer's day? Tip, don't do it [due to swarms of Moroccan youths going there]. Get in your car and go to a little creek in the middle of nowhere. Better."

Poster 34: "Yes people, this is all part of integration. Those desert rats can't change so fast. Just have a little patience and compassion. [cough]"

Poster 35: "But of course we can't say or do anything. because that is discrimination. ... Cover everything with a blanket of love."

Poster 36: "What is one white man to do against 30 friendly kids of 12? These thugs have no decency, and will not obey any of the white men, in part because of their Islamic background. And this white man isn't even allowed to touch the kids, let alone hand out a correcting slap. That is only allowed by the father or the Imam."

Poster 37: "When I read these type of articles I always get the urge to bring together a group of people with similar thought and take on that scum. Then again, playing your own judge, right [is going to get you in trouble]?"

Poster 38: "Why am I reminded here of a nature documentary with hyenas in it? As opportunistic as the plague and only operate in groups. All with the same purpose: grab what you can grab."

Poster 39: "I am not afraid for anyone, but primarily fear the results of harsh measures. Beat one up in Walibi. The one who is going to get into trouble is you. So you just suck it up."

Poster 40: "That is the biggest problem: we have everything to lose. A job, family, home, you name it. To that scum a criminal record is like a medal of honor."

Poster 41: "You beat a couple of them up [in the swimming pool], the police arrives and if you are unlucky you are the one who gets to come with them. ... [Or] as soon as you get out, it is 5 to one, possibly armed. Tons of North Africans are notorious for pulling knives over nothing and they help each other in large numbers. ... It is fine, I defend my loved ones and for the rest it can all go to hell."

Poster 42: "If GreenLeft is joining the government we are going to see even crazier things... Without a civil war this is not going to be corrected anymore."

Poster 43: "Much too soft. You seldom see Dutch people stick up for each other."

Poster 44: "The best thing you can do for your kids is to certainly leave the Netherlands (choose a wise destination!) The taxes already are extremely high, but will only increase to prevent the disintegration of society. All that is money you can't give to yourself and your kids."

Poster 45: "Marco the street cop would love to shoot them. But he has a boss who, to get higher up, votes D66. And the boss above him - who never sees the street - also of course votes D66. So if Marco ever wants to receive another stripe he is never going to take action against those thugs in a swimming pool. Now, he saves that for "speeders" and for other native white "criminals". You don't run any risk with that and his wonderful bosses are twice as happy with it!" [82]

On July 1, 2017 a 23-year-old "The Haguer" was arrested after sexually assaulting an underage girl at this very same Zuiderparkbad. While the ethnicity of the perpetrator was kept secret, it was reported that "in the period from January 2015 until April 2017 48 incidents of a similar nature have been registered with the police." And those were the complaints who actually made it to the police. It appears the pool had so many incidents because it had not yet installed camera and ID card systems, which became the norm in the mid to late 1990s when in response to the Moroccan terrorism. In response to this incident, the pool was announced that these systems were going to put in place in the near future. [83]

More pool incidents

In late April 2017 the police removed five of 15 to 17-year-old youths from swimming pool Holenweg in Hoorn. Outside, the group refused to go home, started cursing out the police with "cancer this, cancer that" and became physically violent when the police began arresting them. Nationalities weren't mentioned anywhere, but only Moroccans would behave in this manner. The prosecutor allowed the group to go home without any charges the next day, because they "had been punished enough", as they had been "hit with batons by the police and had to spent a night in jail." Police officers were greatly frustrated with the decision. [84]

In May 2017 a certain ethnic group caused problems at the Wolfslaar swimming pool in Breda. Fireworks were ignited in the dressing rooms, a "grim atmosphere" emerged, fights broke out, and one girl was grabbed by her throat, probably because she complained about something. The police made three arrests. A local newspaper refused to publish the ethnic background of the perpetrators and blamed the situation on "hot weather", but a parent who was at the pool at the time of the incident commented "that this group of underaged [boys] of a certain background (yes, unfortunately that again is the case [Moroccans]) ruin it for everyone. Nobody dares to say something because those guys think it's normal to walk around with knives and such." [85]

PART II

Dutch beach towns terrorized by Moroccan youths

Issues with immigrant youths, mainly Moroccans, are not exactly limited to swimming pools. In one of the above comments the beach town Bloemendaal was mentioned as a problem area where countless Moroccan troublemakers from Amsterdam go to in summer. The same is true for Zandvoort, a town located immediately to the south and an even more popular beach town. Already in 2001 the following news report emerged in Telegraaf newspaper:

> "Last week the police arrested a total of 33 mainly Moroccan youths from Amsterdam-West in beach town Zandvoort for among other things causing major civil unrest and committing thefts and abuses. On top of that, seven of them implicated themselves in group molestations in a train back to their home town. ... Four young women ... explained they had been sexually molested by multiple [Moroccan] boys in the train. ... Also at the train station of the beach town there were disturbances. On top of that [another] robbery took place [here]. ...
> "The problems with groups of lanky Amsterdam youths also took place last year in the beach town. On beach days they travel en masse to the beach town to elicit fights and intimidate visitors of the beach. In this last sunshine-filled weekend the police estimated the number of Amsterdam > troublemakers at about hundred to hundred-and-fifty. ...

> [Examples of Moroccans committing crimes ALL over Zandvoort] ... One of the victims [of a robbery], a 22-year-old woman, was kicked in her stomach in the process and to be taken to hospital." [86]

Two years later, in 2003, the situation hadn't changed:

> "The gathered beach establishment holders in Zandvoort are completely fed up with the situation: the local authorities now finally need to take drastic measures against groups of Moroccan youths from Amsterdam. Those have been terrorizing the catering industry and bathing guests for years and the situation is getting out of hand more and more. ...
> "The emergency meeting this morning follows a string a new incidents, after Moroccan youths last year also repeatedly caused problems.
> "In early June a 22-year-old women was sexually molested in a train from Zandvoort to Amsterdam by a group of fifteen Moroccan youths. Earlier they had harassed and insulted bathing guests in Zandvoort.
> "Last week a group of 12 Moroccans boys were looking for a fight in the Zandvoort beach place Far Out. They were chased out by the owners. One of the youths would have shouted: "I will kill you!" and "You will die!"
> "Sunday the group came to take revenge, with the same terms. One of the owners pulled out a fake pistol as a result, and was able to chase them from his establishment. Subsequently he was arrested by the police for making threats with a firearm; the court in Haarlem extended his arrest yesterday with ten days." [87]

Wherever this news report was posted, comment sections looked very familiar. At Fok.nl the comments included:

> Poster 1: "And if you say anything about, you discriminate..."
> Poster 2: "Things are starting to get out of hand [with Moroccans] - and I'm not just talking about the beach or the swimming pool."
> Poster 3: "Oh no ... there we go again [with this investigative committee] ... first there are these discussion groups and investigations to eventually determine that it is not going well there at all. Just deal with it, HARD... GTFO... just behave... Jesus."

Poster 4: "Arrest them all and back to Morocco with them. Even if they weren't born there. Obviously the parents go along with them and potential social security is cut. ... Maybe then they'll be harshly corrected at home."

Poster 5: "Fuck man, how pathetic are these little assholes? Just get out... go mess up your own country."

Poster 6: "This is what they call "integration" in The Hague [the government]."

Poster 7: "Time they are REALLY going to do something about it. This really can't continue like this. They are ruining our whole society."

Poster 8: "Disgusting that that beach club owner is still locked up!"

Poster 9: "First causing mayhem at swimming pools and now here again. As beach club owner you're trying to get those guys out, but you yourself are arrested and those guys are walking free. ... Discrimination" will then be said [if they take measures]."

Poster 10: "I see large riots emerge here in the Netherlands at some point. ... You behave, or you leave the country."

Poster 11: "This has been the third time! (today) It really is no "incident" anymore that these Moroccans are causing mayhem!!! We are going to walk a protest march through ALL of the Netherlands and we do not wish to see one Moroccan!"

Poster 12: "They have to implement a policy for misconduct/criminal Moroccans. An eviction policy... 1st time a yellow card, 2nd time you're evicted."

Poster 13: "Really, fuck off with those guys. If we would behave like this in Morocco we would end up in jail. But no, in the Netherlands, where they are guests, everything is allowed. Really, 1x time in touch with the police, write down their name and final warning, 2nd time, a one-way ticket to Morocco!!!"

Poster 14: "The chief Moroccan here has already said that Europeans are lower than pigs and dogs, so why are they even here??? I am totally sick of those guys!!! And every time Dutch people who dare to do something about it are LOCKED UP!!!

> Poster 15: "I am getting completely and totally sick of those guys. ... we have to throw out every trespasser out of the country. Let's see how fast they all of a sudden can behave. ... Those weak measures of the government, justice and police are ruining our country. In 10 years the country is looking black with Moroccans, and then we can't do anything about it anymore, because they have just as much to say as us. I know that by that time I have long left, for all I care to some country with a super-extreme right wing head of state where they do know how to handle this type of business."
> Poster 16: "I'm afraid that you are not the only one, American Nightmare. There already is a trend among the higher educated to leave the country or preparing themselves for it. ... And try to disagree with them. ... Things are just going wrong here."
> Poster 17: "I cannot understand why there are still some of those Moroccan-huggers here, those guys have ruined things with me with their anti-social fucked up behavior for a long time now."
> Poster 18: "Mmmm, always the same guys, can't they throw these guys out of the country..."
> Poster 19: "I think civilians need to take measures into their own hands. Maybe a number of serious riots will wake up politicians in The Hague."
> Poster 20: "And the same record is spun: a crime is committed by our tinted fellow-citizen and we're completely beating around the bush and trying to talk straight what is bent." [88]

These comments are to be found on just the first 1.5 page of a 10 page reply thread. And then there are other locations on the net with an almost similar amount of comments, the majority of them reflecting the above opinions. A few Moroccan posters are trying to stick up for their people with always a number of bizarre, politically correct, left-wing posters with way too much time on their hands trying to correct all these comments, but what we can say with certainty is that native Dutch people:

> a) have been fully aware of the problems with Arab immigrants for a very long time;
> b) have been fed up with Arab immigration for an equal amount of time.

Not that it really matters. Arab immigration without integration, including Moroccan, has continued unhindered over the years. In 2011 the owner of the Thalassa beach restaurant in Zandvoort openly called for a fight group against Moroccans, complaining:

> "They are provoking to the extreme, throwing with sand, harass women. They don't give a shit about anything. You are constantly on edge. They are laying on the beds without paying. If you send them away, they are back in no time." [89]

Local police handled the complaints by blaming the situation on "warm weather": "On every warm day people get irritated. This is similar to problems with young public in nightlife." [90] Quite incredible. PowNed! send a reporter to the beach to interview a number of beach establishment owners. Two explained that sometimes there are problems when large groups of Moroccans come by, but these groups only come by incidentally. They were clearly poo-pooing the situation for fear of retaliation, which fits with a statement in a major newspaper that "witnesses are afraid to testify." [91] These beach establishment owners also hired special security teams, which in the past weren't necessary. Only one beach restaurant owner spoke out strongly against the Moroccan problem, angry as he was at the manner at which they verbally abuse young girls, even in the presence of their parents. [92]

Similar to Zandvoort, the super-popular Scheveningen beach boulevard in The Hague has also experiencing problems. The following report dates back to 2009:

> "Owners of Scheveningen beach establishments are complaining loudly that the police is taking far too little measures against Moroccan and Antillean youths, who annually infest the boulevard as soon as the weather becomes pleasant. ...
> "At the Scheveningen beach place 'Zo in het Zand' about 20 Moroccan troublemakers jumped onto the bouncing castle on his terrace. At that moment a large number of small children were playing there, who cryingly sought refuge with their intimidated parents. According to owner Kees Kortekaas, who claims to have been threatened with death, the police didn't show up when he asked for help to the Scheveningen bureau. "I was told that maybe I should just close my establishment if those Moroccans bothered me," he indignantly says. ...
> "If we don't do it now, this summer things will escalate completely," Hoonhout says about the troublemakers who race over the boulevard in open cabrios or purposely kick footballs against members of the public." [93]

Again we have the familiar issue of the police not taking effective action, most likely because they know it's of no use. As a result, problems remained the same over the years. In 2016 beach establishment owners at Scheveningen explained the situation as follows:

> Blue Lagoon owner Lindsey Ludovici: "We are here at the location where the [Moroccan] youths reside these days. As you can see, sort of benches have been made where people can sit nicely. Water pipe in hand, a bag of sunflower seeds, and then it is yelling and cursing at the [massive amount of] people who pass by.
> "It's "Pssst, hey girl, hey girl." Or our personnel when it doesn't arrive fast enough to their liking - you get one after the other "c" ["cancer", mainly "cancer whore" and "cancer dick"] to your head.
> "Eh, yes, I think I can say that? Er, they are the Moroccans. ... Lying here on scooters. As a true Scheveninger, it brings you to tears."
> Waiter Nabil El Ghoulbzouri: "If it is above 20°C it's just like ants crawling to the surface. They all start hanging out there, all harassing the young ladies, and very aggressively drinking alcohol, which they absolutely cannot handle. They then start to fight with each other. They refuse to allow elderly women to pass through.
> "We also have major problems with them on the terrace. The ladies are threatened continually. And when we explain that a particular table has been reserved, then they specifically want to sit at that table that has been reserved." [94]

According to these individuals, still nothing was done about the problem by the police. If the police actually bothered to show up, they always arrived too late, possibly on purpose to prevent having to deal with stressful situations they can't do anything about.

Moroccan violence at fun fairs, amusement parks, movie theaters, clubs, malls, trains

It seems rather obvious that when Dutch Moroccan youths terrorize swimming pools and beach resorts, that they terrorize just about everything else. That's absolutely true. They have been causing mayhem everywhere. And the Dutch have known that all too well. Despite the fact that newspapers generally tow the "multiculture" propaganda line, with some regularity articles slip through that expose the problem. Here is an article in the Volkskrant from June 7, 2001, back in the innocent pre-9/11 days:

> "The problem is that a too large group of troublemakers is ruining the atmosphere at school, movie theaters, the > swimming pool and on the streets. That many take a d-tour when they see a group of eMMTjes (Moroccans) approach at Hoog Catharijne (shopping mall) is not racism, but common sense. Why would you allow yourself to be cursed out by a group of fellow-citizens [note: slang for "immigrants"] who lack even the most basic respect for their fellow humans?" [95]

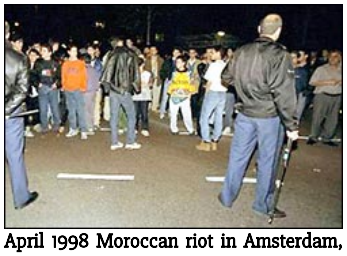
Let's take a look at just a FEW random locations where Moroccans cause enormous problems in the Netherlands.



April 1998 Moroccan riot in Amsterdam, one of the first of its kind.

How about neighborhoods in many Dutch cities? Already in April 1998 hundreds of Moroccans clashed with the police in West-Amsterdam after three Moroccan youths were picked up on suspicions of arson. Groups of Moroccan youths always are in touch with each other. The second one group runs into problems, they just start calling their friends, cousins, brothers and fathers who invariably help fight whatever obstacle they are facing, including the police. And thus police cars and police officers were peppered with rocks. [96]

Later in 1998, in December, roughly a hundred Moroccan youths started throwing in windows after the arrest of two of their friends. They blamed racial profiling. In the exact same period Moroccans were throwing stones at the American Consulate in Central-Amsterdam, shouting "Clinton murderer! Allah Akhbar!" in protest of American airstrikes on Iraq. [97]

In 2006-2007 Moroccans from the West of the country moved to Maastricht in the south-east of the Netherlands. In no time reports began to surface from Central-Maastricht in particular of intimidation, violence, drug trade, and speeding cars. On the highways Moroccans endangered other drivers when trying to escape from police or while trying to stop competitors or clients. [98]

The worst place in the Netherlands when it comes to Moroccan terrorism is Gouda; it has the highest percentage of Moroccans anywhere. In June 2002, Elsevier magazine reported:

> ""In ten years, we are the boss here", the Moroccan kids are saying in Gouda. "And then we are going to throw out that cancer queen [of yours] as well." They spit on the ground. In Gouda a tribal war is going on. It is a conflict that has been denied for years. ...
> "The people in Gouda feel intimidated. Elders hardly dare to leave their homes anymore. [Moroccans] intimidate by-passers, throw in windows and make noise until deep into > the night. Locals who dare to complain, are being intimidated. Dogs are pelted with stones. ... [This woman] never says anything to Moroccans in front of her door. "Then they immediately throw a stone through my window.""

> "Also the police is threatened. "We know where your kids sit at school," they say as a cop is addressing their misconduct. ... When [Antoon] Wassenaar [of civil services Gouda] is driving around [Gouda] with the Elsevier photographer, his car is blocked in by three cars filled with Moroccans. ...
> "Other cities as well know the problem of groups of young immigrants who terrorize the streets. ... Minister of integration and large city policy Roger van Boxtel (D66) recently picked sixteen municipalities who can count on additional support for immigrant misconduct. Besides Gouda these are Alkmaar, Almere, Amersfoort, Capelle aan den IJssel, Delft, Hoorn, Lelystad, Nieuwegein, Purmerend, Roosendaal, Spijkenisse, Vlaardingen, Zaanstad and Zoetermeer." [99]

The month before, in May 2002, Dutch crime magazine Panorama also did a special on Moroccan youth crime in Gouda. Cases mentioned in the article include a man who got his head caved with a tile for shutting the tail gate of car that was blasting music all night. A 40-year-old woman was chased down and had her jaw broken for no reason. Church goers and their family members are cursed out. When they react by handing out a beating, one of the church goers is prosecuted by the Justice Department. A man's dog is kicked so hard by two Moroccan youths driving by on a scooter that the animal breaks his hip. The owner has virtually no money to pay for the operation. The local children's fun fair is closed down before it even opens after threats it will be burned to the ground. All this is done by Moroccan youth gangs who, again, openly proclaim to be taking over the neighborhood from whites. [100]

Various cities with high, problematic concentrations of Moroccans weren't even listed in the 2002 Elsevier article as recipients of extra funding to combat immigrant crime. Culemborg, the city with the fourth highest Moroccan population in the Netherlands, is one. Among the hundred or so replies to a 2009 article on the situation Gouda, the following, slightly more practical ones could be found:

> Poster 1: "I live in Culemborg, so this doesn't surprise me. They really have some kind of hatred of the Netherlands and the Dutch. When the Netherlands was eliminated at the Eurocup last summer [2008] they came to our neighborhood to laugh at us. It might not be fun and the rest of the world will probably say it's a disgrace, but those Moroccans just have to be thrown out of the country."

> Poster 2: "Example, here with us an ROC [school] has been opened, close to the mall. Since that time I have been harassed multiple times [by Moroccans]: pushed off my bike, spit at, you name it. They are everywhere! Something I haven't experienced in my own town in the 10 preceding years."
> Poster 3: "In Gouda the situation has been dramatic with immigrants and their behavior. Solutions haven't helped anymore for a long time. For that the situation has been out of balance for too long. Our amazing government simply wants us dead. We now have to take action if a bus driver is kicked to a pulp on the streets... but of course we are not allowed to lift a finger. In the Oosterwei [neighborhood] the Goudsche Allochtonen Team has chased away all Dutch stores and store owners so that now only old-Casablancans reside there.
> "I do have a solution... but then I'll be banned, so thanks to the censorship at GeenStijl that immigrant team continues to exist!" [101]

Full-blown Moroccan riots in the Netherlands didn't just happen in 1998. They have been quite common over the years. In July 2015 hundreds of Moroccans rioted against the police in The Hague's Schilderswijk. [102] In May and June 2016 a group of 50 to 60 Moroccans youths in Ede started clashing with the police and burning cars. These youths would have been "bored" after a local Moroccan tea house was closed. Dutch natives who were seen talking to the media, had their windows thrown in. [103] The Moroccan consul in the Netherlands had to be sent down to help get the youths under control. Earlier they caused problems in 2008 and 2009. [104]

In this same period - mid 2016 - roughly 100 to 150 Moroccans ended up in a stand-off with the riot police at Zuidplein in Rotterdam-South. This didn't make the newspapers and police notices don't mention the group involved Moroccans. I only happen to know because I drove immediately past it. That makes you think at how many other locations this has happened.

In Vlissingen a few dozen Moroccan youths have been making the Bloemenbuurt unsafe. On New Year's Eve 2016-2017 they started a rampage with fireworks and throwing in windows. Locals were scared to speak to the media and explained that the situation had been escalating for years. [105]

In 2011 it came out that desperate citizens of Helmond were looking to set up in a fight group in Helmond against Moroccan street terror:

> "'[Moroccans] are hurling insults at your head as 'fuckface Hollander.' ...
> "[A mother's] fear began when she walked past a group of 40 [Moroccan] men with her 10-year-old daughter. 'They yelled: 'Kid, kid, you want to make 50 euros? Just come and lick me.' After she had said something about it, a boy went to stand in front of her window and dropped his pants.
> "If you then call the police, they will start harassing you. Ding-dong ditch. Pee against your front door. They call you "cancer whore"'. Her husband with a baby on his arm: 'If we say anything back, then [they say] we have no respect for them.'
> "The local authorities don't take action [but] the stories of residents pretty much are all the same. Who has talked about the terror, has paid a high price. ... People are scared to be seen with [a reporter] by 'the enemy' [the Moroccans]." [106]

In reponse, an editor of NRC newspaper visited Helmond and wrote a lengthy piece in which he made the case that these citizens of Helmond literally were imagining things. Every foreigner he met was just a stand up citizen. [107] It appears this reporter was acting on assignment by the government to quash any talk among native white citizens of organizing fight groups. And once again it appears the government is more worried with public anti-immigration riots than it is about native citizen's well-being.

Helmond troublemakers. Familiar colors, except for the Swedish flag. How is it possible the NRC reporter wasn't able to find this crowd?

The NRC editor was lying and the situation in Helmond remained the exact same. In June 2017 the Telegraaf reported on a Helmond street where native white citizens were terrorized day and night by a group of Moroccans and seemingly Antillean men - formerly at odds - in their 20s and 30s who were playing loud music and shouting day and night, doing drug deals, and cursing locals out for "cancer whore" (undoubtedly Moroccans). A photographer for a newspaper was surrounded and chased out of the neighborhood. Locals, who didn't dare to speak for fear for reprisals, sometimes called in sick to work out of sheer anxiety and depression. The mayor still did nothing. The same went for the police. [108] The question, of course, is, what can they do? The government and superclass refuse to put the proper legislation in place to solve these problems.

How about randomly on the streets? These are the most random of examples, because there are just so many; it's possible to list dozens.

In October 2002 the 22-year-old Dutchman Rene Steegmans was beaten to death by the Moroccan Khalid L. after Steegmans told him and a friend, both on a scooter, to show some respect for an elderly lady they almost hit. According to the parents of Khalid, their son was "merely just an instrument of Allah who executed his will." Khalid was part of a wider network of criminal Moroccans in Venlo who caused major problems for local citizens. Local authorities denied any serious problems. [109]

In May 2008 a 16-year-old girl in Hengelo was stopped by three Moroccans between 17 and 20-years-old and sexually molested. She managed to escape on her bicycle. [110]

Hilversum regularly made the news in 2012. In April two men were beaten into the hospital after they said something of men harassing their female friend. In May a freshly-immigrated Swede was kicked into a weeks-long coma after he confronted two men about a dent in a cab he had just taken. Apparently the perpetrators all were Moroccan, but this is not fully confirmed. In August two girls of 15 and 18-years-old leaving night club G-Spot were beaten to a pulp for refusing to hand a cigarette to Moroccan street thugs. One girl ended up with a concussion; the other with a complicated leg break that required four surgeries. Incredibly, the two girls received assistance from the police before the beat down, but the second the police left again, the men returned and put them into the hospital. [111] Cases kept piling up in Hilversum. On September 11, a 15-year-old girl was sexually molested and beaten up, apparently by three Turks. They were released for lack of evidence. [112] 10 days later a group of teens robbed an 18-year-old with tons of violence. [113] No ethnicity is known in this case.

in July 2014 a 14-year-old Dutch girl at the Haarrijnse recreational lake was followed around by a group of "thirty to forty boys", who had earlier been thrown out of the area. She was cursed out in every possible way. The second she talked back, she was beaten in the face multiple times and robbed of her phone. Media didn't want to mention ethnicity, but an image of the attack released by the police reveals a large group of Moroccan boys. [114]

In October 2014 a young Dutch girl was kicked off her bicycle by two "North-African men", beaten and had a knife put on her throat. When they attempted to remove her clothes, dogs started barking, prompting her attackers to flee. [115]

In April 2017 a girl on a bicycle was overtaken by "five tinted guys" on scooters. They "forced her stop, took her belongings and sexually molested her." A father walking by with his daughter said something about it, prompting the boys to give back her belongings. After the father was out of view, they continued. [116]

In June 2017 a Dutchman on his bicycle was repeatedly attacked by Moroccans in cars, on scooter and on foot. He managed to flee into a local supermarket where he called the police. The police wouldn't show up, but he was asked to come to a local police station to provide his testimony. Soon the police officer explained that filing a complaint would be of no use, including the advice: "It's kinda heated now with the Ramadan, so just keep your head down." When this person mentioned his experience on Twitter the "look-away police" immediately told him in ten different ways that he shouldn't have mentioned ethnicity. [117]

As said, these are the most random of examples. While researching this article I came across more than two dozen of these type of random incidents. And that is without specifically looking for them.

How about night clubs? In 1999 a study was published by two Erasmus University researchers based on information and data from 20 different Dutch night clubs. Conclusion? "Moroccan boys cause the most amount of trouble in night clubs. Compared to other groups, they are the most involved in verbal and physical violence and by forming groups they make other club goers uncomfortable." Turks are the second-most problematic group. As for whites, soccer hooligans, trailer park inhabitants and participants in bachelor parties are seen as problematic, although less than Turks and certainly Moroccans. Similar to swimming pools, the researchers advise the introduction of an ID system to keep unwanted visitors out. [118]

In 2002 Get Down Café in Utrecht closed shop. According to the owner, Moroccans are harassing women, intimidate them by standing in groups at the restrooms, and cause fights. Also, if one Moroccan is thrown outside, the whole group starts to fight. "It's going on here every week. I wouldn't allow my own daughter anymore to come to the Get Down." So he closed his establishment. [119]

Most clubs are able to survive the Moroccan terrorism it appears by simply keeping the vast majority of them out of their clubs, something which swimming pools, fun fairs and amusement parks can't get away with. In May 2004 the Dutch Labour Party was "shocked" after a two month police investigation revealed that Moroccans are largely refused entry in a wide variety of night clubs. [120] These type of "racism" scandals have regularly made the news - from at least 2001 - but everybody knows about this policy. And the cause is very obvious. In Belgium as well this policy has led to politically correct media consternation, such as a case in August 2015 when it was leaked that the owner of the Antwerp-based night club La Gare 27 instructed his bouncers with the message: "No Mocros. No black gang bangers... Simple. Also not 'on the list'" [121] It's silly to criticize it.

Literally as I'm writing this section, there's a report that Club Vie, one of the most popular clubs here in Rotterdam, has been shut down by the mayor - ironically a Moroccan - for at least three months after 11 (reported) sexual molestations and rapes in 1.5 years time, three of which in July 2017 alone. In some cases, girls were drugged, taken to other places and raped. Moroccans you ask? That's not certain, because drugging girls is not necessarily their modus operandi; intimidation and violent assault is. The type of visitors to Club Vie depends on the type of event. You have "all black parties" (racism, no?), but many events feature 20, 30, 40, 50, 60% "tinted" folk: Surinam blacks, Moluks, Arabs and, of course, tons of "open-minded" white student girls. However, the fact that this club in this day and age is forced to introduce body cams for guards and extra drivers to take women home straight from the club tells us once again that society here continues to go downhill. [122]

How about shopping malls? In January 2005, 200 to 300 Moroccans had to be thrown out of the Hoog Catharijne shopping mall in Utrecht with the aid of the riot police. The group was harassing the public and turned on police officers the second they were asked to leave. [123]

Since at least 2011 the central shopping square in Veghel has been terrorized by mainly Moroccan and Ethiopian youths. They vandalize stores and insult and harass locals, to the point of spitting on elders, kicking rollators from underneath them, and keeping people awake all night with the noise they make. Persons immediately neighboring the square don't dare to sit outside anymore. When people threaten to call the police, they just say, "Go ahead! Good for my condition!" Local authorities don't seem to care at all. [124]

How about fun fairs? In 2005 it was reported that a good number of fun fairs around the country were terrorized by Moroccan youth gangs, to the point that operators were hiring security firms or even paying protection money. [124] The year before, on Queen's Day 2004, Moroccan youth gangs shut down a fun fair in Culemborg - a city with one of the largest concentrations of Moroccans in the Netherlands - after they were seen walking around with machetes and looking to retaliate against an operator who earlier had thrown a number of Moroccans off his fair. The local authorities did so little to guarantee the safety of the fun fair in 2005, that the operator did not dare to open it up anymore. [126] In another, more recent example from July 2017 inhabitants of a centre for asylum seekers in Oisterwijk were arrested at a local fun fair for sexually molesting and harassing women and young girls. [127]

Purmerend fun fair in May 2015. Dutch teenage couple surrounded by 60 mainly black and Arab youths, kicked, beaten, and scolded for "cancer whore". Partially saved by a grown-up, but followed around town for some time.

How about amusement parks? For example, in June 2004 9 to 10-year-old girls on a school trip were sexually harassed by a group of immigrant boys at Duinrell, a nationally famous amusement park. When class mates of the girls tried to help the girls, one of the immigrants kids pulled out a knife. According to one of the parents: "This was unbelievable. Immigrant boys, really no older than 10, pinched butts, tried to kiss and wanted "to go steady". It was incredibly frightening." [128]

In July 2012 in Walibi Holland, another of Holland's largest amusement parks, about ten boys of "suspected North African descent" beat up a kid who tried to stop a fight between two girls. The kid was knocked out with brass knuckles, after which the group continued to kick him for a while. Before that, the group "would have harassed people at the park, stolen bags, and thrown cellphones of visitors into the water." [129] As replies to an article about this incident make clear, it's one of many incidents:

> Poster 1: "Been there in May for a day. Maybe saw 30 whites. And half of those spoke Moroc street language."
> Poster 2 (Fok! founder Danny Roodbol): "At Walibi it is a very regular problem. I've seen fights there multiple times, youths who threaten the staff, etc. There's also only 1.5 guard or so who looks as if he has been pulled straight from a social workplace. On crowded days you simply shouldn't be going there with the kids..."
> Poster 3: "I went there a while ago with family. Twice I had problems that day with that filth. ... The first time was at the water attraction: everybody simply got out at the end, but of course they didn't and wanted to go another round. That all became such a problem that security had to be brought in. ... At the roller coaster a couple of fur collars [slang for "Moroccans"] thought it the most normal thing in the world to climb (!!) to the front of the queue via the roof of the queue. ... Fuck that folk."
> Poster 4: "Last month in Eurodisney also: those shitbag kids who are encouraged by their parents to skip the line. My son (2) was holding the railing. All of a sudden such an uneducated Mocro kid of about 13 walks by, grabs the arm of my son and yanks him loose from the railing to get past him. I gave that kid a push towards that scum that was gesturing him. Subsequently they get angry, cursing and start to me about education! I urged them shut the hell up and keep out of neighborhood. Multiple bystanders say Bon, etc., so they agreed with me. The scum backed off and the veins in my neck were swollen from anger."
> Poster 5: "Also with us in town: 2 of those lanky youths who harass people, cursing and kicking, knocking on windows of stores to ask real loud how much it costs to get their sicks sucked, with a group of 20-year-olds behind them who will go after anyone who says anything about it. They will never amount to anything and absolutely nothing is done about it."

Poster 6: "Maybe 5 years ago we also had trouble with Moroccan street thugs. Women didn't dare to go over street anymore to pin at the bank. So we went to solve that problem with a group of friends. Result: we have a criminal record now for physical abuse and they continue with the practices. It is not the people, but the law."

Poster 7: "As said earlier, if you say anything about Mocro misconduct you get 10 guys on your doorstep. If you manage to beat up a Mocro, you get a criminal record and the next day you have 3 Mocro families on your doorstep. That is the problem. We can't do anything. That sense of powerlessness... I really hope that is going to lead to something."

Poster 8: "Cockroaches is what they are... who aren't happy themselves so they make sure that other people also become miserable. Too pathetic for words."

Poster 9: "I hope that these guys are beaten up hard one by one. Wretched losers, just kick them back to their North African continent... They only cost money." [130]

Plenty of reports of sexual molestations can also be found about another major amusement park in the Netherlands, the Efteling. A one-minute search reveals cases from June 2006, [131] multiple from mid 2008, including an admission from The Efteling that "this is not a new trend" [132]; May 2009 [133] and July 2010 [134]. Except for one fight between two girls in 2008, all cases here involved group molestations in which one or more girls were grabbed by the breasts, butt and vagina - and with that with virtual certainty involved Moroccans. But in not one case ANY hint was provided as to the ethnicity of the perpetrators. It appears this is Efteling policy.

How about movie theaters? Each year for decades Moroccan youths terrorize Holland's large Pathe cinemas during the Muslim Sugar Fest at the end of the Ramadan. Despite all kinds of additional security measures, groups of youths often still manage to run into different movie rooms where they start yelling, loudly calling on their phones, and throwing stuff just to get reactions from the audience. It's not unusual for the riot police to have to show up. [135] One rioter on a Moroccan news site provided some "helpful" advice to us "cheese heads":

"Guards are a waste of time. One time per year the boys all go to the theater. They will not be told anything by anyone.

> Guards don't phase them, not even if the riot police is in front of the door. They can better close Pathe at the time of the Sugar Fest. ... Also at McDonald's and Kentucky Fried Chicken it was chaos." [136]

Obviously there have been endless non-Sugar Fest problems with Moroccans in movie theaters, which is why so many white people are evading these too these days, just as so many other traditional ways of entertainment. It has to be said though, even white youth often have trouble keeping their mouths shut at the movie theater. But it's nothing like the Moroccans, who will simply not listen to anything but brute violence when it comes to the "cheese heads".

How about street stands? One prominent example dates back to 2003, when a then 15-year-old high schooler was selling ice cream at his own, personal stand to make an extra buck. Regularly he would hand ice creams to Moroccans who would then just walk away without paying. Eventually he quit his business after three Moroccans put a broken glass bottle to his throat and robbed him of the proceeds of the day. His words: "Three young Moroccans pressed a broken bottle to my throat. ... I have been threatened several times before. Always those same [Moroccan] guys." [137]

How about school trips? Countless examples of molestations and violence listed in this section and in this article as a whole involved young girls on a school trip being attacked by immigrant kids who were similarly on a school trip. As an additional example that has been rather prominent, in 2016 four "Belgian" kids sexually molested up to 12 Dutch girls during a school trip at a museum in Belgium, feeling up their breasts and butts and chasing them down to the bathrooms, where a cleaner happened to be working. The "Belgians" had earlier molested 4 girls at their own school. [138] As is too often the case, not a single hint as to the ethnicity of the perpetrators was given, not in the Netherlands and not in Belgium, leading to widespread speculation and frustration:

> Poster 1: "White? Lightly tinted? Again the Islam?"
> Poster 2: "Why doesn't the NOS [government news service] not spend any time on this?"
> Poster 3: "Stigmatizing is not necessary. In this case it is once again a fact that they are tinted apes."
> Poster 4: "If the ethnicity of that scum is NOT mentioned, then they have to be pearls of opportunity [slang for "Moroccans"]. That's how it works in the media these days. If it says, "a 20-year-old Amsterdammer has..." than you can be pretty much certain that it involves an immigrant! Sorry, but it is what it is."

> Poster 5: "Let's not say anything about ethnicity. That has been the norm in the controlled media."
> Poster 6: "If ethnicity isn't mentioned AND the NOS [government news service] is not broadcasting the story, with 100% certainty it involves immigrants. ... Those Gutmenschen think that this is good for the people and do not understand that this is downright censorship."
> Poster 7: "If it is reported that it is something between the police and the school then you automatically know what the heritage of the perpetrators is..." [139]

From what it is worth, these molesters came from Go! middle school just south of Antwerp. Pictures of classes here reveal about 70% white kids and 30% immigrant ones from various Muslim and black countries. However, we will probably never learn the ethnicity of the perpetrators.

We can go on. How about buses? In March, April and October 2016 bussed passing through a certain section of Zaandam were peppered with rocks by Moroccan youths. Eventually bus drivers started to avoid this section. Problems in Zaandam with Moroccans in particular have been aplenty for over a decade before this point. [140]

Meanwhile, in June 2016, bus drivers in Almere were terrorized by Moroccan youths who spit on bus drivers while vandalizing and throwing rocks at bussed The police let some of the troublemakers off with a fine and "a firm talk with their parents". [141]

It's possible to find a number of film clips online of Moroccans cursing out bus drivers. Bus stops and even bussed themselves in certain neighborhoods aren't necessarily the safest places either, especially for young women.

How about trains? Considering Moroccans tend to travel to swimming pools, beach resorts and other places in large packs, trains often are not a safe place either. Earlier we mentioned cases from 2001 and 2003 involving sexual molestations in trains by gangs of Moroccans who had caused mayhem in Zandvoort beach earlier in the day.

In another example from 2003, four Moroccans of 15, 17, 18 and 19-years-old terrorized train passengers for months by hijacking the intercom and wishing other Muslims a happy Sugar Fest, singing things as "Hamas, Hamas, all Jews on the gas", and telling various women on the train they were going to rape them. The police was watching them, but somehow was unable to do much about it. Eventually the four were arrested after much violent resistance. The prosecutor's office set them free again in hours, although they did have to appear in front of a judge at some point. [142]

While we purposely haven't mentioned any incidents from other countries, in November 2011 there was a major case in Belgium when 17 "youths" returned from Walibi amusement park to Brussels by train, vandalized a number of compartments, pulled the emergency break, and "harassed" a woman. This is what the Belgian press mentioned about the affair, and only to a very minimal extent. Here are the apparent words of a railroad employee in an email to an anti-immigration group:

> "The real facts were determined by the railroad personnel NMBS: About forty immigrant youths had taken control of a number of wagons, with total destruction as a result. In the wagons windows were smashed, electrical connections between the wagons were disconnected, fire extinguishers were emptied on other passengers, benches were destroyed, aggression against travelers, conductors had to lock themselves in over death threats, and a women was harassed and afterwards also raped. The extreme facts are unacceptable to the passengers and train personnel. That this is not featured on the evening news , isn't really surprising, as there has been very directed censorship for years over this point." [143]

It must be said though that whites often are involved in train vandalism too due to large groups of often young men traveling together. Soccer hooligans are notorious in this regard, but sometimes also other youngsters. All this is minus the sexual molestations, rape and threats of rape though. And generally there also is considerably more concern for other train passengers.

One place that is also a problem with Moroccans is kickboxing gyms, almost certainly due to the fame of international kickboxing champion Badr Hari. I myself noticed it when walking into a local joint MMA and kickboxing gym. Upon entering, the kickboxing class was about to finish up. There literally were two or three whites surrounded by two dozen Moroccans. Thinking of going home again, it quickly turned out that the subsequent MMA class featured ZERO Moroccans, which (luckily) will probably remain the case until a Moroccan is able to become successful in MMA. Coincidentally, one half-Moroccan with considerable MMA prospect, Lee Murray, displayed rather violent, unpredictable antics and went to prison for his role in a major bank robbery. Badr Hari is similarly notorious for violent, unpredictable behavior.

While many young Moroccan criminals are involved in kickboxing, this sport has always drawn its fair share of criminals. For inexperienced practitioners head trauma can be real concern though, because Moroccans care more about status than anything else. Practitioners often go way too hard to "prove themselves", sacrificing technique, a focus on improving and sportsmanship in the process. Racism can also be a problem.

Moroccan violence against funeral parades, paramedics, referees, Jews, gays, elderly, etc.

How about (Dutch) funeral parades and proceedings? Are they safe? No, not exactly. In January 2004 in Culemborg Moroccan youths wrecked a hearse, stealing a phone from it, while medical personnel was picking up the corpse of a woman. Citizens were furious, not only at the Moroccans, but also at the local authorities for claiming, "From our measures and reports it is clear that problems have considerably decreased." Citizens stated "it is still a huge mess. People don't dare to walk the streets anymore in the evening." [144]

In mid 2011 it became known that Moroccan youths in and around Amersfoort continually were cursing at funeral parades, or sticking up their middle fingers, and disturbing funeral processions. [145]

How about paramedics and ambulances? In countless incidents, Moroccans and also black Africans have actually attacked ambulances and paramedics coming to the aid of one their friends, but possibly not doing a good enough job. Or for other reasons, such as trying to help women in need who might not be fully veiled and covered anymore. One such incident happened in 2006 at the parking lot of the Mirandabad swimming pool. This one was mentioned earlier. This same year additional reports of attacks on paramedics came in. No ethnicities were mentioned. [146]

In September 2008 paramedics were called "cockroaches" and threatened with death if they failed to save a stabbed Moroccan they were working on. They had to throw the victim into the back of their ambulance without proper treatment and take off. At the time even Amsterdam mayor Job Cohen acknowledged that "aggression against relief workers is primarily coming from wanton, young Moroccans." One paramedic with years of experience said: "In certain immigrant neighborhoods we the white relief workers are called cockroaches. Apparently that's what those boys are being told in the mosque. That you can despise white infidels." According to him, Turks and Antilleans also regularly threaten or use violence against first responders. [147]

In August 2012 paramedics in Noordwijk had to be protected from attackers by the police, where eventually a hundred men turned on the police while they were trying to clear a path for the paramedics. No ethnicities were mentioned. [148] The very same day in Amsterdam, when trying to approach two women trapped in a car after a car crash, men tried to stop the paramedics and police from getting close. No ethnicity was mentioned, but a video of the incident reveals a black and North African man as the main attackers. [149]

In February 2015 a man threw a grocery bag against the front window of a speeding ambulance that was trying to get to the scene of an accident as fast as possible. Details at the time that weren't mentioned include that the man's name was "Mohamed A.", a highly criminal Moroccan, and that the grocery bag contained a Koran. Earlier the man had threatened a social worker with a knife. [150]

In May 2016 a man called the paramedics but when they tried to enter the house, he attacked them with a knife. No ethnicity was mentioned. [151]

The New Year's Eve 2016-2017 incident where Moroccan youths were trying to prevent a wounded police officer from getting help. As usual, police officers come across as pussies because they're basically not allowed to do anything.

On New Year's Eve 2016-2017 a police officer was hurt in a car accident. When paramedics tried to approach the officer, they were peppered with fireworks, stones and bottles. The riot police had to come in to protect the officer and paramedics. No ethnicity was mentioned, but a video of the scene shows a large group of Moroccans running from the police. In these same days, and really every year again, firefighters and police officers were attacked with fireworks throughout the country. No ethnicities were mentioned. [152]

How about referees? Mainly soccer/football referees are not particularly safe for Moroccan, other Arab and African players who do not agree with their decisions.

Dutch soccer line judge kicked to death in front of his son by a Moroccan youth team.

In September 2010 a referee was stabbed in his shoulder with a knife during a friendly soccer match. The match took place at the local center for asylum seekers. [153] In December 2012 an Amsterdam Moroccan youth team kicked a line judge to death in front of his kid. [154] This same team was taken out of competition in February 2016 for attacking another referee. [155] This same month a supporter of AVV Sloterdijk, from the same Amsterdam Moroccan neighborhood, came onto the field during a fight with a rival soccer club dominated by Turks and threatened players and the referee with a knife. All this happened over a red card [156] A quick check of AVV Sloterdijk youth teams shows Moroccan, black and dark-skinned Pakistani kids. Another team, DWS 4 from Amsterdam, was suspended this same month for assaulting a referee and hitting an opponent who tried to protect the referee from getting hit in the back of the head. An ambulance had to be brought in. [157] A quick look at DWS, surprisingly, reveals entirely black and North African teams.

April 2016 almost-stabbing incident of a referee. Perpetrator restrained.

Several days after the December 2012 incident/murder, a Moroccan player punched a referee in the face for not handing him a penalty. [158] The only reason this second incident made the news, including ethnicity, is because of the heightened tensions over the kicking to death of a referee. In April 2016 a referee was able to evade a knife stab of what on video looks like a dark-skinned Pakistani, but ate a punch to the face before bystanders were able to restrain the attacker. [159] In 2016 the Dutch Royal Soccer Union (KNVB) noted that nationally violence on the football field went, but apparently were puzzled by the fact that violence had increased around the major cities. [160] Various other incidents were reported in articles on this observation by the KNVB.

Actually, when it comes to aggressive and violent incidents on soccer fields against Moroccan teams in particular, there's really no end to the reports. I myself experienced this back in 1990 when my soccer team played against a Moroccan team. We didn't know what we were seeing. Players were just screaming and cursing at each other over the tiniest mistakes. On top that, they were quite easy to beat because these Moroccans just didn't know how to play as a team. It makes one wonder about a conclusion that some referees and soccer analysts public reached in 2016: "Certainly, soccer players of Moroccan descent have more trouble to play in a team and they feel extra pressure to prove themselves." [161] These days it happens more and more that Dutch referees and rival teams refuse to get involved with Moroccan teams. [162]

We can on. Homeless persons - white ones that is - aren't safe. [163] Jews aren't safe. [164] The same goes for gays, especially couples. More than a few couples who live together are completely terrorized day and night by Moroccans, not just by the youth, but also their parents. [165] If groups of Moroccans see gay men walk hand in hand over street, they might just lose a few teeth - or worse. [166]

Elderly people also aren't safe. Two examples have already been mentioned previously, but there are plenty of examples of Moroccans (and now other Arabs and Africans) taking out their frustrations on (white) elderly people. While writing this article another report comes in: a 73-year-man was pushed down a flight of stairs after asking if two

"tinted" teens could move out of the way so he could get to his front door. The fall broke his neck. [167] Hours earlier a 65-year-old man was beaten to death in Valkenburg after confronting four problematic "hang youth" who were making noise until deep into the night. One held him down, the rest beat and kicked him into a coma, from which he soon died. [168] No details yet on the perpetrators. Just three weeks ago, in June 2017, a 60-year-old man in Belgium was beaten to death by two men in their twenties, probably because he was drunk and had a big mouth. Just a few months earlier he had been beaten up just for that reason. No details on skin color, but one perpetrator was "without permanent residence." [169]

There are plenty of examples. In March 2004 a 77-year-old Dutch invalid was beaten to death while sitting at home in his wheelchair by four teenage Moroccan thieves. [170]

In November 2010 two Moroccan teen girls were purposely stalling an elevator up in an apartment, preventing an 82-year-old Dutch woman and her 53-year-old daughter from using it. Eventually the daughter took the stairs, encountered the girls and said she and her mother would like to use the elevator. For that "insult", she was called a "Dutch pigslut" and received a "karate kick" to the arm. After she and her mother finally made it upstairs, the girls were waiting for them to give the 82-year-old mother a slap in the face. [171]

In December 2012 a 78-year-old Rotterdam man was kicked in the side by a Moroccan teen, dropping him and sending his groceries all over the sidewalk. He managed to walk back to his home, grab an iron bar and came back out. Unfortunately for him, downstairs about 40 Moroccans were waiting for him to react and beat the living daylights out of him. He was left unconscious. [172]

In August 2015 a Dutch-Jewish couple of 86 and 87-year-old was robbed in their own house by two Moroccans. They were violently beaten, permanently disabling the husband and leaving him without ability to talk or properly see. One of the perpetrators pulled out a knife and threatened to cut off the wife's finger if she would be unable to take off her wedding ring. With some pain and effort, luckily the ring came off. [173]

In contrast, the mainstream media raised a much greater stink in November 2016 for handcuffing a confused 84-year-old Moroccan and gently walking him to his police car. The arrest was filmed by a ghetto-sounding black women calling the police "dogs" - which of course is perfectly fine. [174] I guess this just confirms once again what side the mainstream media is on.

Without looking for it, while proof-reading this article I also ran into a report of a 19-year-old "North-African" who in 2017 beat, raped and robbed a 90-year-old German woman in Dusseldorf after she left church. After the deed, the youth grabbed the woman's house keys and wrote down her address to continue the robbery there. The man had fled Spain months before after being at risk of going to jail here. Apparently the elderly being targeted by immigrants clearly is an international problem. [175] Previously, in ISGP's article on black crime, a Swedish Somalian was mentioned who broke into the home of a woman in her 80s and proceeded to rape her.

In addition, more and more organized crime is hiring underaged Moroccan and Antillean kids to threaten and assassinate their opponents, with that replacing the role of more traditional elements from eastern Europe. [176] These kids are cheaper and much harder for the law to prosecute. Apart from that, young Moroccans are at the top of the list for violent jewelry store robberies, a major epidemic in recent years. All these young criminals apparently care about is designer clothes and status. [177]

Personal experiences with Arabs in Rotterdam

2nd or 3rd generation typical Moroccan youths. On their way to make sure another tropical swimming paradise gets closed.

Here and there in articles for ISGP's Center for Responsible Immigration, I describe my personal experiences with Third World immigrants in Rotterdam. Women, especially attractive blond ones (usually from eastern Europe these days), can't walk down the street alone in my neighborhood without getting harassed literally every 100 meters, mainly by African blacks and, a few streets over, by Moroccans or Turks. Even 13-year-old blond girls get all kinds of remarks to their heads by black men in their 30s, 40s and 50s hanging out on street corners until late at night. It's very unlikely a girl will be molested, but they will get verbally harassed all the time. It's pretty crazy to behold.

At one point I even saw from my car an attractive woman walking past a group of 10 or 11-years-old Muslim kids just outside a busy shopping street who started calling her "cancer whore", "slut", etc. Heck, even the single white women next door is called "cancer whore" by her black adopted son, with his Pakistani friend also disrespecting her day in, day out by hardly listening to her directives in her own house. Each time you encounter these scenes you realize: Europe is dead. Many of the big cities already are, except maybe for a number of popular districts. But at the present pace of events, it is only a matter of time before the big cities will cease to be tourist centers.

There's really no shortage of personal experiences I can give you. Each week I notice two or three more things that were unheard of before the Third World immigration wave. In mid 2016, for example, well after writing the first article for ISGP's Center for Responsible Immigration, I had to get in between a native Dutch student girl and two Moroccan youths who were sexually harassing her in a tunnel for cyclists.

Even I have been verbally harassed in the past few years on a number of occasions, apparently for no other reason than that I'm white. This has happened by groups of black and Moroccan kids. Mind you, I'm a fit 6'7", 200 pound male in his 30s who always went to all the bad neighborhoods and has never encountered these problems from his early 20s until now the last few years. It's just one more indication that the situation in the big cities continues to deteriorate. The groups of foreigners are getting so large that they grow more and more bold.

To summarize, living in one of the (now) immigrant-dominated districts in Rotterdam, over the years I've gotten used to observing Arabs, and especially Moroccans:

1. display tribal/gang behavior by always operating in packs of exclusively males;
2. display rather hostile, unsupportive behavior to what are supposed to be friends;
3. display very aggressive, conflict-seeking behavior towards white natives, men, women, bouncers, random guests, etc.;
4. display extremely aggressive behavior towards the police, causing large scale, violent riots, screaming and acting psychotic when arrested;
5. talk about beating people up (6-7 times in one or two years) and even stabbing them (at least 4 times in one year, with never in my life hearing it with Dutch people) as they walk by in groups;
6. threaten to stab people or, in the news, actually stabbing people (their national trait);
7. harass random attractive, western women who are not in the presence of at least one man (note: it works too, big time, as iut turns out), regularly reacting aggressively, even physically violent, to any kind of polite rejection;
8. gang up on attractive, vulnerable women in swimming pools;
9. teach little brothers as young as 5-years-old to harass all western women they meet by making kissing noises or remarks as "Hey honey, come here";
10. instill the belief in little brothers as young as 5-years-old that everything is better in Morocco;
11. incite little brothers to throw fireworks at strangers or scare/insult them in some other way;

12. incite little brothers to ignore any kind of white authority and to only take orders from Arab Muslim men;
13. ignore red lights on busy streets with their cars;
14. drive against traffic if a short-cut presents itself;
15. practice drifting skills on busy crossroads (shocked to see two Mercedes cars loaded with Arabs do that in Brussels, where apparently far less cameras were situated);
16. threaten to come by your house and hurt you while in a professional capacity, after they found it you (legally) covertly made a recording to keep a colleague honest;
17. deny that the genocidal October 2023 Hamas attack on Israel didn't result in any casualties;
18. beg for food, saying they are so hungry, with in reality this being a ploy to extract a lot more money from passers-by;
19. throw shopping baskets back onto the heap after you pointed out they are broken and you can't even lift them.

As earlier sections in this article make clear, these observations are almost universal among persons living close to Third World immigrant districts in cities in the Netherlands.

MOROCCANS AND STATISTICS

Dutch Moroccan crime statistics

The initial idea was to discuss Moroccan crime numbers at the beginning of this article. This was changed, however, to emphasize a practical discussion of the decades-long sexual assaults Moroccans have been causing at Dutch swimming pools. Statistics on this key crime do not exist in the Netherlands and it appears they don't appear anywhere else either. In contrast to rape, sexual molestations are hard to prove, with criminal complaints for self-serving reasons often being discouraged by swimming pool staff and, due to government policy, even the police. We've discussed plenty of examples along these lines in this article.

Still, overall crime statistics are very important to have, because they are almost impossible to dispute. In this section, let's go through the available data.

Of all Moroccan boys born in the Netherlands in 1984, the first year the authorities have good information on, 54% built up a criminal record between the ages of 12 and 22. 33% of this group of delinquents has been convicted five times or more. [178] We're talking here about the 10-year period from 1996 to 2006/2007, which has been discussed in-depth in this article.

Another study published in 2010 by researchers of Rotterdam's Erasmus University concluded that in the 2005-2009 period 40% of all Moroccan youths from the age of 12 to 24 came into contact with the police. [179] Considering this only involves a five year period, the 54% overall conviction rate for Moroccan youths before the age of 23 seems quite accurate.

Native Dutch people only had a conviction rate of about 18 to 20% in these studies. Does this mean Moroccans only are 2.5 times more criminal than whites, a conclusion the establishment media internationally loves to focus on? Hardly. This last study also revealed that half of Dutch delinquents only have one conviction while 71% of Moroccan delinquents have been convicted multiple times. The only group with worse numbers are the Antilleans.

In line with these findings is the fact that Moroccans can be found in prison almost 8 times more often than native whites. The less notorious Turks can be found 4.5 times more often in prisons, the black Surinams 10 times and the equally black Antilleans 21 times. These these prison numbers are already discussed in detail in ISGP's article on global black crime numbers. The gap between the Antilleans and Moroccans is far greater here than 2 to 2.5 times, again revealing that the statistics most often used by governments to describe ethnic crime differences are flawed to the point of official cover up.

To illustrate further, the two first-mentioned studies here do not single out vice crimes, so it provides us little insight into the apparent national pastime of Moroccan teens to molest underage white girls, a crime that, in contrast to rape, generally is incredibly hard to prove. Rape numbers for North African Muslims in Sweden stood 23 times higher than whites in the late 1980s. When gang rape is isolated, you're looking at 30 to 40 times higher numbers than native whites. Sources and calculations for these numbers are already listed in ISGP's global black crime numbers article. If one looks at incidents of sexual molestations, rape and heavy physical violence at Dutch swimming pools in particular, between 75% [180] and 98% [181] of those cases involve Moroccans, with Turks, Afghanis and other Arabs taking up smaller percentages. So how is it possible that Moroccans only are 2.5 times more criminal in official government statistics? Largely because these statistics give picking flowers on private land the same weight as pedophile gang rape. And because so many sexual molestations do not appear to be registered. And because Moroccans move in such large groups that participation in a crime per individual often is impossible to prove.

The statistics also don't include the other pastime of Moroccans: intimidating native whites and elicit fights with passers-by who dare to look them into the eyes or question their "dominance". In over 95% of cases native whites will simply not look at Moroccan teens or reply to their tauntings, because it will all to often lead to heavy confrontation and you possibly going to hospital or even the morgue. Moroccan teens will mainly exhibit such behavior when in larger groups or when they have some kind of other advantage. And thus, government statistics do not include this silent, racist, every-day terror against its own white population.

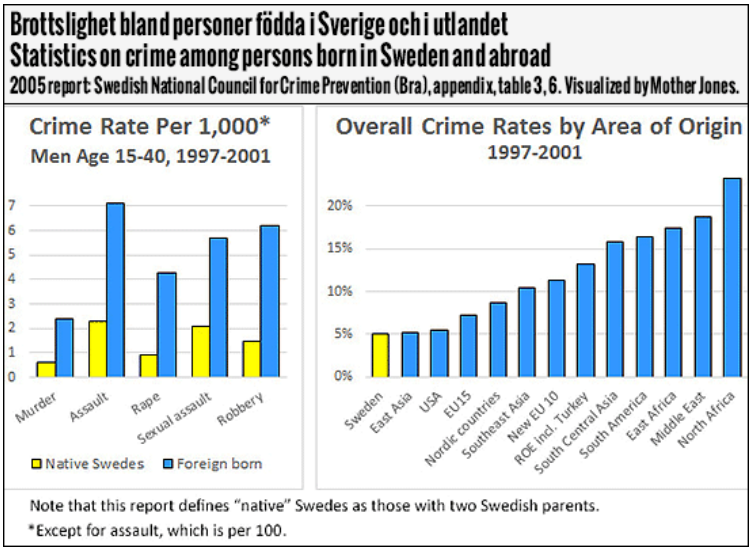
Any other statistics on Moroccan youths? Sure. 65% of all Moroccan boys between the ages of 12 and 23 have been arrested at least once, demonstrating that about 11% have never been convicted despite one or more arrest. [182] One wonders if these kids truly were innocent, especially looking at the countless examples in this article of underage Moroccan boys getting away with sexual molestation with nothing more than a warning and a letter to their parents.

What else? In 1990 about one-third of all Moroccans boys had been in touch with the police, a number that in 2009, according to mayor's office and police sources in Amsterdam, had locally risen to about 70%. [183] This does not appear to be an official number, because the Amsterdam police conveniently doesn't register ethnicities; only Rotterdam does. [184] In Rotterdam it turned out that 90% of Moroccan convicts go on to commit more crimes after their release, versus 60% of native whites. [185] In 2007 a parting Utrecht police chief warned that Moroccans and their children were about to become the new top-layer of violent career criminals, replacing well-known Dutch gangsters as Willem Holleeder and John Mieremet. [186]

An employee of the Amsterdam Anti-Civil Disturbance Foundation (Stichting Aanpak Overlast Amsterdam) who visits the parents of troublemakers at home, stated that 80% of her clients are Moroccans. In 2006, in Amsterdam district Slotervaart 200 problematic youths were registered. All but one were Moroccans, even though they only constitute 17% of the district. The other was a Turk. [187]

Meanwhile, the Swedes had also discovered the penchant for crime by North Africans as the Moroccans. In a study spanning the years 1997-2001, North Africans were considered to be the most criminal immigrant group into Sweden, with an average of 5 times higher than native whites. A full graph:



Still, looking at sexual assault in the above graph, something is not right. Street/gang rape and molestations need to be listed separately from incest cases in order to get a more accurate number. Neighboring Norway found out, for example, that 95% of its street rape cases, the most notorious subsection of all rape, are conducted by Muslim and African immigrants. Despite having a very small Moroccan community here, this nationality has regularly featured near the top of these sexual assault statistics. Moroccans are also notorious for violence and sexual assault in Belgium. Or at Stockholm's Central Station in Sweden in more recent years.

Going back to the Netherlands, an apparent 2009 study commissioned by (the pro-immigration) Dutch justice minister Ernst Hirsch Ballin, which is so low-profile it's hard to tell for certain it is not fake news, reveals that 63 percent of convicted minors for the most violent crimes have immigrant backgrounds, despite the fact that (non-western) immigrants only made up about 11% of the population at this time. That would mean a basic over-representation of 5.6 times. Within this group, Moroccans scored twice as high as any other immigrant group - 14% to 7% or less - putting their overrepresentation in comparison to white Dutch youths around 10 times. The cases in this study involve crimes for which the maximum penalty in the Netherlands is longer than eight years (very severe here). However, because the delinquents in question were minors, most were let go without any kind of prison sentence. [188]

Moroccans are diagnosed with schizophrenia 4 to 5 times more often than native Dutch people. [189] About 30% of Amsterdam-based Moroccan youths do not partake in elementary school finals (CITO), because they are labeled "problem children" and 70% of the boys never receive a "starter qualification", making them comparable to high school drop outs. [190] The average of native whites, both boys and girls, has traditionally been about 3 to 4%. [191] The national average is only about 7.5%, with Turkish boys standing at about 33 percent. [192]

In general, Moroccans are considered extremely clannish, aggressive, criminal and racist, it being the most normal thing for them to harass Dutch people simply based on their race. [193] It's not unusual at all for them to curse out white "left-overs" on immigrant-dominated schools for "tatta" (potato), "cheese head" and "fuckface Hollander" and get them to leave, a lot of it having to do with the fact that we aren't Muslim. Moroccan parents don't seem to care and schools don't punish the bullies and physical abusers, because they would have to expel too many students to remain in existence. [194] This is one of the reasons why most (responsible) parents do not send their children to schools with too many black and Arab children. Dutch government news outlets obviously think this behavior is highly "racist". They are only making a mockery of themselves, especially when they start quoting parents as follows:

> "Looking for a school for your kid really is very simple. You just look around at which school in your neighborhood the least amount of Moroccan kids are and that's the one you pick." [195]

This is hilarious, because it only confirms to other parents throughout the country that they are not alone in their thinking. Dutch people and certainly their children aren't racist anymore, unless a certain subsection of the population is asking for it. Third Worlders who come here, with Moroccans at the forefront, are doing exactly that. Moroccans also hate blacks, by the way, especially if they try to date Moroccan women. [196] After all, Moroccan boys are expected to marry Moroccan women.

Another interesting statistic from Spain on Moroccans reveals that Moroccans are 5 to 12 times more likely to be involved in crime In Spain than in their home country of Morocco, with one confusing statistic showing a 64.8 times higher homicide rate in Spain than in Morocco, by far the highest ratio listed. [197] Obviously Morocco is a Muslim extremist country where overall violence of all sorts against women - including harassment, beatings and rape - are acceptable under far too many circumstances. Despite that, it still very much appears as if Moroccans are even more out of line overseas.

Starting in 2008, the Dutch government claims it has been able to reduce Moroccan crime with quite a bit through the implementation of so-called "street coaches" in which essentially former Moroccan criminals become local tribal chiefs to the Moroccan youth. [198] In swimming pools and places like major cinemas tremendous numbers of disturbances were also slowly brought back by the implementation of extremely high-tech security measures and large security teams. If that's the proper way of dealing with the situation is very much the question.

Apart from that, the governments' own (possibly fraudulent) statistics have revealed that while overall crime has been falling, between 2005 and 2014 Moroccan crime numbers actually increased from 3.9x more than white to 4.9x more. [199]

Along similar lines, a 2016 study published by the government's Social and Cultural Planning Bureau (SCP) revealed that Third World immigrant groups into the Netherlands of the second generation actually are more criminal than the first generation, the exception being the Dutch Antilleans who already are known as the most criminal group in the Netherlands.

> "We speak of equal proportion when migrants are just as often unemployed [or involved in crime] as native Dutch people with a similar education and labor history...
> "Concerning the rate of criminal suspects with the second generation, equal proportion is far less close. ... Of the total difference in suspect numbers (3.6%) the majority (2%), with the second generation, cannot be explained. This goes against the classic idea that with succeeding generations migrants and native Dutch people are going to look more and more alike in all areas of society. In the area of crime we see the exact opposite. [i.e., migrants are becoming more criminal]
> [A cause might be that] on the street many [migrant] youths are brought up with lot of macho-masculine codes [while] at home there's often a traditional culture in which [excessive, blind] obedience and a traditional [read: repressive] role between men and women are important. ...
> "The fact that the second generation is furthest removed from equal proportion goes for all migrant groups, except the Dutch Antilleans [who are by the most criminal to begin with]. ... Equal proportion is the most out of balance with the second generation of Dutch Moroccans... The image > formation about their heritage and religion is seen as extremely negative and a relatively large group feels hardly connected to the Netherlands, feels themselves locked out and experiences discrimination." [200]

Probably the simplest and most accurate conclusion to draw is that Moroccans, Antilleans and Surinams are just too criminal to allow to remain in the Netherlands. It's causing too much stress on the white population and is economically not sustainable. The same goes for pretty much all African and Arab ethnicities.

Moroccan Sharia and Jihadism support

It is not unusual at all to run into Arab children who during school refuse to acknowledge basic biology as Darwinism. I personally remember having one Moroccan guy in college - the only one around - who, the second Darwin was brought up, with a know-it-all smug on his face immediately claimed that Darwin was a drug addict - which, by the way, isn't true. [201] And even if Darwin was, this wouldn't have mattered. Unlike the United States, in Europe essentially no one ever denies Darwinism. This is something unique to Christian conservatives and Muslims.

Moroccans are extremely religious and anti-West. Polls show that in Morocco itself 68% of the citizens outright support attacks on U.S. troops in Iraq, 72% fully agrees with Al Qaeda's goal to push the United States out of the entire Middle East, and 76% agrees with Al Qaeda's goal of having strict Sharia Law in every country. About 83% supports Sharia Law in their own country. Support for stonings and death penalties for those leaving Islam are very high. Hatred of Jews is widespread, also here in the Netherlands. It's actually so bad that Frits Bolkestein, a former Dutch economics and defense secretary, as well as a Bilderberg visitor, simply advised orthodox Jews to leave the country for the United States or Israel. [202] The same goes for hatred of homosexuals. All these numbers have been gathered in a separate ISGP article on Muslim Arab extremism.

Virtually all Moroccans, even of the second generation, consider themselves Muslim. Even the most out-of-control youths generally end up going to the local mosque once they get older. [203] They also marry their own women, using western women (i.e. "whores") only for sexual adventures while their own women are locked up at home to remain "pure". 75% of second generation Muslim youths read the Koran just as often as their (very) religious parents. 70% goes just as often to the mosque as their parents, especially as they get older. [204] At least half of all Dutch Muslims - Turks and Moroccans - don't feel part of Dutch society. They resent the attitude of whites against Muslims and immigrants in general and primarily hang out with other Muslims. [205]

In all cases it appears the percentages are higher for Moroccans than Turks, but the distinction is seldom made in studies.

While a handful of studies in other countries have been carried out, little to no reliable information can be found about the support of Dutch Moroccans for Sharia law and terrorism. From a variety of international studies on terrorism support among western Muslims, it is quite safe to say that passive support among Muslims for suicide bombings and Muslim terrorist attacks against their fellow infidel citizens is between 1 in 3 and 1 in 2. Direct, outspoken, active support is lower, about 1 in 10 (10%) to no more than 1 in 5 (20%). It appears that western countries with a lot of North Africans, such as Moroccans, and with few Turks have the highest support numbers for terrorism, France being the prime example of that.

Concept of women and why even real "whores" don't want Moroccans

Views on women is something particularly fascinating with the Muslim world, including with Moroccans. In the above sections, readers have regularly come across examples where Dutch Moroccan youths in particular openly acknowledge that they look at ALL western women as "whores". And because they are "whores", they have no rights; they can be molested and raped at will. That includes your 12-year-old daughter who has never flirted with boys or had sex in her life. Why? Because she wears swimming clothes when she goes to the local swimming pool. The clearest example may have come from Petra Haan, a pool attendant at Amsterdam's Mirandabad and other swimming pools:

> "If you as pool attendant took action against those types of [Moroccan] pearls, you were cursed at. Because they don't listen to a woman. And when you say that women aren't there to be fondled, they say: 'Why not? They are wearing a bikini. They are whores.'"

Another interesting example comes from a certain "Dhana", an apparently secular female Muslim who commented on an article of problems with Moroccan youths at the Mirandabad:

> "Such nonsense to put this in the newspapers now. That has been happening for at least 20 years in all swimming pools in the whole of the Netherlands. And then primarily by a certain population group [Moroccans]. As a girl in Gouda [known for its large and very criminal Moroccan group] you only have to stand in front of a stoplight in your summer clothes and you will have your breasts fondled from behind. When you go to the Reeuwijks Lakes as a family for a nice day at the water, you are, as a mother, stared at in the most disgusting ways by hordes of fully-covered beard-monkeys.

> "I assume that you are a man and thus have never been sexually molested by girls. I know plenty of teenage girls and I can assure you that in a swimming pool they are only harassed by little horny Moroccans and not by Dutch guys.
> "All that has to do with respect for girls. A value only taught to little Moroccans for serene, virgin female Muslims.
> "A female friend of mine was volunteer and gave a course to Muslim women to better understand Dutch culture. Everything was a-okay until the theme Playing Outside With Dutch Children came up. The Muslim mothers said that their daughters can only play outside until the day they start to menstruate. After that they are kept inside. My friend remarked that this rule does not go for Dutch girls. To which one of the [Moroccan] mothers in the group remarked: "But you yourself know that all Dutch women are whores?" Which was supported by all the others!!!!
> "With which I don't want to say that this could never happen with Dutch boys, but this is more the exception than the rule. ...
> "Believe Dutch. The majority of the Muslims think that every western woman is a whore. Why do you think that Muslim girls aren't allowed in the swimming pool and boys are? You ask that to those Muslims you supposedly know." [206]

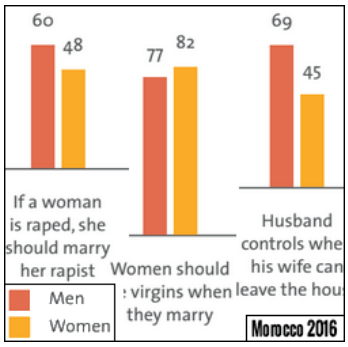
So yes, in the Muslim world, swimming clothes equals "whore". Wearing jeans means "whore". Going out to dance means "whore". Enjoying the company of male friends means "whore". Unless a girl is fully veiled, locked up at home and remains totally "pure" until her arranged or largely arranged marriage with a fellow-Muslim, preferably a Moroccan... she's a "whore".



The comment about the Moroccan Muslim women sharing these opinions might be shocking to many. It would, however, help explain why so many Moroccan youths and other Islamic kids apparently aren't punished at home for sexually molesting young Dutch girls at swimming pools. If they would be corrected, it is unlikely that this Moroccan terrorism could have been going on since the 1980s.

A study published in May 2017 by UN Women [207] revealed exactly these shocking beliefs among not just Moroccan men, but also women. However, before getting to the sexual harassment statistics, let's first summarize a few closely related ones, also from this study. In this study it turned out that 69% of Moroccan men agree that "the husband controls when his wife can leave the house", 62% of Moroccan men think women should accept physical violence from their husbands to maintain the stability of the family, 60% believe that "if a women is raped, she should marry the rapist", 36% believe that "the girl or women usually deserves [a honor killing] punishment from her family" although "only" 14% believe these type of actions should go unpunished. Lastly, 9% of Moroccan men believe that "homosexuals should be treated as a normal part of society", which is probably close to all heterosexual men.

As for statistics about harassment: no less than 72% of Moroccan men believe that, "Women who dress provocatively deserve to be harassed". You'd think Moroccan women can't possibly condone such behavior. Well, they actually agreed with this notion more than the men: 78%. One is inclined to believe there's an element of jealousy and a worry about competition here, because when confronted with the notion that "Women like the attention when men harass them", women all of sudden are considerably more realistic than men: 71% of Moroccan men agree while just 42% of women share the same opinion. We see a similarly interesting trend with the notion, "Women should be virgins when they marry": 77% of men agree, compared to 82% of the women. It appears most Moroccan women do not want to have any fun themselves and do not want the younger generations to have fun either. If they are going to be miserable, everybody is going to be miserable.

Looking at these statistics, one begins to wonder how we in the West are supposed to build a peaceful, thriving society with Islamic cultures as the Moroccans. These statistics certainly explain a lot about the behavior of Moroccans in the Netherlands. Most of the really problematic statistics focus around sexuality. Despite this widespread sexual frustration, it's still bizarre to see so many Moroccan men apparently believing that women in western clothing basically are begging for sexual harassment. Clearly the Islamic brainwashing that any overt display of sexual attraction on behalf of women is sinful goes deep. Very deep.

We know what happens to "whores" in the Middle East: they are gang raped, casted out, tortured, mutilated and murdered. Those things are illegal in the West, although "honor murders" are not exactly unheard of. It's also illegal here to marry below the age of 18, or for a grown man to have sexual relations with a girl under 18, or sometimes 16. Don't think Moroccans have tried to change that rule in the Netherlands. In 2001 Morocco officially asked the Netherlands to lower the marital age of Dutch Moroccan girls to 15, similar to the situation in Morocco, where boys are only allowed to marry at age 18. [208] That was not going to happen, of course, so over here Muslim girls have to be locked up from the moment they begin to menstruate until they are allowed to marry: a period of 6 to 7 years. And no marriage means no sex.

The obvious result of these restrictions is a lot of frustrated Moroccan boys and girls. The girls don't bother anyone: they lack the physical strength and are stuck at home. The boys, on the other hand, are generally free to hunt for "whores" here in this "sinful" West and "experiment" with them. This is not limited to just western "whores". Even in the big cities in Morocco, like Casablanca and Marrakesh, hordes of teenage boys go to night clubs to look at and maybe seduce a "whore", i.e. a girl with western habits who likes to wear jeans and dance. In these regions "free-flowing" girls can never be certain if a guy they meet in nightlife actually cares for them. It is quite common that once they've had sex, the guy will start to brag about it to all his friends, begins "slut-shaming" her, and even starts to tell her entire family all the things he has done with her. Also here it's imperative not to make eye-contact with men, as too many will use any excuse to clamp themselves to a woman. [209]

The woman in Casablanca, Morocco, harassed here about half dozen times over a stretch of about 60 yards.

One incredible video from Morocco involves a young Moroccan women walking down the streets of Casablanca in regular western clothing for 10 hours, minding her own business, during which she is verbally and even physically (touching) harassed no less than 320 times. That's more than once every 2 minutes. She's just walking down the street and men, from teenagers to old men, are hissing and whistling to her, making all kinds of remarks and gestures, stalking and obstructing her, touching her hair, slapping her ass, or just very visibly turning around to stare, smile, or laugh at her. Sometimes there actually are rows of men, one after the other, making remarks and touching her. [210] It's just totally crazy. It might actually be worse than an attractively dressed women walking through a black ghetto in America. One article on a Dutch Moroccan website claimed a lot of the remarks were friendly, but anyone who watches the video can see that the overall atmosphere is one of total disrespect and generally quite threatening.

As might be expected, the vast majority of (Arabic) comments on the video are slated against the woman, saying she should have fully covered herself if she wanted to avoid attracting attention. Then again, plenty of Arabic women commenting on the video complain that it doesn't make a whole lot of difference if an attractive, veiled woman goes over street alone without being accompanied by her husband. The commenter who probably explained the men's attitude best wrote:

> "[This is like] putting the food on the table in front of the hungry and depriving him of eating."

It's a fascinating way of thinking. Most western men appreciate the beauty of a sexy woman. They enjoy looking at them, but also realize that in order to continue to enjoy such a beautiful sight, they will have to behave themselves. Otherwise women might just begin to cloak themselves in dull, unappealing clothing and hide behind closed doors in order to feel somewhat safe. Of course, a quick glance is completely acceptable. The more you are the age of the woman in question, the more good-looking you are and the friendlier your demeanor, the less inconspicuous you have to do this. Similarly, a friendly smile or a slightly longer stare is also acceptable. But you need to make sure that women remain comfortable with your presence. While most men don't think about it, the same goes the other way around.

I can relate myself to an extent. I enjoy attention of the other sex: glances and smiles are great for your mood and self-esteem. But women making remarks at me, friendly and certainly crude ones; slapping my ass out of nowhere, desperately seeking my attention, or stalking me in a weird manner would get really creepy and annoying real fast. Now imagine you can't escape this situation until you are well past 40... That would be a nightmare. Fact is, I'm not nearly good-looking enough to get chased down, but what I can say for certain is that the countless women who are in this position would largely prefer to be left alone. Some enjoy men whistling at them or other positive compliments, but that certainly isn't all of them. So for men it's best to stick to brief eye contact and a friendly, open demeanor. If a woman is interested, she'll start dropping hints.

Ultimately what Muslims, and even many western men, fail to see is that relationships between men and women are a complex, exciting, terrifying, irrational, super-positive and sometimes brutal game. That's it: it's a game. So lighten up. Aspect of the game include that there's no certainty, there's seldom instant gratification, there's desire, there's impossibility, there's failure, there's humiliation, there's success, there's status - and there's everything in between. And taking anything by force is cheating and will lead to you yourself being punished. Just look at the pretty depressing state of affairs in the Muslim world. There's a reason why Muslims all want to hang out in our western swimming pools, while supposedly hating everything we in the West stand for. It's called denial.

What Moroccan society and really all of the Muslim world seems to boil down to is men being afraid to express (occasional) weakness, sensitivity, neediness and imperfection. They all need to be tough guys. They all need to show off. Even when older, they all have to be strong and emotionless. They need to dominate. They can't deal with being rejected by "something" they desire. They can't admit that they love, desire and have needs in the first place. This is not applicable to every individual citizen from these regions, but these traits certainly are much more culturally ingrained in these regions.

In fact, it is entirely likely that the Muslim system itself was founded by a bunch of influential men who couldn't deal with being rejected by their love interests, couldn't handle the idea of the dick of another men in the woman they so desperately wanted, and couldn't deal with the fact they desired more than one woman. So they just took away the rights of women, completely veiled them outside of the house and bedroom, introduced arranged marriages, in all circumstances made sure that families oversaw most of the courting between a man and a woman, made it possible to keep several additional female slaves for sexual gratification and brainwashed everybody into believing that this is the will of God, or Allah in this case.

Islamism, more than any other faith, appears to be about control over women in order to establish a large degree of security for men that they will have their desires regarding status and sex met. It's like relationship communism. Ultimately it breeds mentally weak men who cannot deal with jealousy and rejection and come to see women as an inferior species. And that's what we see on the streets here with Moroccans in particular.

Ironically, for all the "whore-shaming" Moroccans have been doing, even many prostitutes, i.e. hookers or real "whores", are rejecting Moroccans. It's very common to see advertisements along these lines with the comment "Dutch men only". Why? Here's the account of a prostitute who has swallowed establishment propaganda hook, line and sinker. She is desperately trying to be "multicultural" but has had to come to a number of basic realities about a number of issues:

> "There is not one group that I reject, that is a principle of mine. I don't discriminate. Handicapped people are [also] welcome with me...
> "There are quite a few girls who state "NL only" on their advertisements. Those are usually girls who like to keep it fun, and who don't want to bite through it for a couple of extra bucks...
> "You do notice that certain groups cause many more > problems. If I wouldn't have taken Antilleans as customer, then I would have avoided three out of four robberies. If I wouldn't take Moroccans, I would have avoided two rapes and would have avoided the other robbery. If I would have rejected black men, then I would have less experiences with STDs. That is all true, and that's why I can't blame girls [for not accepting foreigners]. But I cannot exclude whole population groups due to the activities of a minority. ...

> "Sometimes I walk around with very rightist ideas, even though I know they aren't right." [211]

So here we have an overly nice Dutch prostitute who so desperately is trying to tow the establishment line on "anti-racism" that she allows herself to regularly get robbed and raped by Third World immigrants. Sounds a lot like the average western citizen. We're all getting raped by our national governments and supranational superclass.

By the way, ISGP in no way endorses any kind of ridicule or abuse of prostitutes. If they are well-behaving citizens, they deserve the utmost respect. Let's save ridicule and abuse for people who deserve it, like tons of Third World immigrants.

Government and media tactics to manipulate ethnic crime statistics

One problem that one runs into again and again is that governments refuse to produce proper statistics on ethnic crime. What we need for every country in Europe is ethnic crime statistics per type of offense, with even rape separated into all rape and gang rape/street rape. Except for the last point, the United States is the only country that has these statistics available to a very large extent. Here we can find statistics on robbery, intimidation, violent assault, murder, rape and other crime numbers split out between whites, Hispanics, blacks and sometimes even Native Americans. In Europe we get little more than excuses as to why these numbers are not available.

The following tactics are used by European governments and the dominant liberal media to prevent knowledge about ethnic crime numbers. Many are almost universally employed.

1. Ban police services from registering ethnic backgrounds of arrestees on grounds of countering "racism" and promoting "equality". If an arrestee has a domestic passport, he or she is simply registered as a "native" citizen. France has been doing this since 1978.

2. List second and/or third generation immigrants as "native" on grounds of countering "racism" and promoting "equality".

To how tricky this can be, see the following examples of the Norwegian police in Oslo. In the first example, "over 60%" of rapes can be ascribed to "Norwegians" while in the second, more accurate statistic, ethnic Norwegians only represent 29% of all cases (despite forming an 97%+ majority compared to Muslims and Africans). In this case, by the way, "Asian" numbers doubled in six years time while Africans more than tripled their share in the same brief period. All this was because of immigration, so it's easy to see why so many European governments have resorted to this tactic. France, with its hugely criminal African/Arab population, has been the most extreme with this and has been doing it since 1978 to "counter racism".

3. Split out Arab Muslims among Africa and certainly the Middle East and "Asia". As the above example also demonstrates, Afghanis and Pakistanis are often listen as "Asian", making people wonder if maybe the Chinese or Japanese are involved in mass rape attacks, while in reality they are even less involved in this than whites. Great Britain, for example, has been in the habit of listing its Pakistani community as "Asian".

4. Ban police services from giving out ethnic details on arrestees to the media, including first names. Even in cases of murder where the suspect is still on the run, do not give out profiles. The liberal establishment media generally goes along with this practice.

5. Only report absolute crime numbers (100,000 native white convicts vs "only" 65,000 immigrant convicts!) without the relative "per 100,000" numbers that take ethnic percentages of the population into account.

6. Don't distinguish between crimes when publishing statistics on ethnic crime: picking flowers on private land or getting caught with illegal fireworks is given the same weight as homicide and gang rape.

7. With ethnic statistics don't distinguish between persons who have been arrested once and those who are regularly arrested or are outright career criminals.

8. Encourage police services to dissuade victims from filing crimes in case the evidence is not particularly strong, so the government can claim in its annual report that "overall, crime is going down, despite increased immigration."

9. Hide the fact that police services are so overwhelmed by daily inconsiderate behavior of immigrants in many neighborhoods, that they simply are unable to respond to issues or register claims about them. Similarly hide the fact that as a result, civilians simply stop reporting many offenses and even crimes because they have become disillusioned with the police services as a result of their non-action.

10. Ignore the fact that huge numbers of criminal complaints against Third World immigrants are actually avoided, because westerners allow themselves to be intimidated. In over 90 percent of cases, westerners will not talk back to generally groups of foreigners who harass them. Why? Foreigners usually have the numerological advantage, shun violence and weapons far less, have far less to lose, and even gain status amongst their peers for beating up natives. Meanwhile, if a native person responds in the manner he should, with violence, there's great risk of persecution by the government. If natives would start to talk back against groups of immigrants, there would be total chaos. Fights would break out everywhere, every day, with natives generally ending up in hospital or the morgue. Or in jail - and with that lose their job, followed by wife and kids. So the prevention of open conflict and even higher crime statistics of immigrants explain why western governments want us to be submissive to foreigners.

Don't think for a second that the Dutch government doesn't hide and manipulate crime numbers. The hiding aspect is easiest to see: we simply do not have enough statistics on Third World immigrants per crime. As for the manipulation, one of a number of blatant examples is the prominent claim of the Justice Department in 2014 that over the course of 2013 the number of home break-ins had drastically gone down. Then one looks at the raw data and sees the following:

Geregistreerde en opgehelderde misdrijven naar delict

	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013
Diefstal (inbraak) uit woning	68.078	70.771	74.133	82.520	88.956	91.759 -3,000	87.480
Diefstal (inbraak) uit schuur/garage e.d.	21.335	20.474	20.447	20.025	19.446	20.080 +3,000	23.076

First, looking at the top row it's clear that there has been a huge rise in home break-ins over the previous years. It only went down a little in 2013, by 3,000. At the same time we see a sudden 3,000 increase in shed and garage break-ins. Explanation? The government, through the Justice Department, simply ordered the police to register home break-ins as shed and garage break-ins whenever and wherever it could. [212] How can anyone trust a prime minister who runs a government that encourages these type of cheap publicity scams? It's a really sad state of affairs.

Dutch police: little response, discourages the filing of criminal complaints

There's considerably more to discuss in regard to government crime statistics. The Dutch government has also ignored for a long time that "every year again it turns out that the number of crimes the police and Justice Department work on, only represent a fraction of the number citizens experience." Of the total number of 8.2 million annually "experienced" crimes among citizens, the police is only informed of about 15%, or 1.2 million. Only 20 to 24% of these crimes are "solved" and about 35% of these, or roughly 100,000 cases, end up in front of a judge.

> "Summarized: the total number of crimes is enormous. The desire with the civilian to bother the police with them is limited. Chances of the police solving a crime is small. Just as the chance that the Prosecutor's Office does something with it afterwards. Only when the judge gets involved the result is predictable - 90 percent guilty. ... For years the policy has been to primarily hand the heavier crimes to the judge. ...
> "Chances of getting caught and punished in the Netherlands, they appear to be negligible. Whether crime rises or goes down, it is almost impossible to say a few coherent words on it. Most crime we don't know because civilians and corporations simply take it on the chin." [213]

While these conclusions are quite damning, it appears they are still too mild. First, the police doesn't solve a whole lot of crime. Home break-ins and all kinds of street theft of cars and bikes are only solved at a low single-digit rate, with (usually reported) crime in these areas dropping or being controlled by technological innovations. Store theft, however, is generally solved at a much higher rate. Not because of the police, but because of cameras bought and guards hired by these stores. [214] When you look at neighboring Germany, the police is able to solve more than twice the amount of crime, so something is terribly wrong in the Netherlands in this regard. Among the major differences are that Germany has a considerably larger percentage of detectives and that detectives alone are allowed to handle criminal complaint interviews, whereas in the Netherlands largely untrained desk workers take these statements, often leading to frustration with detectives. [215]

Second, the 8.2 million annually "experienced" crimes by Dutch people might be on the low side. Let's see the number of "experienced" misdemeanors and crimes I myself observed these past 12 months and largely never reported:

- About a dozen people causing a punishable amount of neighborly noise roughly 200 times per year involving music, yelling, barking dogs and late-night construction work.
- About half a dozen observations of public sexual harassment of women.
- Saw two bikes get stolen with die grinders amidst a large shopping mall crowd on broad daylight.
- About a dozen times dangerous behavior of youths riding on their back wheel of their bicycle on busy streets.
- About 5 cases of dangerous driving behavior, such as the ignoring of red lights.
- Almost had an heavy object thrown on my head in the middle of the night from a home while biking through a Arab-dominated neighborhood. Filed a report through the police's website: never heard anything again from it.
- Experienced harassment 3 times or so which appeared to be racially motivated - albeit only during a period I was very thin (50% heavier now).
- The family dog was attacked twice by irresponsible dog owners, with my father being a victim as well in one of these case (bitten by two pitbulls).

Crime seems to be massively on the increase in this neighborhood. Some other things that have happened:

- More and more police chases, three of whom ending in front of my door involving no less than 10 police cars and warning shots being fired.

- A secret drug lab explosion wiping out a block of garage boxes on the other side of the park.
- Gunshots fired just outside my house.
- A person knocked unconscious in front of my house.
- A person either fully unconscious or dead lying on the street.
- About 100 kids rioting in the local mall, after being drawn there by a social media influencer.
- Kids tossing firecrackers amongst the crowd in a busy shopping street.
- Kids tossing a shopping cart on a woman from an overpass, putting her on intensive care.
- Twice almost getting killed by persons driving through red lights at extremely high speeds.

Am I a nag? Maybe, but it is an interesting detail that except for the dog owners and some of the traffic violations, not a SINGLE unreported misdemeanor or crime here was perpetrated by native white citizens. Not a single one! Most were blacks, followed by Arabs, followed by a few East Block immigrants. And it appears we can put countless cases of sexual molestations of women at swimming pools and other locations into the same category of "experienced" crime that never is reported and certainly not solved.

Here's another key detail: the police never bothered to show up for any of my reported "experienced" crimes. I can call the police day and night for neighbors blasting music all night - always the same people - the operator on the other end of the line always says the same thing: "Have you tried to talk to the neighbors yourself? Yes? 10 times? They are laughing at you? Well, I'm very sorry, but all our police cars are busy at this point." Then sometimes three hours later they call you to inquire if it's still going on. "No? Oh well, let us know next time. I'll take you off the list of alerts. Sleep tight!"

In another case I called the police for a family member who had an (immigrant) neighbor who kept a large dog year-round in his garden that kept barking in the evening and early morning, continually waking people up. One elderly (white) men couldn't take it anymore after a year and moved away, probably to an elderly home. So I call the police when I'm around, so they themselves can register the dog barking at 6 o'clock in the morning. It's the easiest thing in the world to register, because the only requirement is for anyone to make even the slightest bit of sound within about 60-70 yards of this dog. Well, the woman on the other side of the line angrily told me: "You're calling for that?! You can't solve that yourself?! We got no time for that." Eventually she promised to send by a police car to register the problem and drag this person from his bed for a "dialogue". Nothing ever arrived and I was never called back.

It was the same story after the family dog was attacked twice. In one of the attacks my father and the dog could well have been fully torn torn to pieces by two out-of-control pitbulls. In neither case the police had any desire to do anything about it. The first was arranged privately, because the owner was quite a decent person. With the other case the dog owners got away, despite the fact that there was enough testimony and enough admission of guilt to prosecute them. I actually told my parents to push on with the complaint, but civilized as they are, they wouldn't go against the police who advised them to "let it go". And thus they also paid for the medical bills themselves.

Just a couple of years ago the police generally would show up in cases of neighborly disturbances. Not that they were going be diligent and effective - officers would generally start pointless time-consuming "dialogues" despite having the power to hand out immediate fines and take away equipment with the third transgression - but at least they showed up. These days? Pretty much never. So people can terrorize neighborhoods as much as they please and punish neighbors who speak out against their behavior just a little more.

The disheartening thing here is that it only takes one Third World immigrant to completely screw up a formerly peaceful white middle class neighborhood. So many blacks from Africa and the Caribbean have voices like gorillas which they don't know and don't care to moderate during evening hours, deep at night, or in the early morning. One moment you hardly hear your neighbors talking when they're sitting in their garden on a quiet evening. The next you're listening day in-day out - even with all windows closed - to the voice of Nkuku Kwazabanga from Limpopo who has moved in a solid 10 houses on. Believe me, I've seen it plenty of times, Nkuku will never lower his voice or shut down his music unless there's an immediate threat of extreme violence, extradition, a prison sentence, or a stiff fine. He might not even be a bad guy to talk to when after 10 years he speaks a little bit of the native language - but he simply does not have the consciousness to look around him and come up with the idea to adapt to the society that has allowed him in.

To make matters worse, you can bet the police will come down to arrest you if you beat up a neighbor like this, because these type of "crimes" have higher priority to respond to and are easier to solve. They also look great on ethnic statistics that might be published in the future: "another case" of violent white-on-immigrant crime.

This brings us to another key point debate: changes in citizens' willingness to even report crimes anymore. The above article questioned "the desire of the civilian to bother the police with [criminal complaints] is limited." That's not a correct explanation of the situation. It would be more correct to say that people are willing to report misdemeanors and crimes - very much so - but feel that:

1. nothing is done with them;
2. they are often made to feel like they are the ones who have done something wrong by filing the complaint;
3. and/or are dissuaded by police officers to file a complaint, often under the pretense that there isn't enough evidence anyway.

Readers can find all kinds of examples along these lines in this article - and that with various serious crimes involving sexual assault. In 2016 this issue finally made the national news. Algemeen Dagblad newspaper carried out a number of tests and found out that police services in Amsterdam and various other locations send people out the door who were looking to file a complaint of non-violent robbery. Sometimes the internet method was suggested; other times it wasn't. The two replies to this article are very reminiscent of what we already have discussed in this article until now:

> Poster 1 (woman): "One of my neighbors was threatened with a baseball bat by another neighbor. He wanted to file a complaint and received the same reaction: "We don't do anything with that." If you call the police because for the third evening in a row a group of 14 or 15 hang youth are causing problems, they also don't come, by the way. Then they simply say you yourself should approach them. Also in Hilversum by the way. And then I still live in a reasonably good neighborhood. In the socially [less good neighborhoods] people are completely handed to the gods. It is a sad state of affairs with the police."

> Poster 2: "Same thing in Almere. Woman robbed of her phone in a store. Called the police immediately after the incident. "Is there camera footage? No? Then we also don't take up a complaint. Yes, digitally is possible, but we don't do anything with that. Have a nice day.""[216]

Two months later the same Algemeen Dagblad newspaper cited a report of the Justice Department that read: "If in 2014 this [willingness to file criminal complaints by civilians] would have sat at the 2005 level, the police would have received roughly 300,000 more criminal complaints." In 2005 the police received 1.3 million criminal complaints; in 2014 it received 1 million such complaints, meaning that based on these numbers and conclusions of the Justice Department itself crime in the Netherlands has not gone down. Gerard van Kamp, the chairman of a major police union, added:

> "This proves that the Netherlands is not getting safer at all. I'm sick and tired of the good news-show of Justice. It is shocking that hundreds of thousands of Dutch people don't > file complaints anymore of criminal facts. ... Also since the start of the National Police [in 2013 to replace 25 regional corpses] the distance between the civilian and the police has increased." [217]

To put it in even better perspective: in just 9 years time people stopped reporting roughly 25% of the crimes they "experienced". Clearly a lot of trust was lost in the police during this short period. And since then, things have only gotten worse.

I myself first noticed around 2014 that the police never showed up anymore after calling them. This was one year after the birth of the National Police force, a reorganization of the existing regional police services considered to have only made the lack of efficiency worse. [218] This is also right in the period that the government had begun to dismantle close to 40% of its prisons [219] and 50% of its police stations [220], all under the pretext that crime levels are dropping like crazy in the Netherlands (despite Third World immigration, yeeh!), prisons are running empty at record levels as a result, and that therefore budget cuts are the only responsible choice. [221] Immediately before these decisions were made a number of establishment researchers were suggesting in national newspapers that prison sentences of 8 years for murderers are inhumane, costly, and will make it too hard for perpetrators to "reintegrate" into society. According to these pro-government experts, many prisoners would benefit much more from community service. [222]

Considering evidence that crime levels have hardly gone down over the years while many prisons have been running on empty - this amidst a government policy focused on maximum budget cuts - it seems clear that judges are encouraged by the government to hand out community service instead of prison sentences for many types of crime. And this indeed is the case. Unfortunately, the entire policy is based on limited, and therefore fraudulent, data that prison sentences lead to increased "recidivism". Proper research in its full context actually reveals the opposite: longer prison sentences work as a deterrent and the locking up of career criminals for extended periods of time prevents large numbers of crime. The policy of doing the opposite is strictly a Dutch one. While Belgium has seen a similar (supposed) decline in its crime numbers, its prison population rose with one-third over the past decades while the Dutch prison population went down with one-third. [223]

What can be said for certain is that an enormous amount of Dutch people are frustrated with the police's lack of action against all kinds of crime and its unwillingness to accept criminal complaints. The Algemeen Dagblad article about the people's greatly lowered willingness to file complaints featured 54 replies. All but one of these responders is agreeing that it is next to useless these days to file complaints to the police. The only poster defending the Justice Department is a person citing all kinds of questionable statistics, and with that might well be a government troll. Ironically, while writing my own experiences with the police along these lines earlier in this section, I had not yet run into these replies, nor the two immediately featured above. Clearly other people have been noticing the exact same things as I have and once again the newspapers are terribly slow to pick up on it.

1. Poster 1: "I can write a book about this. Seen the worst things without any type of complaint being registered."

2. Poster 2: "I regularly hear of people who want to file a complaint, but that it actually get to hear from the police that it is of no use, because they are not going to do anything with it. So yeah, what do you expect then?"

3. Poster 3: "My mother was threatened recently and was told at the police station that it would be better if she didn't file a complaint. 'That person threatening you will get to see your name and data, madam' it was said. 'If I were you I would just not file a complaint.'"

4. Poster 4: "With a break-in with theft you have to file a complaint from the insurance company, an event that is a waste of your time. After 2 or 3 days you already get a letter from the police that because of the work no attention can be given to the case."

5. Poster 5: "You think this is crazy? A female friend is already being stalked by her ex for 5 years. "Yes ma'am, nothing we can do about it," she was told time and again. Now he had two firearms, and now all of a sudden he get arrested. Has been in jail for a weekend but is allowed to await his trial in freedom because a judge decided he "doesn't form a threat". Then I also give up with filing complaints if I see this."

6. Poster 6: "It is not just "complaint fatigue" but also a demotivation policy of the police!! Then they get better statistics for example with robberies, physical abuse and what not. I was stopped by 2 kids, 1 in front of my car and 1 at my door. You know how it goes. After a while I called the police if I could drop by to file a complaint. I received a negative answer, because "no blood had been spilled"."

7. Poster 7: *"Have you ever tried to file a criminal complaint? The police will do everything it can to get rid of the victims, because the crime numbers need to go down. with pressure from both of our lawyers, we were able to finish up a complaint. The perpetrator was allowed to comment by phone and... after four times of not showing up [in court] at the request of our dear judge... he received a two months suspended sentence."

8. Poster 8: "Why would I allow myself to be robbed twice? The first time by the perpetrator, the second time by a judge who will sentence him to community service, because he is ordered by the politicians to leave the prisons empty."

9. Poster 9: "Pointless action filing a complaint. ... Once there was respect for the police, but has long since disappeared."

10. Poster 10: "Also nothing happens with it. Together with 20/30 other people I filed a complaint against a con man of a one-man business. Business bankrupt and money gone. ... No investigation done."

11. Poster 11: "The police is useless if one wants to file a complaint. And even when it happens to be possible, after a few weeks they still pick up the wrong complaint, and you never hear anything about it ever again."

12. Poster 12 (female seemingly talking about sexual harassment): "I never file complaints of anything anymore and I deal with it myself. The sentences they get here don't amount to anything anyway and they just have access to the internet. They can just call me, got everything in their cell, and they can just continue to harass their victims during parole. So, yeah, why wouldn't we want that????"

13. Poster 13: "That is because perpetrators of a crime are not punished anymore of just get some community service. That's why so many prisons are closed down. It's too crazy for words. Justice in the Netherlands has become a joke."

14. Poster 14: "After a death threat you can make an appointment to file a complaint a week later. What if it was a case of discrimination?"

15. Poster 15: "Even if you bother to file a complaint it is wasted effort. In the weekend police stations are often closed. Then you have to file a complaint during the week. Then you have take up unpaid leave, because in the evening hours the station is closed. If after hours of waiting the complaint is finally finished up, then the complaint disappears onto a large pile because there is no capacity to do something with it. ... Better not file a complaint."

16. Poster 16: "Got the same experience. File a complaint, you're sitting hours on the police station. And if you have been threatened with death you receive a polite note that you'll just have to go into discussion with the perp or perps and have to deal with it in some other way."

17. Poster 17: "Who is filing a complaint these days of a stolen bike? Even when you know who the perpetrator is, the police does nothing. Yes, then you learn not to do that again."

18. Poster 18: "On top of that the police has a very active discouragement policy towards people who do take the effort to file a complaint.

    - Can't do anything about it.
    - There's nobody to file the complaint, come back tomorrow.
    - No, we don't take a complaint for that anymore."

19. Poster 19: "In my whole life, I may have filed a complaint on 15 occasions. Can't remember that anything was done with, not even in one case..."

20. Poster 20: "Police can't be properly spoken to anymore either." [224]

In a 2019 poll roughly 1,500 police officers themselves admitted that the decrease of registered crime in the Netherlands is nothing more than a scam, and that the police force indeed discourages citizens from filing criminal complaints. At least 84.4% of officers agreed - and really 97.3% - that there never was a 30% reduction in crime between 2013 and 2018, with 55% saying it actually increased over those years [1]:

It's quite fascinating that the polls about the reasons behind these policies have been left blank, but from an accompanying article we learn that most police officers reported that they simply were following orders.

Anno 2017, the situation in the Netherlands is that half the police stations have been or are about to be dismantled and replaced with vague mobile units, tents and neighborhood "registration points" that nobody knows where to find. Almost half the prisons have been dismantled, with the remaining ones concentrated in regions of the country where they are cheapest to operate. (Completely overloading the system by 2024, with prisons filled to the brim.) The combination of the two appears to lead to serious problems. Police capacity has already been lowered and is lowered still further because officers in many parts of the country have to travel a full work day to transport an arrestee to prison - and as a result are not available for other tasks. Many decent-size towns now have no police station anymore [225], increasing crime levels. Reports are also emerging that organized crime is spreading its influence in the countryside due to the lowered concentration of police units, leading up to 30 minute arrival times by the police after a crime has been reported. [226]

For those criminals actually sentenced to prison and not community service, it also appears that it is getting less and less of a pain to be handed such a sentence due to experiments with handing inmates the keys to their own cells in order to make them more "self-reliant". Prison guards have been critical of the policy. They are of the opinion it's likely inmates will become more involved in criminal conspiracies as drug trade, because they are able to spend a lot of time together completely unsupervised. Also, they are "looking at these experiments and nothing more than a vulgar cost-cut on prison personnel." Inmates are also provided with digital screens to order food and make appointments, cutting back further on prison staff. [227]

Meanwhile, police officers on the streets are even less satisfied than the prison guards. No less than 11% of the police force is on sick leave due to psychological stress, a solid three times higher than the national average. Considering the fact that police officers are forced to take enormous amounts of abuse from immigrant criminals and youth delinquents in particular because any type of physical violence is strictly prohibited, this number might be even higher among purely street cops. After this number got out, the police adjusted it to a better-sounding 5.9% by including all its "non executive" support staff. [228]

In the end, we can't really tell if crime levels among immigrants have gone down. All we can say is that they have always been greatly elevated compared to native whites. Greatly increased security measures at swimming pools and other public establishments do not represent structural solutions. Earlier we discussed evidence provided by our own government that the second generation of immigrants, with Moroccans at the top, actually is more criminal than the first. And now we have gathered a ton of evidence that our government is doing everything it can to obduscate the real crime numbers, to the point of ordering the police to discourage the people to file criminal complaints.

It appears we need a revolution of some sort to fix this level of corruption.

THE SITUATION IN OTHER EU COUNTRIES

Good information is tough to get

It turns out to be very tough to figure out what has been going on in other European countries with regard to sexual assault and violence of Muslim youths in swimming pools and other recreational locations. There appear to be a variety of reasons for this:

1. Mainstream media news outlets and governments never particularly preferred to give attention to the issue. It's possible that citizens in most, if not all, West European countries experience stricter censorship than in the Netherlands.

2. A lack of general knowledge of the country to outsiders. Me personally, I don't know the names of all the key swimming pools or nightlife establishments. I don't know key forums or alternative, anti-immigration news outlets. And I don't know which media outlets are reliable.

3. Language barriers in Europe are a huge problems. It takes forever to find information if you don't know a certain language. With modern translation programs we wouldn't even be able to figure out anything, especially because per country there are not a whole lot of critical voices making information available in English. In fact, much of mainland Europe, especially as you go south and to the east, don't speak English very well. The Netherlands scores the highest in this regard, followed by Scandinavian countries.

4. Traditional Arab immigration groups have been Turks and Moroccans, with especially the latter - in line with all the rest of the Middle East - causing sexual assault problems. While problematic, the Turks essentially are the sweethearts of the Middle East. Countries like Germany, with tons of Turkish immigration but far less Moroccan, probably have seen much less problems in the past than countries with a lot of Moroccan immigration, such as the Netherlands, Belgium, France and Spain.

5. The strength of the police and judicial forces per country. These forces have been overly tolerant and incompetent in the Netherlands.

So these are five reasons why it is next to impossible to up with good information on countries outside of the Netherlands. We'll still going to give it a quick try though.

Sweden I: Dutch immigrant crime historically worse?

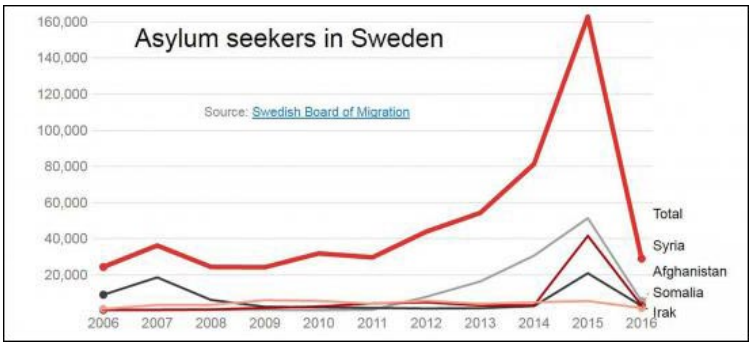
As it turns out, Sweden is the main country apart from the Netherlands (at least now, with this article) where information exists that immigrants have been involved in many cases of sexual assault and violence at swimming pools, in this case since at least the the turn of the century.

Sweden is a country with a modest 9.9 million inhabitants. If you look at Third World immigrant groups in Sweden minus the Far East, other western countries and Poland, you end with 1.3 million by 2016. The largest Muslim immigrant groups at that point were as follows:

Syrian:	150,000
Iraqi:	135,000

Iranian: 71,000
Somalian: 64,000
Turkish: 47,000
Eritrean: 35,000
Afghan: 35,000
Lebanese: 27,000
Ethiopian: 18,000
Pakistani: 13,000
Total: 595,000 / 6% problematic Muslim ethnicities

Iraqis have been coming into Sweden at a steady pace for a long time. Syrians, now the dominant Muslim immigration group in Sweden, only came into the country starting in 2011 when the ISIS conflict began to arise. Afghans, followed by Somalians, began to spike strongly in 2014 when the immigration crisis rose. The grapgh below provides a decent oversight of this progression:



Now compare this to the Netherlands of 2016. Total inhabitants: 17 million. Here we don't just include the Muslims, but also blacks. Sweden primarily has black immigrants who also happen to be Muslim. This is not the case with the Netherlands. Antilleans and Surinams are secular. Why they are included is because they have huge crime numbers. They're actually imprisoned at higher rates than even the Moroccans.

Turk: 420,000
Moroccan: 390,000
Surinam: 360,000
Antillean: 150,000
Iraqi: 57,000
Afghan: 45,000
Somalian: 40,000
Iranian: 37,000
Ghanese: 25,000
Pakistani: 22,000
Ethiopian: 15,000
Dominican: 15,000
Nigerian: 13,000
Congolese: 10,000
Total: 1,599,000 / 9.4% major problem ethnicities
Total: 1,030,000 / 6.1% problematic Muslim ethnicities

I actually made this comparison because the Swedish immigration numbers surprised me: they really don't seem that bad compared to all the international headlines that have been devoted to it.

Without a doubt, with so many Iraqis and Iranians in the country and a considerable number of Somalis, Sweden must have had trouble with sexual assaults since at least the early 2000s. As discussed in ISGP's article on black crime, Somalis in particular have made the news on numerous occasions in this regard. Iranians have also made the news.

Still, as Sweden's own crime statistics have revealed, North Africans - such as the Moroccans - have the highest overall crime numbers. And Moroccans, a large, unified, extremely criminal group, is exactly what the Netherlands has had a ton of. Roughly 400,000 as of this writing. That would be the equivalent of 235,000 in Sweden. Since the immigration crisis took off late 2011 after the fall of Gaddafi and the rise of ISIS, Sweden easily makes that number with problematic immigrants, so it is no surprise that problems of sexual assault have increased dramatically. But before they allowed all these Syrians, Afghans, Somalians and a number of other ethnicities in, problems couldn't have been as bad as in the Netherlands, even more so because Sweden didn't have to deal with half a million very criminal secular blacks that could and can be found in the Netherlands in the form of the Surinams and Antilleans.

So why has the world been talking about Sweden, but not the Netherlands? Most of it simply seems to be the hype generated after the country widened its definition of rape in 2005. Essentially sexual molestation is now also seen as rape in Sweden, simple as that. Sweden's rape statistics have already been discussed in ISGP's black crime article.

Sweden II: swimming pool problems since turn of century

Studying the situation in Sweden after the situation in the Netherlands has been both shocking and hilarious. It's possible to spot the EXACT same pattern: large groups of out-of-control (immigrant) groups who sexually molest and sometimes rape young girls, vandalize, intimidate, stink up the pool by continuing to wear their dirty underwear, provoke fights with staff and other swimmers, wait for staff to leave after work, threaten with knives, come back to the pool in large groups to take revenge for previous evictions, and have no problem taking on the police and private security personnel.

We can also observe the same pattern with ever-increasing security measures, most of whom don't work, certainly not with immigration exponentially increasing: first extra pool attendants and replacement of female attendants with male attendants, then guards from specialized security firms, staffers with Arab backgrounds, undercover guards, above-water cameras, then underwater cameras (to capture the generally underwater sexual assaults), more secured desks to prevent unauthorized access and finally an ID system with blacklists. In between you see "anti-racist" panic measures as banning everyone under a certain age from specific time periods or temporary segregated swimming of men and women. [229] And, of course, there's always the issue with Arabs keeping their dirty underwear on in swimming pools.

The Swedes are making all the same mistakes the Dutch made back in the 1990s. For example, making social service-type passes available to immigrants that allow them to swim for free or virtually free. Dutch pools had to cancel those passes in the late 1990s due to the Moroccan terror (these passes still exist, but free access to most pools has been removed), but stunningly, the Swedes just handed them out to tens of thousands of horny, Muslim teenage Afghan boys when they started arriving in 2014, expecting a different outcome. [230] Similarly, to this day it appears Swedish politicians think the problem of sexual assaults in swimming pools by Muslims can be halted by hiring a few extra pool attendants and removing troublemakers for a few months or years. It's really bizarre. The only thing that works is full-on anti-terrorism measures: biometric ID systems, lots of guards and preferably centralized permanent ban lists. This, of course, will just shift the problem to other parts of society. It will also not stop the exodus of whites from pools that have too many Third World immigrant visitors.

Media censorship in Sweden seems to be on par with most other European countries, meaning that it is worse than in the Netherlands, where it already isn't in a very good shape. The articles we are going to discuss and cite below, virtually none of them mention ethnicity. It's really shocking to behold.

Various swimming pools are known to have had trouble with Muslim immigrants, mainly youths, even before the immigration crisis. mainly youths. These include:

- Aq-va-Kul in Malmo.
- Hylliebadet in Malmo.
- Husbybadet in Stockholm.
- Sydpoolen in Södertälje.
- Citadellbadet in Landskrona.
- Metropoolen in Avesta.
- Kokpunkten in Vasteras.
- A swimming pool in Ulricehamn.
- A water park in Orebro.

The problem is unlikely to have been limited to these pools, but this is as far as the brief inquiry here - based on search words as "invandrare"

"badhuset" and "sexuella trakasserier" - goes.

Aq-va-Kul and Hylliebadet in Malmo

Aq-va-Kul in Malmo.

We'll start out by looking at Malmo, Sweden's second-largest city which has been hit with largest Third World immigrant wave over the years. Until 2007, the city had three swimming pools: Aq-va-Kul, Oxievangsbadet and Kockum Fritid. In 2007 Lindängsbadet was added to the mix. In August 2015 Hylliebadet, a swimming pool that is entirely energy-independent due to solar panels on the roof, was opened in Malmo and came to replace Aq-va-Kul. The opening of the pool didn't proceed entirely smoothly, as "just during the first week, 27 incidents were reported." [231] According to Swedes commenting online, trouble at Hylliebadet is caused by immigrants, with many references to Iraqis being made, until recently the dominant Third World immigration group into Sweden:

> Swedish poster 1: "Baptize it to the "Persian Gulf" so that civilized people understand that you should avoid the place."
> Swedish poster 2: "The only one who knew how to handle the situation was Saddam, he kept the order!"

> Swedish poster 7: "Segregation is probably not so dumb after all."
> Swedish poster 8: "Absolutely. But to make [immigrant] people comply with the rules [in swimming pools], 100,000 armed guards / police officers are required. In the Middle East, conflicts are not resolved by talking. To be right = A matter of honor [and means] violence."
> Swedish poster 9: "How can we allow foreigners to harass us in our own country? ... Isn't there anyone more worthy than these cheeky types who come over here and land in our bathhouses? It is time to take back control of our own country! Sweden will be Swedish again!"

> Swedish poster 10: "Low-income people here in Sweden can no longer live safely and nicely in their own country. "Own" country I just wrote. It was a long time since Sweden was ours. Today, it belongs to the IS [Islamic State] and everyone else."
> Swedish poster 11: "We have traveled around the world to experience how it works in other cultures. Today we can stay home and visit the bathhouse to experience the wonderful multiculture in compact form." [232]

The only surprising thing about these comments is that they hardly make references to sexual assault at Sweden's swimming pools. They happen later on, but it appears as if Iraqi youths are less deeply involved in this than Moroccans.

Our focus, however, is pre-2014 really, and preferably even longer ago, well before the most recent Third World immigration crisis. Not much information appears to be available on Oxievangsbadet and Kockum Fritid. And looking at the type and numbers of immigrants in Sweden before the most recent immigration, maybe we shouldn't expect too widespread a problem until this point. Despite that, Aq-va-Kul is a little different. Since at least 2002 this swimming pool has been making the news for out-of-control "youths" threatening pool staff and chasing other swimmers away. As is so often the case, not even the slightest word has been uttered about the perpetrators' ethnic background. So technically it can't be proved that any of the these incidents involve immigrant youths. Very convenient and utterly shocking. Still, because the situation is so reminiscent of the Netherlands - albeit at a smaller scale - we're still going to list some of the key reports here.

Aq-va-Kul, November 2002:

> "Troubled youths have taken over the bath house Aq-va-Kul. Many families do not go there anymore and the staff is being threatened. ...
> "It has gotten worse this year. There are large groups of ten to twenty youths of different ages who threaten and provoke both swimmers and pool attendants. They are not here to swim, they are only looking for trouble," says first bathmaster Bertil Lindeberg.
> "The threats to the lifeguards are getting more serious: "You have to go home sometime - I'll wait outside." "I'll get you in town", are some comments from troubled youngsters. Sometimes threats have also become physical and some of the employees are afraid to go to work.

"But it's not just the staff that's targeted. The bored youths expose other bathers to danger by throwing things around... Fighting between different youths is not uncommon. "It's a hell here on weekends. The youths are very hot-headed and some evenings I do not dare to go home," says one of the attendants who wants to remain anonymous.

"Previously, the swimming pool hired a security guard for the weekends, but it was not enough. Since two weeks, the swimming pool is guarded every weekend by two guards.

""On any given day we can evict up to twenty problematic individuals. They should not be here to disturb. This week there were three youngsters who unprovoked gave themselves [note: sexual assault?!] to a twelve-year-old," says Anders Kvant, one of the order guards. ...

Swimming pool manager Lars Wallinder is very concerned about the situation, but not surprised: "It's a picture of society. What's going on in Malmo as a whole happens here too. Now the youth violence has hit us too," he says. ...

"Some of the suggestions discussed are to insert surveillance cameras in the entrance and on the second floor and have two youth-free weekends in the month when only people over 21 years of age and families with children are welcome." [233]

Aq-va-Kul, February 2005:

"[At Aq-va-Kul] employees feel more like guards than attendants. ... "Today's situation can best be described as a downward spiral," says the report by the consulting company Palm & Partners on behalf of the Recreation Board. ...

"Over the last three years, the bath has had major problems with youths that threaten and harass both bathers and staff. The measures taken (entrance cameras, refurbished reception that made it more difficult to force oneself in, guards, multilingual staff, camera-supervised whirlpool) could not stop the interference.

"As a result, the number of visiting families with children has decreased while the bath has increased costs for guarding and the various security measures. This has been one of the reasons that the bath's revenue has been a few million kronor under budget in recent years." [234]

Aq-va-Kul, December 2005:

> "On Thursday night, two 14-year-old girls were going for an evening swim at the [Aq-va-Kul] swimming pool. A lifeguard then observed two men in the age of 35-40 who were a taking a little too much interest in the girls. ...
> "The men threatened the girls and would be waiting for them outside. Police were contacted but when they arrived the men were already gone. According to the police, the men would have massaged the girls' hands. The men would also have brushed the girls on the cheek. ...
> "Over the years, several bathers have been sexually assaulted in Aq-va-Kul. Last year, the swimming pool was allowed to install surveillance cameras after major problems with harassment and noise." [235]

From March 2007 to August 2008 Aq-va-Kul was closed for renovations. In February 2010 the pool made the news again after a 15-year-old youth who had been evicted earlier came back and almost stabbed the responsible pool attendant. [236] That same month a 13-year-old girl was sexually molested in the whirlpool of the pool by a 38-year-old man. [237] When in June of this year the summer started, problems at Aq-va-Kul increased even more:

> "At Aq-va-Kul. in Malmö, there has now been a problem with both threats and violence by a large group of youths rioting at the water park.
> "These situations have become much more complex than before. Previously, there were a few people who misbehaved but now it's a group of about 25-30 people, which means that completely different demands are placed on employees and the business itself," says Unit Manager Gordona Vincic." ...
> "This year, two people have been evicted from Aq-va-Kul." [238]

Two people have been evicted during the first 6 months of 2010 at Aq-va-Kul? Really? Unless that's a reference to the two public reports from February, this either reflects total and complete incompetence or a total and complete lie. You can't have large scale problems with rioting youths and only have two persons removed in a six month period.

More known incidents occurred at Aq-va-Kul in December 2005, September 2009, December 2009 and March 2012. The first three involved attacks on girls, although reports only talk about girls being hit, vague grabbing, and being pushed under water. The last report involved a "father" who ended up with brain trauma after being punched in the head by a 26-year-old. All the available details are very, very vague.

There is nothing about sexual molestation, although all cases appear to be related to it. [239]

In late June 2013 Aq-va-Kul temporarily closed down one of the pools in its bath after another bout of vandalism by "youths", leading to glass fragments in the water. The youths were evicted on a Saturday, but came back to riot on Sunday. The pool staff, with aid of a private security force and the police, had to remove them twice that day. That evening the private security firm escorted the staff back home to make sure no one was attacked by the youths. [240]

After this riot, Aq-va-Kul. decided to hire G4S guards for the weekend and school vacations. G4S is the international private security company that bought the notorious Wackenhut mercenary firm back in 2002. Even these guards were ordered never to work or try to intervene alone, because of the danger many "swimmers" posed. G4S made the news on a number of occasions, including January 2014 when a 22-year-old beat up a man in his 60s in the whirlpool of Aq-va-Kul. [241]

Aq-va-Kul closed down as a public swimming pool in 2015, handing that role to the soon equally troubled Hylliebadet. Comments on immigration:

> Person 1: "Aqua kul = Al qaida kul"
> Person 2: "So Aq-va-Kul. had to close for the public ?! I had missed it - thought that the absence of horror stories from there [had another reason]... Sadly, choosing to restrict access to the community - demanding the behavior of immigrants and backing up the requirement of guards was of course not to be considered."
> Person 3: "several years of action were attempted on Aq-va coal. Immigrants were employed as bodyguards, as it was said that the noise was due to language mistakes. It turned out that this was not the reason, without the noise, the threats and the vandalization escalated until finally after many years of closure. I do not know why you think it would be better in a new bathhouse. Aq-va-Kul. was not in an immigrant area, but that's more in Hyllie...."
> Person 4: "Has a friend who works as a security guard and every time he gets alarm that they are in trouble at the bathhouse, they are cultural enthusiasts. When he arrives, they jump into the pool so he does not get the idiot." [242]

Husbybadet

Husbybadet swimming pool in Stockholm has also made the news on several occasions before the more recent immigration crisis. In 2005 a 17-year-old was sexually assaulted at the whirlpool by two "youths", one of 16-years-old. When the girl got out and walked to a cave, the youths followed. One held her down while the 16-year-old raped her. Stunningly, 30 other people were present at the cave during the rape. They looked at it and did nothing. The rapist was given 3 months youth detention. After several suicide attempts, the victim was taken up in a psychiatric institution. [243]

Husbybadet in Stockholm.

In 2007 Husbybadet made the news again when it installed a newer, more powerful water treatment facility in order to keep the pool clean, this because Arabs - who already wash less - refuse to take their underwear off, resulting in dirty, foul-smelling water due to the greatly increased bacteria and nitrogen contents. In particular, these practices turned the warm whirlpools of Husbybadet into laundry machines. Shockingly, newspapers only talked about "people" doing this - not Muslim immigrants. Aftonbladet even went as far to write that, "Having underwear under the swimwear has become a trend among young people. It is considered cool to put the trunks under the swimwear to show the brand name." [244] Does this extremely dirty practice sound like native white Swedes? Or more like status-obsessed Muslim youths who are also notorious in other countries for keeping their underwear on in swimming pools?

In February 2011 a group of 5 to 7 immigrant youths sexually assaulted three girls of 11 to 12-years-old at Husbybadet. It appears that the only reason this event was mentioned by major newspapers is because it caused rumors on nationalist sites of rape by 20 refugees, followed by a protest against the local refugee camp. One wonders to what extent this mini-hype was caused by agent provocateurs of the security state. In any case, the always government-loyal Aftonbladet made it very clear that the youths had only been touched on the "back and legs and buttocks" of the girls, that no clothes were removed, and that the protesters were "extremists". [245]

Other pools in Sweden

In early March 2012 a Swedish female blogger went to Sydpoolen with her child. Sydpoolen is a swimming pool in Södertälje, a town just west of Stockholm. Her account reads:

> "Östersund [swimming pool] was cozy, clean, many different swimming pools for children, good food, quiet and a comfortable atmosphere. In Södertälje the climate was very rough. ... The children who were there were brutes, jumping into the water, making karate kicks into the air, violently throwing water onto each other, screaming. All of it was scary and unsympathetic.

"The strangest thing of all was that no one spoke Swedish: in the pool, the cafe, the locker rooms, the sauna. Most were Arabic, but other languages as well. Quite a lot of Russians. I am absolutely convinced that those who were there did not perceive the situation like I did." [246]

Earlier, in 2010, this same blogger commented how she would stop going to the movies, because in her case Serbian East Block immigrants youths were continually misbehaving during the movies. [247]

In September 2014 problems with rioting immigrant youths were reported at Metropoolen in Avesta. Due to the clashes with the police, it was learned that a smaller incident with immigrant youths had occurred just days before. When the police tried to remove the youths, they were called "racists". It makes one wonder how many other incidents have taken place here. [248] Comments to an article about these events, included:

Swedish poster 1: "A couple of weekends ago, I and my teenage daughter were soloists and had nothing to do. I suggested that we go to the bathhouse as in the past. She looked skeptically at me and said, "Assa, you do not go to a bathhouse anymore if you type .... ordinary". I just understood what she meant."

Swedish poster 2: (64 likes): "Has long stopped using these facilities as the Swedish bath houses make up. It's just giving up and realizing that if you want a pool then you have to have your own swimming pool!"

Swedish poster 3: "It is not only the noise and threats that occur in the bath houses Female relative to me and her friend used to go swimming twice Week in the municipal bathhouse. Even though there were clear texts in several languages Bastudörren, that you did not have to bring your food in, often immigrant women were sitting And ate spicy foods. Certainly it may smell good, but not in a steam room. ... Heard a long time ago that Muslim women demanded their own time in a bathhouse because they could not swim with men."

Swedish poster 4: "Were recently bathing at the water park in Örebro. Rushed around a lot of immigrant youths and hurried, with the lifeguards following. A guy was thrown out and when he switched with the guard next to him, he ran the racist card. -You just throw me out because I'm immigrant."

Swedish poster 5: "I'm for total segregation in the bathhouse.

> Apartheid if you want to. Here I live, they have had to shut down the bathing place, when immigrants ravaged there for several summers in a row."
> Swedish poster 6: "Swedish boys and girls are indoctrinated late kindergarten with politically correct religious articles, racist violence and guilt over how white claims to have treated other people through history! They are simply pressed in the shoe!"
> Swedish poster 7: "The swimming pool in Ulricehamn has also had some problems with such guests."
> Swedish poster 8 (123 likes and the exact same comment also to be found in the Netherlands): "Sweden's public bathhouse can be renamed to Islamabad." [249]

Also saw this random Swedish comment dating to the fall of 2015 about a swimming pool in Vasteras, a city to the north-west of Stockholm:

> "Earlier this fall I went with my family and visited the bath house "Kokpunkten" in Västerås. My 13-year-old daughter and her friends were soon stalked by 5 older Muslim boys." [250]

In the 2015-2017 period reports of sexual assaults in many of Sweden's swimming pools increased dramatically. [251] In January 2016, for example, the swimming pool problem now had also spread to Vaxjo, a city between Stockholm and Malmo:

> "Two 11-year-old Swedish girls, who visited the Växjö Swimming Pool on Sunday, were attacked by seven-eight adult asylum seekers. They plunged the girls between the legs and exposed them to violence threats. ....
> he men should be at the age of 18-20 and were eventually stopped by a foreign woman who could speak their language. ...
> Åsa Änghede, who is acting at the bathhouse, says she should contact the asylum reception where the "boys" live.
> Earlier in January, a child was raped by a so-called "refugee child " at the Eriksdalsbadet in Stockholm.
> In addition, four girls under the age of 18 have been subjected to abuse in the same municipal bathhouse until this year.
> The situation at the bathing plant is now so severe that uniformed police will patrol in the bathhouse." [252]

However, how is this report any different from what has been going on in Dutch swimming pools since the early 1990s? Groups of pedophile inclined youths surrounding young white girls and sexually molesting them? It's really decades old news in the Netherlands.

While not widely reported, the Swedish police actually maintained numbers on sexual assault cases in swimming pools. Over 2015 it was determined that just over 80% of these cases involved foreigners:

> "Sexual assault in bathhouses was reported on 123 different occasions in 2015...
> "In [over] 80 percent of the reports from the bathhouse, the perpetrators were declared or established foreign descent. Most individuals lacked Swedish social security numbers, and in the reports they found that they belonged to groups of asylum-seeking boys," he police said in his report.""[253]

While "over 80 percent" sounds quite impressive, that number still appears to represent a cover up, because that would mean Muslims "only" are about 12 times overrepresented in cases of (group) sexual assault in swimming pools and that of every 10 cases of sexual assault here, 2 are committed by native white Swedes. In this police report it looks as if the police did not count "integrated" 2nd generation Muslim youths - a popular trick internationally - this because most recorded perpetrators in these cases hadn't even gotten their social security number yet and also because the overwhelming majority of sexual assaults in the Netherlands since the early 1990s have been conducted by 1st and 2nd generation Moroccan youths with social security numbers. In fact, certain Dutch pools raked up over 100 sexual assault cases per year, and even these appear to have only represented a portion of the actual assaults, so how did the Swedish police only record 123 cases over an entire year in the entire country? And mainly conducted by a fresh wave of Third World immigrants as the Afghans? Unless Iraqi children haven't really been into group sexual assault, these numbers make no sense. Either this last group isn't doing much sexual assaulting or they have learned to do them the "Moroccan way": very sneak, underwater, away from any above-water or underwater cameras and in groups so that the police can't really determine who did what. Apart from the group aspect, it's unlikely that fresh waves of immigrants got to that level of sophistication yet. So they were caught.

The Dutch have managed to push back these excesses a little with biometric ID cards, blacklists, and greatly increased security (supplemented with a media blackout for most incidents), but clearly the Swedish government and pool executives haven't been paying attention to what has been happening in the Netherlands.

Instead, in February 2016, immediately after the Third World immigration crisis became big news, a Swedish woman named Siri Bernhardsson set up a "vigilante" female patrol group at swimming pools to help guard against sexual molestations by immigrants. [254] Anybody who has read this article in its entirety will know how silly this effort is. These women only had to read the super-pro-immigration and pro-government AftonBladet newspaper 2.5 years before when it quoted an Afghan women as explaining:

> "What happens if we do not listen? Well, of course, our husbands or sons beat us. We are their slaves." [255]

Afghans are considered the worst sexual assault perpetrators in Sweden [256] - probably because tens of thousands of undocumented male teenagers have been allowed into the country - but the main point is that Muslims, including large groups of swimming pool-loving Dutch Moroccans, don't listen to women, especially not blond western "whores". If these women challenge them, they'll just get cursed out, beat up, thrown into the pool, sexually assaulted, raped as they try to leave the pool in the evening, and possibly stabbed to death.

The perpetrators? They'll largely get away, because they're still underage. A couple of months of youth detention, maybe 1 or 2 years after a murder, and they're back in the swimming pool. Assuming the government is not going to do anything, the only thing that works is ID cards and blacklists. And even that is only a partially effective solution to prevent the absolute worst excesses. Again, just look at how things went in the Netherlands back in the 1990s.

Of course, it would be much more rational and effective to send every criminal or even unintegrated "refugee" back to their country of origin, but that is clearly to much to ask of our governments.

Other locations in Sweden with immigrant crime problem

While looking up articles and comments on Third World immigrant issues at Sweden's swimming pools, I also noticed a number of related comments that made it very clear that, similar to the Netherlands, nightlife and any kind of amusement location are also being increasingly terrorized by these same groups (some of the comments are about Norway and Denmark). Only with some of the later comments did I pay attention to the amount of likes they got:

> Swedish poster 1: "It is difficult in a "multicultural" city to have a bathhouse, cinema, emergency room."

> Swedish poster 2: "watch my 8-year-old son at the Tusenfryd theme park a number of years ago, when I was unaware, I had distributed discounted tickets in Oslo's immigrant parts.

It was quickly a total chaos, since all attractions after entry were free, the queue broke down when hordes of immigrant boys just pushed desperate families with children who had paid full rates."

Swedish poster 3 (65 likes): "Nothing is like anymore anymore .. You can not bowl, bathe, watch the movies, be in the library or even sit in the pub to have nice as decent or sensible people."

Swedish poster 4: "In Denmark you do not allow MENA [Middle East and North Africa] and other problematic people in some nightclubs. Before I thought this was racist. But now I understand why they do it. For every nice MENA there are three unpleasant ones. So it all does not work."

Swedish poster 5 (32 likes): "I have lived in an immigrant-dominated area for most of my adult life. ... I have seen similar [aggressive] behaviors in other situations hundreds of times. It may be the young immigrant boys who walk 3 to 4 width side-by-side on a sidewalk and refuse to step aside when they meet someone, the little boys throwing firecrackers in front of an old lady who is out with the dog... speeding on bike paths, the young men who shout sexually depressing comments to passing Swedish women, etc.

"The pattern is the same in all these cases. The implied message is: "This is our street and our area, and we do what we want. ..." Whoever says something can count on trouble. And if you call police, we will say that you are racist..."

Swedish poster 6 (18 likes): "It's good that you write "poorly educated" because many think it's a matter of 'lack of education'. The children are actively raised to ignore Swedish society's norms." [257]

These comments date back to September 2014. With streams of Syrians, Afghans and Somalians pouring into the country, things were only getting worse.

In 2014 and 2015 "groups of mostly teenage boys of Afghani, Somali and Moroccan descent" we sexually assaulting dozens of random white girls, mostly under the age of 15, at the We Are STHLM youth festival. The Swedish police repressed the reports with maximum effort and so did the media. The information didn't come out until after the 2015-2016 New Year's Eve sexual assault controversy, which actually didn't just take place in Germany, but also Malmo. Sweden's similarly very large Bravalla festival suffered from the same type of immigrant attacks. Solution? It was canceled altogether. [258]

Apparently even as little as 400 unaccompanied teenage Moroccans have been causing mayhem in Sweden since they began arriving here in 2012. They have been particularly active at Stockholm's Central Station. Interior minister Anders Ygeman, a member of the right wing Swedish Democrats, commented:

> "These guys are a huge problem for us. They steal stuff everywhere and assault security guards. They grope girls between their legs and slap them in the face when they protest. All police officers are aware of this. I would never let my children go to the central station. No officer would." [259]

It's nice to see that the Swedes now have also met our beloved Moroccans. The Daily Mail wrote a very disturbing additional article about Stockholm's Central Station where many other Third World migrants are holed up. As the Daily Mail reporter recounted:

> "Suddenly, his friend, a 43-year-old Eritrean called Mahoud, darts off to dance a circle round two Swedish women in their early twenties, walking briskly by us towards the trains. The girls, who show no surprise, sidestep him neatly as he tries to pat their bottoms. 'The Swedish women, they're nice,' says smiling Mahoud on his return, unabashed by the rebuff." [260]

ISGP has already written about global black crime numbers, including from Sub-Saharan Africa, the cradle of gang rape non-civilization. The fact that we allow anyone from Africa or the Middle East to come here is absolutely shocking. The Daily Mail article also featured a very aptly named title: How Europe's most liberal nation gagged its own people on migration attacks: The Swedish conspiracy to hide the truth about the refugee influx. This title is true, one hundred percent. And this conspiracy goes for every country the liberal superclass dominates. Meanwhile, also Swedish swimming pools aren't too keen of drawing attention to the immigration crisis. [261] Too many negative reports will put them out of business, so they are unlikely to turn activist.

Despite all the controversy about the Muslim immigration and "rape" crisis and Sweden's central role in the discussions, it is still incredible how few stories actually get out, especially to the international press (pretty much none). The there's the issue that newspapers only very seldom mention ethnicities. To get a good glimpse of the average group sexual assault and rape cases in Sweden, it might be best to cite examples provided in a 2015 police report:

> 1. A sixteen-year-old girl was attacked by a large number of boys who "were foreign and spoke bad Swedish" who tried to tear her clothes off. Some photographed the event. The girl was on her way home with her boyfriend from a party when she was attacked. The boyfriend witnessed the event.

2. In a similar situation, two girls were attacked by 10-20 boys with "African origin" who were 15-20 years old.

3. In an assault against a girl in a park, a sexual assault led to a completed rape by several guys in the group. They had been at the same party before and saw her leave the place.

4. In an assault against a 12-year-old girl, the following signal elements were stated; "Four men aged 20-25 who turned out to be Arabs and spoke foreign, possibly Arab among them." A young man passing by was beaten up.

5. One girl said she would pee in a bush when twelve offenders came to her and sexually thwarted her. In connection with this, the perpetrators had resorted to the plaintiff's wallet. "The sexual assassination consisted, among other things, in the fact that the unknown offender took the defendant on the buttocks."

6. A 17-year-old girl who went to a shopping mall was chased and stopped by three "African guys" who attacked her by squeezing her ass so hard that her pants ripped.

7. A 13-year-old girl who went to school was approached by "4-5 foreign boys" who spoke broken Swedish. They groped her one by one "at places she did not like, including her butt and her breasts."

8. When a girl waited for a train, she was surrounded by six youngsters in the 15-17 age range "with foreign descent". They poked her, said obscene things, and threatened her in Swedish. When the train came, they broke it off.

9. In another case, a girl stated that she met a group of about 10 guys in the 18-20 age range. Four of the guys in the gang grabbed her shirt and held her by the arm while three other guys felt her body and chest. She shouted for help, tried to resist and asked them to stop, but without success. In the end she managed to get free.

10. A girl on a train was met with obscene words by a group of nine guys around 25, and they tried to block the path when she was going to leave. None of the boys spoke Swedish and the plaintiff stated in the notification that "they may be from Afghanistan".

11. A girl was surrounded by a gang of eight men who boarded at the same time. Two of the men began to touch her thighs and up against her abdomen. She finally used pepper spray > and they all moved away. All men were over 25 years old and had foreign origin. [262]

Furthermore, it is possible to get a really good sense of the type of "culture" Sweden and the Europe as a whole is importing by reading accounts of western persons who have gone through so-called "Sweden for Immigrants" (SFI) courses that make newly-arrived immigrants familiar with Swedish language and culture. These people primarily talk about Muslim groups as Afghans, Iraqis, Syrians and Somalians.

- Talking on phone, loudly.
- Playing music at full volume.
- Continually talking over teachers.
- Women getting verbally harassed, even underage teenage girls by older, married men with their wives sitting next to them.
- Men proudly proclaiming they beat their wives, even when they "looked funny" at another man.
- Women bringing crying babies.
- Women bringing you children, allowing them to run through class.
- Bringing knives to class, with at least one person having gotten stabbed in the back.
- Forcing other classmates to celebrate the birthday of Prophet Muhammed.
- Husbands following their wives through the windows or the phone 24-7.
- Rants about how great Saddam Hussein really was.
- Violent verbal reactions to the Bush government or basically anything American.
- Remarks that we should all be learning Arabic instead of Swedish.
- 80% of the class not speaking English, so no common language to teach.
- Pensioners who are so old, they simply will never learn the required material.
- No understanding of the absolute basics of grammar, because individuals have never go to school in their home country.
- PTSD sufferers who are crying non-stop.
- Massive attempts at cheating during exams the second the teacher turns its back for a second, even by older men and women.
- Macho guys from East Block continually remembering classmates to the "fact" that school is for girls. [263]

Again, all of it, both the group assaults and general behavior, sounds very recognizable with what we have seen in the Netherlands since the early 1990s and what became a little bit more visible and widely reported during the recent Third World immigration crisis. But none of it can be labeled "surprising". It is clear at this point that what has been going on in the Netherlands is now also happening in Sweden and other European countries. While refugees without a doubt are even rougher around the edges than kids grown up here, the second generation of Muslims most likely will look at Western women the exact same way, i.e. "whores" to be harassed and raped. If the "refugee" streams continue, the situation is only going to get worse.

Norway: 95% of street rapes by Africans and Muslims

With Norway, not much can be found on early swimming pool trouble, but since about the turn of the century major cities as Oslo and Stavanger have been gripped by violent rape assaults on the street. Statistics reveal that 95% of the perpetrators are foreign immigrants, most of them from Africa and the Muslim world, and that 80% or more of the victims are ethnic Norwegian women. ISGP has dedicated an article to the rape and other crime statistics from Norway.

Germany: Muslim riots in swimming pools since early 2000s

Belgium: nation-wide Muslim swimming pool riots

As can be expected with a country that has twice the effective Moroccan population as the Netherlands, Belgium has also experienced major problems at countless swimming pools and recreational locations.

Moroccan youth riots at the Bloso Domain between Antwerp and Brussels in April 2011. Three cops were injured; one gravely.

As in the Netherlands and Germany, the first problems with sexual assault, harassment and violence with Muslim immigrants at swimming pools were observed in the late 1980s. At this point they were still minor, but by the turn of the century these problems completely escalated, with various swimming pools being closed down and large-scale riots by immigrant youths starting to make the (local) news. De Ster, west of Antwerp, is the most well-known problem area, but more than dozen major swimming pools and recreational areas around the country can be identified that have experienced similar problems with immigrant youths. In and around Antwerp problems have been reported at Zwembad Brasschaat, De Molen, Zwembad Sorgvliedt, De Boekenberg, Zwembad Beveren, De Ster and Zwembad Herentals. Around Brussels Oceade water park, De Lammekes, and Huizingen have experienced major problems. In between Antwerp and Brussels sits Mechelen, where De Nekker and the Bloso Domain Hofstade are located. Both have been terrorized by immigrant youths, with the Domain Hofstade having been the scene of a huge, violent, immigrant riot in 2011. More problem areas include De Warande in the west of Belgium, the Halve Maan in the east of Belgium and Kluisbos, near the French border, where French immigrant youths are harassing women and inciting violence.

Compared to the Netherlands, it appears Belgians are far less outspoken about these issues. Also at the few online forums and news website comments section available, politically correct social control is much heavier than in a country as the Netherlands. Politicians and the media are very much in denial of the problem, to the point one can be forgiven into thinking there really aren't any major problems in Belgium today. This couldn't be further from the truth. One poll on Belgium's leadingb 9Lives forum put forward the question if immigration in Belgium worked. 68.6% outright said, "no", with only 16.5% saying "yes", undoubtedly a good portion of them immigrant themselves.

ISGP has produced a separate article, with sources, on these problems in Belgium. It has not been fully finished, however, and only time will tell if it ever gets finished.

France

Of all European countries, France probably has the worst Third World immigration numbers. It has a huge population of North African Muslims, mainly Algerians and Moroccans, and many more French-speaking Sub-Saharan blacks. The Muslims in France are extremely radical (about 35% supports suicide bombings) and Paris has experienced more than a few major riots. As usual, the mainstream media continues to talk about racism against these Muslims as the cause of the unrest. During one of the first major riots in 2005, the Brooking Institution published a report that read:

> "The young men and teenagers from the banlieues are rioting and burning cars largely because they have little hope of upward social mobility. ...
> "Racism and discrimination are very much alive in the French society, whether in housing, in the job market, or in social life. ... Negative racial stereotypes lingering from the colonial or even earlier times make everyday life of persons of African origin often difficult and frustrating. The young "Beurs" (a slang word for Arabs) and "Blacks" from the cités report many cases of discrimination, such as being refused entrance to nightclubs. ... One [form of racism] in particular stands out: racial profiling by the police. ...
> "The experience of exclusion and unfairness was high on the list of factors that have driven their revolt...
> "Even worse, due to political changes introduced in 2002 by the Minister of the Interior Nicolas Sarkozy ... policemen

> [now] go into the cités only to do the "repressive" part of their job—to impose order, investigate a crime or perform an arrest, which strains their relations with idle and disgruntled teenagers." [2]

The simple fact is that France has millions upon millions of the most criminal Third World migrants due to its colonial past in North-West Africa. The Parisian prison system is close to 90% filled with these ethnicities. I haven't gotten around to checking Parisian swimming pools yet, but unless the French police forcefully keeps Muslims out, it should have been total anarchy since the early 1990s.

Great Britain's largest traditional Muslim immigrant group have been the Pakistanis, somewhat similar to Norway. For now, I have little information on swimming pools in Great Britain, but since at least the early 1990s the British Pakistanis have been grooming large numbers of white, underage sex slaves with the full permission of local politicians, including a chap named George Galloway. Only recently did this lead to a huge scandal. The Pakistanis have also regularly made the news for trying to establish all-Muslim schools and teaching their kids that integration equals sin. If time permits it, ISGP will also create a separate article on the British situation.

UK: Cover up of Pakistani grooming gangs raping white girls

This section originally as worked into a separate article, before being abandoned due to a lack of time. The deep involvement of Afghanis and Pakistanis in "grooming gangs" is a well known issue, but forever suppressed by British politics and the media, who often referred to "Asian grooming gangs" [3], this despite a report showing that "84% of grooming gang members are Asian", i.e. almost all Pakistani. [4] The issue has continued to broil over the decades. In 2025 once again the problem was acknowledged, with the excuse given that the crimes of Pakistanis in particular were "institutionally ignored for fear of racism". [5] That, or the agenda of white replacement...

Summary and conclusions

We can go on with describing countries and listing statistical and real-world examples, but it should be clear at this point that the "Muslim Rape Crisis" didn't start at New Year's Eve 2015-2016. That's the biggest lie on the planet. Massive problems with sexual assault in swimming pools and other places primarily by Moroccans in the Netherlands and Belgium and Turks in Germany have existed since at least the early 1990s, with the first reports going back to the late 1980s. Sweden started to have problems no later than the late 1990s, in their case primarily with smaller numbers of Iraqis.

If anything, the events of New Year's Eve 2015-2016 represent nothing more than a temporary, accidental leak of an official cover up policy by European governments and the superclass sitting on top of it. Before and since those events, western politicians have continued to cram as many Third World nationalities into our countries as they can get away with, complete with official government instructions to the police to provide as little information on Third World ethnicities to the media.

It's so bad that even the regular talk about Moroccans in "right-wing" Dutch media and political circles represents little more than a little bit of conventient, ineffectual "venting", because no one has been talking about all the Afghans, Somalis, Ghanese, Ethiopians, Nigerians, and other nationalities that have continued to pour into our country. The same is going on with all other West-European countries. Even worse, right-wing publications do not try to set up effective protest movements. They generally ally themselves with a peculiar euro-skeptic "alt-right" figure who half the time does little more than discredit him- or herself. The anti-immigration movement is in a sad state of affairs - internationally.

On a positive note, at least anyone who has read this article and other articles in ISGP's Center for Responsible Immigration should know that he or she is not racist and not irrational for opposing Third World immigration.

It is important though that people spread this information and work towards setting up action groups and protest movements. Otherwise the situation will only continue to deteriorate. Do keep in mind not to be too nice. The facts in the form of statistical data are on the side of white, western people - us. On top of that, these are our countries. Black Lives Matter and most domestic activist groups for Third World citizens can only spew their propaganda because of financing of our treasonous superclass. This superclass and its media outlets and PR men (the politicians) have committed treason. They need to pay for all the rapes, all the sexual assaults, all the murders, all the robberies and all the daily stress they have subjected their native white populations to through their irresponsible open borders policies. And they need to pay for all psychological "white guilt" and "anti-racist" warfare tactics they have deployed against their own citizens. We do need a revolution, and we do need to put the entire superclass and all its henchmen on trial. They are guilty of treason and crimes against humanity; possibly genocide if the situation continues to spiral out of control for another few decades. We can't allow that to happen, because there is no place to run to anymore. Third World migrants are streaming into every Western country at a rate far beyond alarming. And they are ruining our society.

APPENDICES

Appendix A: The masses as... the voice of reason

In this article a ton of Dutch repliers to news articles on immigration issues or forum threads on swimming pools have been cited. Why? Because it is next to impossible for foreigners, for example for people of the United States, to understand what the average Dutch person on the street is thinking about immigration. All they might be aware of are a few polls revealing a high degree "populism" and apparent criticism of anti-Muslim immigration, but how exactly people express themselves against immigrants behind closed doors when no immigrant friends or cameras are observing them is impossible to know, because this (very realistic) sentiment is filtered out by the mainstream media. It's quite literally banned from the media, certainly from television, and to a very large extent also from print media as newspapers, magazines and books.

March 8, 2017, possibly the day of the most politically incorrect comments ever made on Dutch TV: national soccer commentator Johan Derksen (far-right) criticizes former VJ-turned-black-political activist and politician Sylvana Simons: "... that hysterical missy Simons who now is running around the country, proud as a little ape." When informed the saying goes "Proud as a peacock", Derksen replies "She doesn't look like a peacock at all" and soon also says "Yeah, I think she's about the most irritating little creature in the Netherlands."
Outrage? Yes, in the establishment media, but he floored the room and pretty much everyone not overly politically correct. The only reason he probably got away with is because he's such a popular figure with soccer being the nation's national pastime.
In no-time the media bosses shoved a Moroccan community representative to the table who explained, "Yes, Moroccans are seriously overrepresented in crime and welfare... but they can kick a ball." That's one of the dumbest and most desperate lines of reasoning ever. Who cares if you can play a sport, but in the process destroy the society you're a guest in?

Apart from the news, "national opinion" is personified by a centralized, superficial, politically correct, fake entertainment cult of prominent presenters, singers, and actors, which, of course, always includes a balanced number of carefully-selected "model immigrants" and - not bad, but still obvious - gays. The evening news and late night show-watching middle class - parents and grandparents who are trying to serve as an example to their children and grandchildren in particular - wouldn't dare to oppose any opinions presented outside of this media cult, at least not too vocally. People are going to be people. They want to be practical, not "negative", and because the superclass, government and media don't allow practical solutions or rational debate regarding Third World immigration, for the most part the native white masses just cope by moving away and ignoring the issue and/or by falling into denial and generally quiet frustration, even against each other. Everybody, especially in the big cities, knows about the massive problems surrounding Third World immigration, but nobody says it. And plenty are in total denial, because to acknowledge that there is a problem pretty much automatically means acknowledging that conspiracies exist. So now people not only feel racist, they feel like they might be mentally deranged, even more so when they read about the regular articles in the media tying racism of various kinds to belief in "conspiracy theory".

But even though few people speak out strongly against immigration because it won't affect any change - after all, western people are unbelievably indolent and passive due to decades of mainstream media brainwashing and a high standard of living - a decent amount of primarily young, middle class citizens do voice their uncensored opinions in relevant news media articles or forum topics. It's literally the only place apart from polls or "populist" sentiment in the country where one can still find genuine opinions on Third World immigration. And as readers of this article will find out: they represent an incredible breath of fresh air. All of a sudden there's talk about governments lying to the people, there's openly racist sentiment ("apes", "sand monkeys", etc.) and practical solutions are being offered ("throw them out", "let's beat them up", "drown 'em all", etc.). In other words, the world makes sense again, because people are allowed to be people again. There's fire, there's emotion, there's cynicism, there's reason, there are calls for practical solutions, including politically incorrect ones; and there are desires to come together and even to see the staging of coups.

This is the kind of material I wanted to have for a long time from other countries as well. For example, when translating comment sections of Norwegian articles on brutal gang rapes in Sweden by Somalians in particular, a lot of the comments appeared to poke fun of Sweden as an "immigrant's paradise" where the police "approves of immigrant gang rape". It's great to have insight into these down-to-earth, "folksy" opinions, because they generally represent what people are really thinking - except those living in complete denial. Unfortunately, even with the relatively advanced state of Google Translator these days, it is still too much of a hassle to accurately (and quickly enough) translate comment sections of Norwegian, German or other international sites, not to mention that I'm not aware per country what their key publications are with comment sections, their key youth forums, or their key swimming pools and nightlife establishments where online discussions might be going on about. With each country you need to do this individually, whereas for the Netherlands I've always known where to go.

As for the United States, you can't tell anymore what is propaganda and what isn't. Due to superclass-security state operations all of society is divided into the left vs the right with propagandists on both sides swarming all levels of the mainstream and alternative media, down to comment sections of popular sites, forums, YouTube channels and Facebook channels. Due to all the propaganda, Americans also appear to be highly politically correct, highly and irrationally divided and afraid to not belong to either the conservative right or the liberal left. Much of the practical immigration-related criticism, for example, can only be found at the pro-Nazi Stormfront forum, which has its radio show hosted by the equally pro-Nazi conspiracy disinformation site Rense.com. It's totally useless as a source due to the army of pro-Hitler, anti-Jewish Nazis participating in the forum, many of whom undoubtedly are FBI and CIA "informants". You just can't tell who's who and who is telling the truth. But this undoubtedly is how the superclass and security state wanted the situation to be. Conspiracy sites as the anti-immigration Infowars website of Alex Jones are ten times worse than even Stormfront. Replies amount to little more than mindless spamming - a good portion could even be auto-generated - to uphold the conspiracy theory stereotype and also to divide society into "alt left" vs "alt right". It's so obvious these days, it's hardly worth discussing.

In Europe these left vs right political warfare operations aren't nearly as advanced yet. It's also much tougher to set up, because most people are very liberal, with the only major discussion point being Third World immigration. There do appear to be attempts to steer division though. For example, ISGP has already discussed the peculiar Republican Society in relation to the equally peculiar Pim Fortuyn murder. Also, I can't help but notice the frequent references at the super-popular anti-immigration GeenStijl.nl shock blog to the left-wing, pro-government and super-pro-immigration joop.vara.nl and vice versa. GeenStijl is owned by the large Telegraaf newspaper and together with the government-broadcasted PowNed! media group, Elsevier magazine and Geert Wilders' "populist" PVV political party this network largely forms "the right" in the Netherlands. The only other place to regularly find discussions of immigrant crime is the Fok.nl website and its very large forum - but this site can hardly be labeled "right wing". It's just a youth-oriented site with a realistic view on Third World immigration for the most part, as are many of the contributors.

To summarize: domestic comments to Third World crime-related news articles and those found on lifestyle-related forums far removed from the conspiracy community - and which do not show signs of political propaganda - are a rare gem. I'm happy to have included them here, so the voices of these people stand a much better chance of initiating the type of change they desired.

Bij Marokkaanse jongens [wie een misdrijf hebben gepleegt] ligt het percentage op 54 procent. Ook Surinaamse (43 procent) en Turkse jongens (41 procent) staan veel vaker in het politiesysteem dan gemiddeld. Autochtone Nederlandse jongens komen uit op ruim 20 procent.
Verder blijkt uit de gegevens dat Turken veel geweldsmisdrijven plegen, Marokkanen vermogensdelicten en autochtone Nederlanders bekend staan om hun vernielingsgedrag en het verstoren van de openbare orde."

[201] *) I ran into this problem with a a lone Moroccan who made it to college. The moment Darwinism was brought up he said, with a smug, that, "Well, you know, Darwin was a cocaine addict."
*) After a long time searching for a connection between Darwin and a cocaine addiction, all I could find was one extremist source that claims Darwin was a "cocaine-addicted fraud" without providing any sources. Ironically, Darwin's Origin of Species and the invention of cocaine both date to 1859. In addition, I found that a great great grandson of Darwin wrote about his own battle with heroin addiction. That's it. I also couldn't find a link between Darwin and opium consumption, so it's quite safe to say that Darwin never was a drug addict, certainly not when writing his crucial Origin of Species work.

*) 2003, M.G.M. Pryor, 'The Survival of the Coolest: An Addiction Memoir', pp. 1, 3-4: "One fine summer day, as I languished in the belly of the behemoth that was Cane Hill Lunatic Asylum, being 'cured' of heroin addition, my dear friend Nigel came to visit.... For a great great grandson of Charles Darwin to be shut away in a loony bin was shameful enough, only mitigated by knowing that Charlie Chaplin's mother had been committed here at the turn of the century as had David Bowie's half brother in the recent past. ... I was nineteen and locked in a nineteenth century lunatic asylum to have my heroin addition corrected. ... How does a great great grandson of Charles Darwin sink to such depths?"
*) M.G.M. Pryor was a British biologist. Pryor married Sophie Raverat, daughter of the late French artist Jacques Raverat and his wife Gwendolen Mary (née Darwin) (a granddaughter of Charles Darwin), in 1940.
*) Opium goes back many centuries. Darwin's Origin of Species was published on November 24, 1859, the same year that cocaine was invented. Heroin was invented in 1874 in Germany and came to the United States quickly thereafter. Legal. Initially promoted as a "safe, non-addictive" substitute for morphine. By 1925 there were an estimated 200,000 heroin addicts in the country. Darwin: 1809-1882.
*) June 13, 2013, Hard Dawn, 'Is the "Evolution Theory" Hoax to Blame For Our Nation's Failing Schools?': "Many scholars consider "evolution" a crude hoax. It's a theory with no intellectual basis and utterly no proof, except proof of rampant fraud. Even a child could see that this nonsensical fairy tale is wholly contradicted by the proven facts of the Bible. Historians have concluded that the theory's author, Charles Darwin, was a cocaine-addicted fraud who sought to pay off his gambling debts by selling fantasy tales. Darwin was also a European elitist who often abandoned his family to spend time on exotic islands around the world where native women went topless and consumed intoxicating spirits. Yet despite the mountains of evidence, radical atheists have adopted this queer idea as their very own."
